CORTE MADERA CREEK WORK IN PROGRESS

A workman cuts a new flood control channel along Corte Madera Creek leaving the natural stream bed untouched as requested by Ross officials. This bulldozer, working its way downstream today near Center Medical Hospital in Kentfield, was starting on the 33-foot-wide channel, expected to be complete in October. Work on this phase of the controversial flood control project began two weeks ago immediately after the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito was signed to construct the reinforced concrete channel. It will continue this construction season from the point work stopped last year (1,800 feet upstream of the College Avenue Bridge) to a point 200 feet downstream of the Ross Post Office.

Turkish Quake Kills 65, Mostly Women, Children

ANTALYA, Turkey (UPI)—An earthquake rolled across southwest Turkey with a thunderous roar today, cuasing destruction and death over a wide area.

Officials at Burdur, near the epicenter, said at least 65 persons died, 25 of them in that town of 30,000. The men had already gone to the fields and most of the victims were women and children caught in their homes.

The quake, which measured eight on the open-ended Richter scale, struck at 8:26 a.m. (2:36 a.m. EDT) around the farming region of Burdur, 60 miles northwest of the Mediterranean seaside resort of Antalya.

It heavily damaged the town's main post office, knocking out all communications until noon when telephone contact was again established. Damage estimates ran as high as 85 per cent.

"We have already counted 40 dead in the two villages around Burdur alone," the town's governor, Esref Ayhan, said by telephone. "We have to fear the worst—that the death toll will rise even more when reports from other villages come in,"

He said 25 had died in Burdur. The neighboring villages of Yazi and Yari were levelled.

The shock was felt throughout Anatolia, the province occupying most of western Turkey, and as far away as Antalya, Denizli, Mugla, Isparta, and Aydin.

Military and civilian rescue teams were dispatched by air and land to the scene, 220 miles southwest of Ankara.

The shock followed an ancient faultline which has made western Turkey historically vulnerable to earthquakes.

Today's epicenter was less than 100 miles from Manisa, where a tremor in March 1969 left more than 40 dead and 500 injured.

A giant quake in 1966 killed more than 2,000. Another 2,200 died over the next year in a series of tremors.

Reports from Burdur said the government offices, two schools, a state hospital and two apartment buildings were among the structures hit.

A high population concentration in the rugged, mountainous country —about 210,000 live in the Burdur region alone—has accounted for traditionally high death tolls in earthquakes, floods and blizzards.

An official said it was "fortunate the quake hit in the morning, when the peasants were already in the fields. Most of the casualties seem to be women and children."

He said more than 100 persons in the outlying village areas were hospitalized with various injuries.

A policeman reached at Burdur by telephone when the lines were restored said up to 85 per cent of the buildings there appeared damaged.

"I fear the death toll may keep rising," Ahmet Balkan, governor of Antalya, told UPI.

An Irate Taxpayer Arrested On Robbery Attempt At Hub Bank

A 25-year-old Corte Madera man — dressed as an Indian — was arrested yesterday on suspicion of attempting to rob a San Anselmo bank after becoming enraged that the Internal Revenue Service had attached his account for $2.98.

Arrested was Franklin Jack Burr Jr., of 122 Willow Avenue, whose Indian garb was part of his job at Indian Joe's clothing store on Center Boulevard.

According to Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani, Burr entered the Wells Fargo Bank at 3 p.m. and handed a teller a note reading: "Don't make me brandish a weapon and upset everybody. Just hand me $10.48."

Buchignani said Burr apparently had not paid his federal exise tax on his phone bill in protest to the war in Vietnam. The other amount ($7.50) was levied by the bank as a service charge.

Burr, prior to the attempted robbery, had gone to the bank at 1:30 p.m. for an explanation of his account statement which showed the deductions, Buchignani said.

Becoming irate at the explanation, Burr allegedly told one bank employee "Do you value your life ... is it worth $10.48?" and stormed out.

Returning after the bank had closed, Burr was allowed to enter.

Burr then threw a pile of pamphlets at the teller and followed with a swinging-kicking fight with three male employees.

A silent alarm brought Buchignani and three shotgun-armed officers who halted the melee by arresting Burr for attempted robbery. Additional offenses of assault and battery and disturbing the peace were lodged against Burr by the bank manager.

En route to the police station, Buchignani said, Burr went into convulsions and was moved to Marin General Hospital.

The hospital today declined to disclose Burr's condition.

Big Postal Service Plan For Shakeup

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton N. Blount announced today a major reorganization of the 750,000-employe U.S. Postal Service, eliminating 10 to 15 regional headquarters offices.

Capitol Hill sources said the reorganization would eliminate 3,500 white collar jobs and wipe out jobs of many political appointees.

Asked about that, a Postal Service spokesman said, "nobody knows. There is no way that anybody could possibly say that 3,000 or so people are going to lose their jobs because no determination has been made."

The "streamlined organization structure" announced by Blount will create five regional headquarters —in San Francisco, Memphis, Chicago, Philadelphia and the New York City metropolitan area. Each will be headed by a regional postmaster general.

Eliminated will be regional headquarters in Denver, Seattle, St. Louis, Wichita, Dallas, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Boston, Cincinnati and Washington. Each now employs between 179 and 311 persons.

"A lot of people who are ready for retirement probably will retire," a postal spokesman said. "It is being announced locally that the Postal Service will abide by Civil Service Commission standards and enable employes to bid for jobs in the new regional headquarters or in the new metropolitan and district offices."

Velasquez Painting Bought For Millions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Museum has acquired one of the world's greatest paintings, Diego Velasquez's 1650 portrait of his mulatto assistant, which was auctioned in London last November for a record $5,544,000, it was announced today.

Douglas Dillon, president of the museum, said the portrait had been purchased from Wildenstein & Co., New York art dealers who were the auction purchasers, for the exact auction price. He said the bulk of the funds had come from money given the museum nearly 50 years ago and restricted solely for the purchase of great art.

Rock Star Mick Jagger Married

ST. TROPEZ, France (UPI)-- British rock star Mick Jagger married a pretty Nicaraguan, Bianca Perez Moreno de Macias, today in the town hall while noisy rock fans crowded on the sidewalk outside.

The 28-year-old long haired pop singer and his girl friend of six months left the swimming pool of their plush resort hotel to say their "I do's" before Marius Astezani the mayor of this village wearing his red, white and blue sash of office.

Then the couple threaded their way through news photographers and fans to marry again in a Roman Catholic ceremony at a fishermen's tiny chapel on a hilltop overlooking the sunwashed playground of film stars and millionaires.

MIGs Lure U.S. Planes Into Trap

SAIGON (UPI) —Five U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers swooped into North Vietnam from Laos Monday and bombarded Communist antiaircraft guns that had fired on them, the U.S. command announced today in a delayed report.

The spokesman also reported that a supersonic North Vietnamese Mig21 jet fired on an unarmed U.S. Air Force observation plane over Laos Sunday while a second Mig circled overhead. The American plane, an OH10 Bronco, was not hit in this first incident of its kind in Laos.

American military officials said the North Vietnamese were sending Mig21s over Laos in an attempt to lure American planes within range of SAM missile batteries and said there had been at least four radar sighting of Migs this year.

There was no mention of missiles, however in reports of the F4 strike into North Vietnam.

The planes attacked in two strikes 45 minutes apart for the 36th "protective reaction" this year and the 43rd such attack since the U.S. command began reporting them a year ago. None of the five planes was damaged, spokesmen said.

Two Phantoms were making bombing runs over the Ho Chi Minh supply trail complex through Laos at 6 p.m. Monday when they were fired on by a Communist 85-millimeter gun from within North Vietnam, 80 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone, U.S. spokesmen said.

As the F4's zoomed to the attack, they were fired on by nearby 37 and 57-millimeter antiaircraft guns. Both Phantoms sent their seven-ton loads of 750-pound bombs plummeting onto the antiaircraft position, knocking out three 57-millimeter guns.

Forty- five minutes later, three more F4's were diverted from the Ho Chi Minh trail to bomb the same antiaircraft

West Marin Master Plan Nearly Buried

By WAT TAKESHITA

The West Marin Master Plan, which was forged in 1967 after a four-year controversy over density, was all but buried yesterday, with the blessing of a majority of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Other Marin Supervisors stories, page 7.)

In contrast with the storm that raged over density (.88 units per acre vs. 1.15 units per acre) in the summer of 1967, the announcement of its demise was accepted with only mild protest yesterday.

During yesterday's joint meeting between the supervisors and the Marin County Planning Commission, County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell announced the planning commissioners will reconsider the West Marin General Plan on June 14.

"The staff recommendation will be to drop the West Marin General Plan, said Von Gundell. "There are so many deficiencies in it that it would be more work to amend it than to give it a decent burial." Von Gundell said he is working on a countywide general plan that will take over the West Marin Plan.

Chairman Louis H. Baar put in a protest. "So much time was spent on the West Marin plan, and now we're going to beat this one to death. For what purpose?" he asked. "My suspicion is that it's make-work, to keep the staff working."

But Baar was outnumbered. "I think the West Marin plan

Bomb Plot Witness Loses Quash Motion

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—A federal judge ruled Wednesday evidence used to subpoena Leslie Bacon before a federal grand jury was legal—even if it included wiretaps — because Miss Bacon has not been charged with a crime.

U.S. District Judge George H. Boldt turned down a motion by the 19-year-old antiwar activist to quash the subpoena under which she has been detained as a "material witness" into radical bombings.

U.N. Flag Vote Reaffirmed Over Bitter Protests

'Mundialization' Subversive, Claim Federalists' Opponents

By C.P. McCARTHY

San Anselmo has gone and done it now.

Because of the action of its city council: The United States will not be a free country in 18 months; a world flag will fly above the Stars and Stripes; America's national sovereignty will be surrendered and its Constitution rescinded.

All this, according to Dolores J. Sill of 19 Roger Avenue, because the San Anselmo City Council last night refused to reverse its April 27 decision to "mundialize," thereby declaring HUB residents to be citizens of the world and ordering the United Nations flag to be flown at city hall with the American flag. (Other San Anselmo City Council stories, page 8.)

That decision, proposed by World Federalist Youth-USA and its executive director, Norman E. Leach of San Anselmo, passed by a 3-2 vote. The two dissenters, councilmen Woodrow V. Capurro and Warren R. Perry; reaffirmed their opposition to mundialization again last night.

"The flag I want to see flying in front of this city hall is the American flag and the California flag," said Capurro, warning that what happened in San Anselmo last night "might lead the way for all the cities in California."

Councilman Warren R. Perry said he would vote against the mundialization proposal again, but backed away from aligning himself with protestors who last night attacked the United Nations, World Federalist Youth and Saturday's San Anselmo Town Meeting as subversive.

Perry said the United Nations was "at least a body whereby we have been able to communicate," but he said he thought the mundialization action was not properly within the scope of the city council, whose function, he said, was not to be involved in foreign affairs.

A crowd of about 130 persons — more than half, opponents of mundialization — overflowed out the door of city hall for last night's discussion.

They heard Mrs. Sill, a retired school teacher, warn that the "United Nations flag is a foot in the door . . . that rag must come down. . . Eighteen months from now, if that rag hangs in San Anselmo, it will hang in every city in the United States."

She presented the council a petition with 167 signatures protesting mundialization and said she would have had more signatures except for the town hall meeting Saturday, which she described as "another branch of the United World Federalists," a subversive group, she said, affiliated with Leach's organization.

The mundialization action was also attacked by Susan Tennler, of 122 Bretano Way, Greenbrae, who is lietenant governor of the United Republicans of California.

She said that if she can get a San Anselmo resident to start a recall of Mayor Kenneth L. Anderson and councilmen James F. Reed and Lewis W. Stewart, she'll provide the volunteers to work on it.

After tracing what she said were parallel points in the United Nations charter and the Constitution of the Soviet Union, and remarking that "nowhere in the United Nations charter is there any mention of God," Mrs. Tennler said that if the council did not rescind its mundialization action, "then you are in effect contributing to the abolishment of the United States as a nation."

Other speakers defended and attacked mundialization, the United Nations, United World Federalists, the Soviet Union and Norman Leach.

Sarah Nome of 77 Alder Avenue wanted to know why Leach doesn't salute the American flag. Mayor Anderson told her she could ask Leach in private.

President Proposes $2 An Hour Minimum

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration today endorsed raising the minimum wage to $2 an hour for adults, but proposed a cut-rate youth minimum of $1.60 to help reduce high unemployment among teen-agers.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, in testimony prepared for the House Labor subcommittee, proposed that the present $1.60 minimum wage covering some 46 million teenage and adult workers be raised to $1.80 an hour in January and $2 in January, 1974.

The final step-up is at a later date than provided in other proposals before the subcommittee headed by Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa. Hodgson said going to $2 an hour before 1974 would be inflationary, principally by prompting wage increases for workers already being paid above that figure.

The AFL-CIO has demanded an immediate boost to $2 an hour, Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee has proposed going to $2 next January, and House Democratic leaders support a bill by Dent for a step-up to $1.80 in January and a second boost to $2 the following January.

But none of these proposals contain any different minimum wage for teen-agers, a proposal that already has been condemned by the AFL-CIO as a move that will allow employers to exploit young workers and reap extra profits by displacing older workers with teen-agers.

Under the administration proposal outlined by Hodgson, the present $1.60 rate would be retained for all workers under 18, or 18 and 19-year-olds who are full-time students and for 18 and 19-year-old workers during the first six months of their first jobs.

Big Postal Service Plan For Shakeup

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton N. Blount announced today a major reorganization of the 750,000-employe U.S. Postal Service, eliminating 10 to 15 regional headquarters offices.

Capitol Hill sources said the reorganization would eliminate 3,500 white collar jobs and wipe out jobs of many political appointees.

Asked about that, a Postal Service spokesman said, "nobody knows. There is no way that anybody could possibly say that 3,000 or so people are going to lose their jobs because no determination has been made."

The "streamlined organization structure" announced by Blount will create five regional headquarters —in San Francisco, Memphis, Chicago, Philadelphia and the New York City metropolitan area. Each will be headed by a regional postmaster general.

Eliminated will be regional headquarters in Denver, Seattle, St. Louis, Wichita, Dallas, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Boston, Cincinnati and Washington. Each now employs between 179 and 311 persons.

"A lot of people who are ready for retirement probably will retire," a postal spokesman said. "It is being announced locally that the Postal Service will abide by Civil Service Commission standards and enable employes to bid for jobs in the new regional headquarters or in the new metropolitan and district offices."

West Marin Master Plan Nearly Buried

By WAT TAKESHITA

The West Marin Master Plan, which was forged in 1967 after a four-year controversy over density, was all but buried yesterday, with the blessing of a majority of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Other Marin Supervisors stories, page 7.)

In contrast with the storm that raged over density (.88 units per acre vs. 1.15 units per acre) in the summer of 1967, the announcement of its demise was accepted with only mild protest yesterday.

During yesterday's joint meeting between the supervisors and the Marin County Planning Commission, County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell announced the planning commissioners will reconsider the West Marin General Plan on June 14.

"The staff recommendation will be to drop the West Marin General Plan, said Von Gundell. "There are so many deficiencies in it that it would be more work to amend it than to give it a decent burial." Von Gundell said he is working on a countywide general plan that will take over the West Marin Plan.

Chairman Louis H. Baar put in a protest. "So much time was spent on the West Marin plan, and now we're going to beat this one to death. For what purpose?" he asked. "My suspicion is that it's make-work, to keep the staff working."

But Baar was outnumbered. "I think the West Marin plan

Bomb Plot Witness Loses Quash Motion

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—A federal judge ruled Wednesday evidence used to subpoena Leslie Bacon before a federal grand jury was legal—even if it included wiretaps — because Miss Bacon has not been charged with a crime.

U.S. District Judge George H. Boldt turned down a motion by the 19-year-old antiwar activist to quash the subpoena under which she has been detained as a "material witness" into radical bombings.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Antilitter Plan

NEW YORK (UPI) —In an effort to help clean up the nearly 70 billion metal containers discarded by consumers each year, four big can companies announced plans Tuesday for a national antilitter reclamation program based on civic responsibility more than economic gain.

The program backed by American Can. Co., National Can Corp., Continental Can Co. and Heekin Can. Co. is similar to a collection effort already in operation by the aluminum industry and several bottle companies.

The main difference will be that under the can program the litter collector will not be paid directly. The aluminum program pays cash on the basis of 10 cents a pound, or approximately 20 cans.

The can group plans to have more than 200 collection centers operating around the country by mid-June. They will collect all types of cans and pay selected local government agencies instead of the individual contributor.

Trudeau Vows Canada Action

Trudeau

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, in a letter released yesterday, said the Canadian government "would not hesitate" to use the War Measures Act again if necessary To control political violence.

"The government is retaining complete freedom of action," Trudeau said in a letter written last week to Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa. "It will be prepared to act at any time."

The War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16 for the first time in Canadian peacetime history. The act gave police extraordinary powers of search, detention and arrest without warrant during Canada's kidnap crisis. The act was replaced by temporary legislation which expired April 30.

Bourassa recently asked for permanent antiterrorist legislation which specifically would outlaw the radical separatist Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) and provide for use of strong police powers in future emergencies.

Pakistan Talks

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Pakistan President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan has started political talks with an East Pakistani leader in an apparent move to restore some sort of civil administration to the rebellious province.

Yahya Khan met with Nur-ul Amin, president of the East Pakistan National Democratic Party (NDP), in Rawalpindi Tuesday, according to Pakistan radio. They discussed political and economic questions the broadcast heard here said.

In summoning Amin, Yahya Khan ignored the Awami League party, which won 167 of the 169 parliamentary seats sloted to East Pakistan in the December elections. Failure of the National Assembly to meet following the elections touched off the rebellion in East Pakistan and one of the first actions of the government was to ban the Awami League.

Bird Tragedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Efforts to rescue birds caught in a San Francisco Bay oil spill may have been in vain, and even cruel, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says.

Of the 7,000 birds plucked from the bay last January, only about 300 still are alive and additional deaths are expected, the society's administrative assistant said in a magazine article released Tuesday.

Eugene Sander, the administrator, wrote in the SPCA's "Our Animals" that "at the present level of ability to treat oil-soaked birds, there might be far less suffering if all such birds were humanely euthanized at once."

His article estimated that no more than 3 per cent of the birds would survive despite large-scale efforts by the society and volunteers.

Destroying Germs

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Army this week began destroying a germ warfare stockpile it never used.

The germs, including cholera and bubonic plague, are housed in three buildings at the Pine Bluff Arsenal in Arkansas. The Army plans to kill them with fire, steam and sterilizers.

The United States began a formal germ warfare program in 1943 out of fear that Germany was developing similar weapons, and $726 million has been spent on the program since then. President Nixon in 1969 ordered an end to the project, saying this country would not use such weapons even in retaliation.

Anti-crop germs stored at other points around the country will be destroyed later. Nerve gas and other chemical weapons, however, will be maintained by the government.

A Cairo Blast

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt accused Israel today of rejecting its attempts to move toward peace in the Middle East, but added that it was keeping open its contacts with the United States.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today President Anwar Sadat, in a meeting with the nation's top military leaders Tuesday, said "we are maintaining our contacts with numerous parties, including the United States."

However, it quoted Sadat as saying, "Israel has rejected the Egyptian initiative."

Sadat's proposals for a partial Israeli withdrawal to allow reopening of the Suez Canal have bogged down over the question of whether Egyptian troops will be allowed to cross the waterway once the Israelis have pulled back.

Pacific Rowers Reported Safe But Radio Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rowers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook are "all right" after two weeks in the Pacific, but they aren't making much progress toward Australia.

The British adventurers, spotted 125 miles west of Santa Barbara Tuesday, told a freighter crew they were headed for an unscheduled stop in Los Angeles for "minor repairs" to a broken radio.

Crewmen communicated with the couple by "word of mouth" and radioed the Coast Guard that Fairfax and Miss Cook were "all right" but their radio was malfunctioning and they would pull into Los Angeles for repairs.

OBSERVES MOTHER'S DAY

Dona Estamalda Flores of Calexico, who lists her age at 147, celebrated Mother's Day on Monday, Mexico's official day of remembrance. She says she was born in Pengamo, Guanajuato in 1824. In the United States, Mother's Day is observed the second Sunday in May, which fell last Sunday. (UPI Telephoto)

Youth Barred For Hair Rescues Drowning Man

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) Steven Michaluk, 25, was barred from participating in a gymnastics demonstration Tuesday because of his long hair. Instead, he saved a life.

Michaluk accepted the decision without protest and decided to view the demonstration as a spectator.

He was driving from his home to the site of the demonstration when he saw a truck hit another vehicle and plunge through a guardrail into the White River.

Leaping from his car, Michaluk jumped into the cold water and swam to the sinking truck. He motioned for the driver to roll down his window, then extricated him from the vehicle and towed him to shore.

The driver, Raymond Houng, 75, was listed in satisfactory condition at General Hospital suffering shock.

Michaluk missed the athletic event.

Guatemalan Plane Crashes; Five Die

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI)— A Guatemalan DC3 airliner with 35 persons aboard crashed Tuesday while trying to make an emergency landing, killing five persons and injuring 18 others, aviation authorities said today.

Officials said the injured included an American identified as Charles Childress, hometown unknown. Four other Americans were on the flight. Their identities and conditions were not known.

Cut Smoking Enticement: Less Rent

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The manager of a 260-unit apartment complex is cutting by $10 a month the rent of tenants who quit smoking. She also has started renting her apartments to non smokers at $10 less a month than the rent charged smokers.

"That's saving $120 a year," Anita Maxfield said. "That's enough to buy something special and that doesn't take into account the money saved not buying cigarettes."

Mrs. Maxfield, the manager of the Sherry Park apartments, said she introduced the special non smoking rates during the weekend and there already have been results.

"We rented three apartments Sunday and had about 10 families come out to visit and had lots of phone call inquiries," she said.

She said the policy is good promotion for her apartments and it will cut maintenance costs.

"Cigarette smokers invariably burn holes in rugs and furniture," she said.

She claims to have received a number of pledges from smoking tenants to kick the habit.

Standards Asked On Boat Wastes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government today proposed marine waste treatment standards that would cost pleasure boat owners an estimated $200 to $300 each.

The standards, published in today's Federal Register by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), would require that human wastes discharged from boats meet the same secondary treatment standards prescribed for municipal wastes.

The EPA said the proposed standards would keep the water clean enough for swimming, even at crowded marinas. New boats would have to meet the standards in two years, and older boats three years later.

The EPA said it would consider any public comments submitted during the next 45 days before issuing final ruling on the standards.

The standards, required under the 1970 Water Quality Improvement Act, already have sparked controversy among pleasure boat owners and marina operators.

The EPA suggested two ways to meet the rule —boat holding tanks coupled with pump-out devices at marinas, or on-board treatment devices.

But the agency acknowledged that no practical on-board device has yet been developed for pleasure craft, and that few marinas are equipped to pump out holding tanks. Even those that could would have difficulty disposing of the accumulated wastes, an EPA spokesman said.

Richard Schwartz, executive director of the Boatowners Association of the United States said boat owners already were caught between the prospect of meeting future federal standards and the reality of existing rules imposed by several states.

"We boatowners are for on-board treatment, not holding tanks," Schwartz said. "Tanks are impractical."

Newly Formed Group Will Meet Tonight

The newly formed Adobe Community for Improvement of Our Neighborhood (ACTION) organization will meet at 8 p.m. today at La Tercera School to discuss problems of East Petaluma.

Group plans to upgrade schools, parks, libraries, medical facilities, police and fire departments will be discussed.

Hearings Set For 9 Draft Protesters

Protesting the war sometimes demands great sacrifice.

Wendi Anne Killins, 19, of Mill Valley, learned that yesterday from Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court who told her she was going to have to miss a class to appear in court next week.

Miss Killins, one of 37 demonstrators arrested last Wednesday at a sit-in at the San Rafael office of the U.S. Selective Service, appeared in Judge Smallman's court yesterday for arraignment, although she was not scheduled to be arraigned until today.

Smallman told her and two other demonstrators — Thomas Louis Oleari, 22, of Fairfax, and Robert Alan Le Blanc, 23, of San Rafael — who also appeared on the wrong day yesterday to return to court for arraignment next Tuesday.

The judge denied a request by Miss Killins's attorney, Robert M. Della Valle, for a court date other than next Tuesday because she had a class on that day.

Upon the judge's denial, Miss Killins left the courtroom and cried.

Nine of the demonstrators were arraigned yesterday on misdemeanor charges of failing to disperse and malicious obstruction of a public place.

Ordered to return to court to enter pleas next Wednesday were:

Steven John Loegerin, 19; James Gordon Digby, 22, and Ronald Keith Nichols, 32, all of Novato; Neil Lionel Edwards, 26, Michael Alan Glass, 18, and Kenneth John Cottrell, 23, all of Mill Valley; Richard Carol Sloan, 35, of Lagunitas; Michael Drew Mendelson, 25, of Berkeley, and Eric Signard Svenson, 20, of San Rafael.

Eleven more persons arrested in the demonstration were to be arraigned today. Seven will be arraigned tomorrow and six more next Tuesday.

Four others arrested were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall.

Tam CSD Takes Title To Acreage

Directors of the Tamalpais Community Services District last night accepted title to 11.5 acres of land formerly owned by the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club and immediately became embroiled in controversy over the property.

About 14 residents of the Marinview subdivision, adjacent to the land, appeared to ask that the land not be developed for recreation, but left as open space, director Ralph P. Kellogg reported. The improvement club donated the property to the services district for use as a park.

The services district board made no decision on the matter last night, but Kellogg noted the land is one of two parcels which the district's master plan designates as high use recreational areas.

The controversy arose, he said, because Allen-Marin, the subdivision's developer, has plans to build two tennis courts on the improvement club property and the residents say the developer had promised them the land would remain undeveloped.

The board also postponed action on the purchase of the 5.13 acre Eastwood property currently owned by the Mill Valley School District and the parcel which the services district plans to use for recreation.

The school district has offered to sell the land, at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue, for $66,500 and the services district had tentatively agreed to that price, Kellogg said.

But, before making a final decision on the purchase, Kellogg reported, the services district plans to apply for a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development which, he said, can provide a local agency with up to 50 per cent of the cost of land purchased for park use.

Panel Backs A Bigger Youth Count

The Marin County Youth Commission should have 10 youths and two adults instead of the present seven youths and four adults.

That was the unanimous decision of the youth commission, which met last night at the Boitano restaurant in Corte Madera.

The commissioners, headed by Paul M. Cohen of Mill Valley, will ask the Marin County Board of Supervisors to increase the youth membership on the commission to 10, two from each of the five supervisorial districts. The remaining two adults would come from the county parks and recreation commission and from the juvenile justice commission.

The Marin Youth Commission also:

HUMAN RIGHTS — Decided to ask the human rights commission to name a youth to fill its next vacancy.

JUVENILE NAMES — Invited editors of Marin County newspapers to attend the next meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in Room 332 of the Marin Civic Center, to discuss the pros and cons of publishing names of juvenile offenders.

MATCHING FUND — Received an application from Marin YMCA for county matching funds to start a job-referral service for teen-agers.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY — Decided to publicize the two vacancies that exist on the juvenile delinquency prevention commission so that youths will apply for the posts.

PLAN

stinks!" said Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

"We put priority on the countywide general plan," said John F. McInnis. "What we should emphasize now is the countywide general plan rather than the West Marin plan."

McInnis criticized Baar's "make-work" comment. He said dropping the West Marin plan and concentrating on the overall county general plan would save time and work.

After the meeting, Von Gundell explained to the Independent-Journal the major defects of the West Marin plan:

1. The density of 1.15 dwelling units per acre is far too high when compared with the general purpose of maintaining a rural atmosphere.

2. Too many high density developments such as apartments, shopping centers and schools are planned along the San Andreas fault.

3. Resort commercial and tourist facilities are envisaged in West Marin, but dense residential will hem in such development and stunt their growth.

The West Marin Master Plan was approved by supervisors 5-to-0 on July 11, 1967, after four years of controversy. The approved density was .88 units per acre, with a maximum of 1.15 units per acre attainable as a bonus for good design.

A week later, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen demanded that the density question be reopened. On Aug. 15, 1967, Kettenhofen, John F. McInnis and William A. Gnoss ordered county planners to open new hearings on the plan, raising the density to 1.15 units per acre. Supervisors Peter H. Behr and Thomas T. Storer fought to retain .88, but were outvoted.

Arrest In Coin Burglary Case

A 20-year-old Ross man was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of burglary of a San Rafael home Sunday, police reported.

Ross Sheffield Murphy, of 52 Loma Linda Road, Ross, was released on $1,500 bail. He was scheduled to appear at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported that Murphy attempted to sell 90 silver dollars to a local merchant yesterday. His fingerprints matched prints taken from the Wilbur F. Mathewson home at 47 Bret Harte Lane, San Rafael, where A coin collection was taken, police reported.

Medical Careers Session Friday

Marin high school students interested in medical careers will see first-hand what is involved at a special careers day from noon to 3 p.m. Friday at Ross General Hospital.

In observance of National Hospital Week, students from the county's eight high schools will tour the hospital, talk to nurses, dieticians, physical therapists and others in the medical profession, see medical displays and a movie, according to Marlys Cass, educational coordinator at Ross Hospital.

Last year's careers day introduced 125 students to hospital-related jobs, she said.

Letter Tells Shoot-Out's Alleged Plan

A letter purportedly written by San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee to his codefendant Angela Davis contends that the August shoot-out at the Civic Center was not an attempt to free the Soledad Brothers.

The purpose of the abortive kidnap-escape attempt, according to the letter, was to allow a group of San Quentin convicts to go to a "radio news station" to talk about a prison "conspiracy" against them.

A copy of the handwritten letter was reportedly smuggled out of the prison to a San Francisco Examiner reporter, who said the handwriting appeared to match that of court documents submitted by Magee.

(He and Miss Davis are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the shoot-out.)

Magee reportedly said in the letter that he and two convicts killed in the shootout were planning to "expose to the world the conspiracy between the California judicial and prison system murdering and enslaving innocent people . . ."

Miss Davis had nothing to do with the shoot-out, the letter said, but was being railroaded by the state, the courts and her "pig lawyers."

Status Of Toliver Is Clarified

The Sausalito School District has acknowledged special assistant James T. Toliver Jr. is a tenured, permanent employee and has dropped its attempt to fire him for cause as a probationary employee, Toliver's attorney A. Leonard Bjorklund announced today. (Another Toliver story, page 21)

Bjorklund said Toliver's status was clarified in a letter received today from Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, who handles legal matters for the school district.

If the school district still intends to try to remove Toliver for cause, Bjorklund said, the special assistant must be notified of that fact by Saturday, the deadline for notifying permanent employees they will not be rehired for 1971-72 school year.

Toliver was notified by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg in March that he was being dismissed for "incompetence," disruptive behavior" and "failure to accept administrative directives and suggestions." But, because the firing notice listed Toliver as a probationary employee, it is not valid in light of the district's recognition of his permanent status, Bjorklund said.

Toliver was also notified in March that his position was being cut as part of budget reductions and that he would not be reemployed next year. At present, Toliver is next in line to be rehired if any teaching personnel the district plans to keep next year do not return to their jobs or leave the district for any reason.

Lindberg could not be reached to comment on whether the district intends to pursue its plans to dismiss Toliver for cause.

Body Of Bridge Leaper Recovered

The body of a 59-year-old Palo Alto woman who leaped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge Yesterday was recovered a short time later by the Coast Guard.

The California Highway Patrol said Marian Alyce Clark stopped her car in the southbound lanes of the bridge at 10:10 a.m., ran across the sidewalk and climbed onto the railing.

Officers said two witnesses stopped their cars and slowly approached Mrs. Clark, but she jumped when they got about 10 feet from her.

A note in Mrs. Clark's car asked officers to call her physician so he could notify her husband.

Plea Set On Felony Counts

Robert Carl Maier, 18, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of car theft and battery against a peace officer, as well as a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

He is to plead to the charges next Wednesday.

Maier was arrested Sunday when San Rafael police investigated a one-car accident and found that the car was stolen.

ASIA

site. They knocked out five more 57-millimeter guns and five 37-millimeter guns, spokesmen said.

Until recently, when a few MIGs have been spotted over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, North Vietnam's limited supply of jet fighters have stuck close to home.

Before the U.S. strategic bombing halt of Nov. 30, 1968, they were kept busy fighting American aircraft over North Vietnam itself.

Since then they seldom have been seen. The last reported contact between American and North Vietnamese aircraft occurred more than a year ago, on March 28, 1970, when a U.S. Navy F4 Phantom jet shot down a MIG21 in a dogfight over North Vietnam.

MIGs have been spotted over the trail several times this year. On the last such occasion, April 23, U.S. planes chased a MIG over the border into North Vietnam and were fired on by Communist SAM missiles when the MIG flew straight over a SAM site.

This was the fourth such radar sighting of a MIG21 over Laos this year, in an area where North Vietnamese planes had not previously been seen. In each case the MIG21 made no attempt to attack, but turned and fled across the path of a known SAM2 battery in North Vietnam.

While the North Vietnamese have set up at least one SAM battery in Laos, there are at least 20 of them in the North Vietnam Panhandle, military sources say.

A MIG21 can be picked up on the radar scopes of American fighters when it flies within 30 miles of them. By keeping that distance it is well out of their firing range.

The heat-seeking Sidewinder missiles with which some Phantoms are armed have a range of only two miles. The radar-homing Sparrow missiles with which others are armed have a range of about eight miles. The range of the 20 millimeter cannon on the Phantoms is even less.

Mig21's are no match for Phantoms in air combat—the Phantoms can fly 14,000 feet higher and fly faster at ticklish low altitudes where control is more difficult. But the Mig21 has a maximum speed of better than twice the speed of sound, about the same as the Phantoms so Migs can keep their distance when Phantoms chase.

Phantoms or U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers escorting bombers over Laos or unarmed photo reconnaissance planes over North Vietnam normally are equipped with Shrike radar homing missiles, especially designed to suppress antiaircraft gun and missile fire.

But they must be well within Sam2 range before they can fire. Shrikes have a range of up to 15 miles, well short of Sam2 range. When a Navy pilot fired his shrikes at an attacking coastal SAM2 battery near Vinh in North Vietnam last winter, the Shrikes fell short into the sea.

To evade the SAM2s, which are exploded by a radio signal from the ground (command detonated), American pilots put their planes into tight turns which the missiles are unable to follow.

AF Sergeant In Pot Arrest

Sgt. George Milton Elsea, 26, of Barracks 707, Hamilton Air Force Base, was arrested yesterday by Novato police on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Officers said they stopped Elsea's car at Fairway Drive and Pensacola Court at 7:44 p.m. because it lacked a front license plate.

There was a brass water pipe on the floor and Elsea had three small bags of what appeared to be marijuana in his jacket pocket, police said.

Elsea was booked at Marin County Jail and bail was set at $1,000. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Charges Pending In Boat Case

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Leroy John Hooper, 32, and Daniel Dean Seitzinger, 25, both of Union City, who were arrested Sunday in connection with the theft of a boat from Richardson Bay.

The district attorney's office reported that no charge would be filed pending further investigation.

The two were taken into custody near the Alameda Naval Air Station Sunday by the Coast Guard after a Sausalito man discovered his sailboat missing from its mooring near Strawberry Point.

the San Anselmo post of the American Legion, said he spoke for the American Legion in saying "we're disgusted with the resolution you've put into effect.

"We fought for one flag and one flag only, and that's the American flag," he said.

Among flyers and pamphlets distributed last night by opponents of munidalization was one attacking the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) for "constantly choosing artists who have collaborated with Communist causes to design its Christmas cards."

Leach, Reed, Anderson and Stewart all defended mundialization, saying it was a symbolic action.

Stewart told the protesters that "the flag you refer to as a rag has the endorsement of the United States government" and that the U.N. flag is a "symbol of international cooperation."

Anderson said the mundialization action was based on the premise that "talking is better than fighting. We have to get along with the world."

As the discussion ended and the protestors filed out of the building, one woman who had sat muttering, "How stupid can you get?" almost every time she heard the word mundialization, snapped at the council, "We'll get you still."

Annual Catholic Charities Appeal Scheduled Sunday

The annual Catholic Charities appeal, called "Love Enough", will be held Sunday in Marin and other Bay Area counties.

Funds raised in the one-day drive will help support the Catholic Social Services Agency in Marin County, among other agencies. Marin agency, which hopes to obtain $50,000 from the drive, served nearly 10,000 persons last year with direct professional counseling. It's community service division conducted drug education programs and offers counseling services at Marin Catholic High School and College of Marin. It is also working on development of a 65-unit senior citizen residential complex.

Donations or pledges may be made Sunday at any Catholic church or at the center, 179 Los Ranchitos Road, Los Ranchitos.

Member Of Grand Jury Walks Out

A member of the new Marin County grand jury which returned its first indictments yesterday apparently walked out of the session because he doesn't believe in prosecuting convicts for escaping from San Quentin.

Sources said that James D. Kilty of San Anselmo, who is acting director of Marin Catholic Social Services, stayed outside a room in the Hall of Justice while his fellow jurors heard testimony in a San Quentin escape case.

The grand jury then returned an indictment against a prisoner who escaped for a brief time and was recaptured outside the prison earlier this year.

Kilty was not available today to comment on his views.

Marin County Superior Court judges this year attempted to appoint a wider cross-section of the county's population to the grand jury by asking for nominations from a wide variety of local organizations.

Petaluma City Hall Bid Taken

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Rapp Construction Co. of Santa Rosa was the apparent low bidder yesterday for construction of an addition to the Petaluma City Hall.

A base bid of $436,900 was submitted by Rapp Construction. Fostmeier Construction Co. submitted the same base bid, but submitted higher figures on alternate construction work.

The addition, which will be built parallel to the present city hall, had been estimated to cost $446,000. The new offices will provide additional space for the Southern Sonoma Municipal Court and other county offices. The present portion of the city hall now housing county offices will be turned over for use as additional city office space.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors took the bids under advisement and said a contract would be awarded next week.

OBITUARIES

Shugo Hasegawa, 92, of 461 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley, died yesterday at his home.

Death was due apparently to natural causes, according to the Marin county coroner.

A native of Japan, he moved to San Francisco, just after the 1906 earthquake. He worked as a cook all of his life, retiring 20 years ago. For the past two years he had made his home with his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Niki Noguchi of Mill Valley.

He is survived also by his wife, Haruno Hasegawa of Mill Valley and three grandchildren.

Private family service will be held tomorrow. Inurnment will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MABEL JOHNSON

Mabel A. Johnson, a Petaluma resident for 45 years, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of Point Reyes, she was reared and educated in Oakland. Mrs. Johnson attended Mills College.

She is survived by her husband, Charles; a daughter, Carol Stafford of Sacramento; a sister, Mrs. J. G. Platner of San Diego; a grandson and a great granddaughter.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel with private inurnment at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MRS. PIOLI

Amelia Pioli, 84, of 36 Maple Avenue, Fairfax, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in Italy and came to this country 50 years ago. She lived in San Francisco prior to moving to Fairfax 20 years ago.

She was a member of the Italian Catholic Federation Branch No. 1 Immaculate Conception.

She is survived by two daughters, Loretta Pioli of Fairfax and Anne Keegan of San Francisco; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A Requiem Mass will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday at Immaculate Conception Church, 3255 Folsom Street, San Francisco. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Duggan's Serra Mortuary, 500 Westlake Avenue, Daly City. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Cglma.

MRS. MANZONI

Funeral for Mary R. Manzoni, 66, of San Rafael will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Gantner-Felder-Kenny Funeral Home in San Francisco.

Mrs. Manzoni died Monday at a local hospital following a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, she came to San Rafael from Los Angeles last month with her husband, Lt. Col. Christian J. Manzoni, who is stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco. The couple were staying at the home of their son, Christian J. Manzoni Jr., 40 Calafia Court, and planned to buy a home in San Rafael.

Mrs. Manzoni had been employed years ago as a bookkeeper with a San Francisco firm.

Besides her husband and son, she is survived by a daughter, Felicita St. John of Palo Alto; a sister, Dorothy Caletti of Fairfax, and six grandchildren.

Burial will be at Alta Mesa Cemetery.

DEATH NOTICE

PIOLI — In San Rafael, May 11, 1971, Amelia Pioli, beloved wife of the late Nello Pioli; loving mother of Loretta Pioli, Anne Keegan and M. Robert Pioli; loving grandmother of Wilfred Keegan Jr., Judith Baumgartner, Linda and Carol Pioli two great-grandchildren, Elizabeth and Gregory Keegan; a native of Siena, Italy; aged 84 years; a member of the Italian Catholic Federation Branch No. 1 Immaculate Conception.

Friends may call after 7 p.m., Wednesday. Funeral, Friday.

Time announcement later. DUGGAN'S SERRA. (5/12)

Hub School Board Holds Closed Talks

The San Anselmo School District board met last night in closed session for three hours to discuss staff evaluations and the superintendent's contract, which expires in August.

According to Supt. W. Kenneth Lowry, the board took no action but set another closed session for tomorrow at 5 p.m. at Red Hill School.

The controversy arose, he said, because Allen-Marin, the subdivision's developer, has plans to build two tennis courts on the improvement club property and the residents say the developer had promised them the land would remain undeveloped.

The board also postponed action on the purchase of the 5.13 acre Eastwood property currently owned by the Mill Valley School District and the parcel which the services district plans to use for recreation.

The school district has offered to sell the land, at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue, for $66,500 and the services district had tentatively agreed to that price, Kellogg said.

But, before making a final decision on the purchase, Kellogg reported, the services district plans to apply for a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development which, he said, can provide a local agency with up to 50 per cent of the cost of land purchased for park use.

PLAN

stinks!" said Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

"We put priority on the countywide general plan," said John F. McInnis. "What we should emphasize now is the countywide general plan rather than the West Marin plan."

McInnis criticized Baar's "make-work" comment. He said dropping the West Marin plan and concentrating on the overall county general plan would save time and work.

After the meeting, Von Gundell explained to the Independent-Journal the major defects of the West Marin plan:

1. The density of 1.15 dwelling units per acre is far too high when compared with the general purpose of maintaining a rural atmosphere.

2. Too many high density developments such as apartments, shopping centers and schools are planned along the San Andreas fault.

3. Resort commercial and tourist facilities are envisaged in West Marin, but dense residential will hem in such development and stunt their growth.

The West Marin Master Plan was approved by supervisors 5-to-0 on July 11, 1967, after four years of controversy. The approved density was .88 units per acre, with a maximum of 1.15 units per acre attainable as a bonus for good design.

A week later, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen demanded that the density question be reopened. On Aug. 15, 1967, Kettenhofen, John F. McInnis and William A. Gnoss ordered county planners to open new hearings on the plan, raising the density to 1.15 units per acre. Supervisors Peter H. Behr and Thomas T. Storer fought to retain .88, but were outvoted.

Panel Backs A Bigger Youth Count

The Marin County Youth Commission should have 10 youths and two adults instead of the present seven youths and four adults.

That was the unanimous decision of the youth commission, which met last night at the Boitano restaurant in Corte Madera.

The commissioners, headed by Paul M. Cohen of Mill Valley, will ask the Marin County Board of Supervisors to increase the youth membership on the commission to 10, two from each of the five supervisorial districts. The remaining two adults would come from the county parks and recreation commission and from the juvenile justice commission.

The Marin Youth Commission also:

HUMAN RIGHTS — Decided to ask the human rights commission to name a youth to fill its next vacancy.

JUVENILE NAMES — Invited editors of Marin County newspapers to attend the next meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in Room 332 of the Marin Civic Center, to discuss the pros and cons of publishing names of juvenile offenders.

MATCHING FUND — Received an application from Marin YMCA for county matching funds to start a job-referral service for teen-agers.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY — Decided to publicize the two vacancies that exist on the juvenile delinquency prevention commission so that youths will apply for the posts.

Arrest In Coin Burglary Case

A 20-year-old Ross man was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of burglary of a San Rafael home Sunday, police reported.

Ross Sheffield Murphy, of 52 Loma Linda Road, Ross, was released on $1,500 bail. He was scheduled to appear at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported that Murphy attempted to sell 90 silver dollars to a local merchant yesterday. His fingerprints matched prints taken from the Wilbur F. Mathewson home at 47 Bret Harte Lane, San Rafael, where A coin collection was taken, police reported.

Medical Careers Session Friday

Marin high school students interested in medical careers will see first-hand what is involved at a special careers day from noon to 3 p.m. Friday at Ross General Hospital.

In observance of National Hospital Week, students from the county's eight high schools will tour the hospital, talk to nurses, dieticians, physical therapists and others in the medical profession, see medical displays and a movie, according to Marlys Cass, educational coordinator at Ross Hospital.

Last year's careers day introduced 125 students to hospital-related jobs, she said.

Letter Tells Shoot-Out's Alleged Plan

A letter purportedly written by San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee to his codefendant Angela Davis contends that the August shoot-out at the Civic Center was not an attempt to free the Soledad Brothers.

The purpose of the abortive kidnap-escape attempt, according to the letter, was to allow a group of San Quentin convicts to go to a "radio news station" to talk about a prison "conspiracy" against them.

A copy of the handwritten letter was reportedly smuggled out of the prison to a San Francisco Examiner reporter, who said the handwriting appeared to match that of court documents submitted by Magee.

(He and Miss Davis are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the shoot-out.)

Magee reportedly said in the letter that he and two convicts killed in the shootout were planning to "expose to the world the conspiracy between the California judicial and prison system murdering and enslaving innocent people . . ."

Miss Davis had nothing to do with the shoot-out, the letter said, but was being railroaded by the state, the courts and her "pig lawyers."

Status Of Toliver Is Clarified

The Sausalito School District has acknowledged special assistant James T. Toliver Jr. is a tenured, permanent employee and has dropped its attempt to fire him for cause as a probationary employee, Toliver's attorney A. Leonard Bjorklund announced today. (Another Toliver story, page 21)

Bjorklund said Toliver's status was clarified in a letter received today from Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, who handles legal matters for the school district.

If the school district still intends to try to remove Toliver for cause, Bjorklund said, the special assistant must be notified of that fact by Saturday, the deadline for notifying permanent employees they will not be rehired for 1971-72 school year.

Toliver was notified by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg in March that he was being dismissed for "incompetence," disruptive behavior" and "failure to accept administrative directives and suggestions." But, because the firing notice listed Toliver as a probationary employee, it is not valid in light of the district's recognition of his permanent status, Bjorklund said.

Toliver was also notified in March that his position was being cut as part of budget reductions and that he would not be reemployed next year. At present, Toliver is next in line to be rehired if any teaching personnel the district plans to keep next year do not return to their jobs or leave the district for any reason.

Lindberg could not be reached to comment on whether the district intends to pursue its plans to dismiss Toliver for cause.

Body Of Bridge Leaper Recovered

The body of a 59-year-old Palo Alto woman who leaped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge Yesterday was recovered a short time later by the Coast Guard.

The California Highway Patrol said Marian Alyce Clark stopped her car in the southbound lanes of the bridge at 10:10 a.m., ran across the sidewalk and climbed onto the railing.

Officers said two witnesses stopped their cars and slowly approached Mrs. Clark, but she jumped when they got about 10 feet from her.

A note in Mrs. Clark's car asked officers to call her physician so he could notify her husband.

Plea Set On Felony Counts

Robert Carl Maier, 18, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of car theft and battery against a peace officer, as well as a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

He is to plead to the charges next Wednesday.

Maier was arrested Sunday when San Rafael police investigated a one-car accident and found that the car was stolen.

ASIA

site. They knocked out five more 57-millimeter guns and five 37-millimeter guns, spokesmen said.

Until recently, when a few MIGs have been spotted over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, North Vietnam's limited supply of jet fighters have stuck close to home.

Before the U.S. strategic bombing halt of Nov. 30, 1968, they were kept busy fighting American aircraft over North Vietnam itself.

Since then they seldom have been seen. The last reported contact between American and North Vietnamese aircraft occurred more than a year ago, on March 28, 1970, when a U.S. Navy F4 Phantom jet shot down a MIG21 in a dogfight over North Vietnam.

MIGs have been spotted over the trail several times this year. On the last such occasion, April 23, U.S. planes chased a MIG over the border into North Vietnam and were fired on by Communist SAM missiles when the MIG flew straight over a SAM site.

This was the fourth such radar sighting of a MIG21 over Laos this year, in an area where North Vietnamese planes had not previously been seen. In each case the MIG21 made no attempt to attack, but turned and fled across the path of a known SAM2 battery in North Vietnam.

While the North Vietnamese have set up at least one SAM battery in Laos, there are at least 20 of them in the North Vietnam Panhandle, military sources say.

A MIG21 can be picked up on the radar scopes of American fighters when it flies within 30 miles of them. By keeping that distance it is well out of their firing range.

The heat-seeking Sidewinder missiles with which some Phantoms are armed have a range of only two miles. The radar-homing Sparrow missiles with which others are armed have a range of about eight miles. The range of the 20 millimeter cannon on the Phantoms is even less.

Mig21's are no match for Phantoms in air combat—the Phantoms can fly 14,000 feet higher and fly faster at ticklish low altitudes where control is more difficult. But the Mig21 has a maximum speed of better than twice the speed of sound, about the same as the Phantoms so Migs can keep their distance when Phantoms chase.

Phantoms or U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers escorting bombers over Laos or unarmed photo reconnaissance planes over North Vietnam normally are equipped with Shrike radar homing missiles, especially designed to suppress antiaircraft gun and missile fire.

But they must be well within Sam2 range before they can fire. Shrikes have a range of up to 15 miles, well short of Sam2 range. When a Navy pilot fired his shrikes at an attacking coastal SAM2 battery near Vinh in North Vietnam last winter, the Shrikes fell short into the sea.

To evade the SAM2s, which are exploded by a radio signal from the ground (command detonated), American pilots put their planes into tight turns which the missiles are unable to follow.

AF Sergeant In Pot Arrest

Sgt. George Milton Elsea, 26, of Barracks 707, Hamilton Air Force Base, was arrested yesterday by Novato police on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Officers said they stopped Elsea's car at Fairway Drive and Pensacola Court at 7:44 p.m. because it lacked a front license plate.

There was a brass water pipe on the floor and Elsea had three small bags of what appeared to be marijuana in his jacket pocket, police said.

Elsea was booked at Marin County Jail and bail was set at $1,000. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Charges Pending In Boat Case

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Leroy John Hooper, 32, and Daniel Dean Seitzinger, 25, both of Union City, who were arrested Sunday in connection with the theft of a boat from Richardson Bay.

The district attorney's office reported that no charge would be filed pending further investigation.

The two were taken into custody near the Alameda Naval Air Station Sunday by the Coast Guard after a Sausalito man discovered his sailboat missing from its mooring near Strawberry Point.

the San Anselmo post of the American Legion, said he spoke for the American Legion in saying "we're disgusted with the resolution you've put into effect.

"We fought for one flag and one flag only, and that's the American flag," he said.

Among flyers and pamphlets distributed last night by opponents of munidalization was one attacking the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) for "constantly choosing artists who have collaborated with Communist causes to design its Christmas cards."

Leach, Reed, Anderson and Stewart all defended mundialization, saying it was a symbolic action.

Stewart told the protesters that "the flag you refer to as a rag has the endorsement of the United States government" and that the U.N. flag is a "symbol of international cooperation."

Anderson said the mundialization action was based on the premise that "talking is better than fighting. We have to get along with the world."

As the discussion ended and the protestors filed out of the building, one woman who had sat muttering, "How stupid can you get?" almost every time she heard the word mundialization, snapped at the council, "We'll get you still."

Annual Catholic Charities Appeal Scheduled Sunday

The annual Catholic Charities appeal, called "Love Enough", will be held Sunday in Marin and other Bay Area counties.

Funds raised in the one-day drive will help support the Catholic Social Services Agency in Marin County, among other agencies. Marin agency, which hopes to obtain $50,000 from the drive, served nearly 10,000 persons last year with direct professional counseling. It's community service division conducted drug education programs and offers counseling services at Marin Catholic High School and College of Marin. It is also working on development of a 65-unit senior citizen residential complex.

Donations or pledges may be made Sunday at any Catholic church or at the center, 179 Los Ranchitos Road, Los Ranchitos.

Member Of Grand Jury Walks Out

A member of the new Marin County grand jury which returned its first indictments yesterday apparently walked out of the session because he doesn't believe in prosecuting convicts for escaping from San Quentin.

Sources said that James D. Kilty of San Anselmo, who is acting director of Marin Catholic Social Services, stayed outside a room in the Hall of Justice while his fellow jurors heard testimony in a San Quentin escape case.

The grand jury then returned an indictment against a prisoner who escaped for a brief time and was recaptured outside the prison earlier this year.

Kilty was not available today to comment on his views.

Marin County Superior Court judges this year attempted to appoint a wider cross-section of the county's population to the grand jury by asking for nominations from a wide variety of local organizations.

Petaluma City Hall Bid Taken

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Rapp Construction Co. of Santa Rosa was the apparent low bidder yesterday for construction of an addition to the Petaluma City Hall.

A base bid of $436,900 was submitted by Rapp Construction. Fostmeier Construction Co. submitted the same base bid, but submitted higher figures on alternate construction work.

The addition, which will be built parallel to the present city hall, had been estimated to cost $446,000. The new offices will provide additional space for the Southern Sonoma Municipal Court and other county offices. The present portion of the city hall now housing county offices will be turned over for use as additional city office space.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors took the bids under advisement and said a contract would be awarded next week.

OBITUARIES

Shugo Hasegawa, 92, of 461 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley, died yesterday at his home.

Death was due apparently to natural causes, according to the Marin county coroner.

A native of Japan, he moved to San Francisco, just after the 1906 earthquake. He worked as a cook all of his life, retiring 20 years ago. For the past two years he had made his home with his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Niki Noguchi of Mill Valley.

He is survived also by his wife, Haruno Hasegawa of Mill Valley and three grandchildren.

Private family service will be held tomorrow. Inurnment will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MABEL JOHNSON

Mabel A. Johnson, a Petaluma resident for 45 years, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of Point Reyes, she was reared and educated in Oakland. Mrs. Johnson attended Mills College.

She is survived by her husband, Charles; a daughter, Carol Stafford of Sacramento; a sister, Mrs. J. G. Platner of San Diego; a grandson and a great granddaughter.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel with private inurnment at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MRS. PIOLI

Amelia Pioli, 84, of 36 Maple Avenue, Fairfax, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in Italy and came to this country 50 years ago. She lived in San Francisco prior to moving to Fairfax 20 years ago.

She was a member of the Italian Catholic Federation Branch No. 1 Immaculate Conception.

She is survived by two daughters, Loretta Pioli of Fairfax and Anne Keegan of San Francisco; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A Requiem Mass will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday at Immaculate Conception Church, 3255 Folsom Street, San Francisco. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Duggan's Serra Mortuary, 500 Westlake Avenue, Daly City. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

MRS. MANZONI

Funeral for Mary R. Manzoni, 66, of San Rafael will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Gantner-Felder-Kenny Funeral Home in San Francisco.

Mrs. Manzoni died Monday at a local hospital following a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, she came to San Rafael from Los Angeles last month with her husband, Lt. Col. Christian J. Manzoni, who is stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco. The couple were staying at the home of their son, Christian J. Manzoni Jr., 40 Calafia Court, and planned to buy a home in San Rafael.

Mrs. Manzoni had been employed years ago as a bookkeeper with a San Francisco firm.

Besides her husband and son, she is survived by a daughter, Felicita St. John of Palo Alto; a sister, Dorothy Caletti of Fairfax, and six grandchildren.

Burial will be at Alta Mesa Cemetery.

Hub School Board Holds Closed Talks

The San Anselmo School District board met last night in closed session for three hours to discuss staff evaluations and the superintendent's contract, which expires in August.

According to Supt. W. Kenneth Lowry, the board took no action but set another closed session for tomorrow at 5 p.m. at Red Hill School.

DEATH NOTICE

PIOLI — In San Rafael, May 11, 1971, Amelia Pioli, beloved wife of the late Nello Pioli; loving mother of Loretta Pioli, Anne Keegan and M. Tam District Money Picture Is Bleak

A bleak financial picture has been forecast for the next four years for the Tamalpais High School District.

According to Frank A. Cassou, director of business services, the district's revenues for fiscal 1971-72 will be about $500,000 under expected operating costs of $9,548,805.

His figures, he told the district board Monday, include a 2 per cent increase in assessed valuation and are based on this year's operational tax rate of $1.84 per $100 assessed valuation. (The total tax rate is $2.235.)

If the district hikes its operating tax rate to the statutory maximum of $1.94, he said, the district will cut the deficit by about $100,000.

(The district board in February said it would not increase the tax rate above this year's level and indicated that it would like to drop the rate by 14 cents.)

During fiscal 1971-73, he said, the district can expect operating costs to climb to $10,173,805 but with revenues totaling only $9,890,000 at the maximum $1.94 rate.

Fiscal years 1973-74 and 1974-75 show budgets of $10,798,805 and $11,423,805 respectively and revenues totaling $10,355,000 and $10,830,000.

"The $625,000 increase (in operating costs) could be considered conservative," he said, adding that was the average increase during the last 10 years.

In projecting revenues, Cassou said he used the maximum tax rate and a 6 per cent per year assessed valuation growth rate.

Cassou said, after the meeting, the board will have to either cut school programs or dip into budget reserves to make up the deficit.

Other budget related information presented the board Monday included a comparative study between Tam and other districts of expenditures per student.

According to Cassou's figures, the district last year spent about $1,312 per student to lead the state as it has since 1966.

(The low in the state was $756 and the high — behind the Tamalpais district — was $1,284.)

This year, the Tamalpais district is expected to have a student cost figure of about $1,407.

The lion's share of that amount — $1019 — will go to salaries. Teachers have consistently been the second highest paid in the state. Last year, district administrators were the highest paid in the state.

More Fringe Benefits In Novato Teacher Bid

The Novato Teachers Association is seeking comprehensive health and welfare benefits for 1971-72 estimated to cost an additional $160,976.

The fringe benefits included in the association's negotiating platform would boost the health and welfare override tax about 18 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to John H. Enders, association president.

The teachers proposed that all full-time district employees be provided health and dental insurance, disability insurance and vision service at no cost to the employees.

The association's platform also proposed a series of educational changes including hiring male high school or college students to assist in boys physical education classes in primary grades.

This would provide masculine guidance for boys at the primary level, the association said.

Other educational proposals included that:

Reading specialists be hired for intermediate grades at three intermediate schools as a pilot project.

There be aides at each first grade in the district for three hours a day.

There be pre-testing of all kindergarten children this fall during the week before school opens.

Four additional speech and hearing specialists be hired in the district.

The primary class ratio be held at 25 pupils to one teacher, and counseling loads in the secondary schools be set at 300 students for each full-time counselor.

Regarding negotiations, the association called for hiring a mediator when there is an impasse, a recommendation made by a fact-finding committee hired by the association and the district.

The association also proposed that teachers be involved in interviewing and selecting candidates for district administrative jobs and administrative jobs at schools.

Petaluman Bound Over On Drug Count

Harry R. Cartwright, 22, of Petaluma, was bound over to Sonoma County Superior Court yesterday on charges of possession of marijuana for sale and possession of dangerous drugs.

Southern Sonoma Municipal Court Judge Alexander J. McMahon scheduled Cartwright to be arraigned May 25 in Superior Court. He was arrested April 8 when police entered his home at 808 Keokuk Street with a search warrant.

Picket Struck, Charges Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A petite blonde allegedly socked a picketing embalmer in the jaw outside her husband's funeral parlor Tuesday for "annoying a bereaved family."

The picket, Jim Pickin, immediately filed a battery complaint against Mrs. Diane Brown, wife of manager Ronald Brown of the Comisky-Roche Funeral home, one of two dozen city mortuaries involved in a strike-lockout since April 19.

Mrs. Brown said she hit Pickin with an uppercut because he was "annoying a bereaved family while a funeral service was in progress."

After the incident, the picket line moved to another mortuary under a rotational plan, a spokesman for the Mortuary Employes Union said.

Flood Fund Plan Studied

The Army Corps of Engineers has taken under study a request it pay for drainage improvement costs in Ross as part of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

According to Neil R. Brixon, chairman of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone board, the corps was asked to apply the same reasoning for financing Ross improvements that it used for financing the Tamalpais Creek project.

The flood control board and town officials estimate the cost of improving drainage at the Ross Common and along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about $350,000.

The Tamalpais Creek project, which erupted into controversy in 1969 when conservationists attempted to physically stop the project, was undertaken because the creek is a major drainage into Corte Madera Creek.

According to a corps spokesman, it will probably be another four months before a decision is reached whether to finance part of the Ross drainage improvements.

Families Of Victims Will Run Business

SEOUL (UPI)—The owners of a transportation company whose bus killed nearly 80 persons Monday in a crash decided today to turn over their business to the families of the victims.

The owners of Smail Transportation Co. reached the decision because they do not have enough property or cash to compensate relatives of the victims.

According to Neil R. Brixon, chairman of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone board, the corps was asked to apply the same reasoning for financing Ross improvements that it used for financing the Tamalpais Creek project.

The flood control board and town officials estimate the cost of improving drainage at the Ross Common and along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about $350,000.

The Tamalpais Creek project, which erupted into controversy in 1969 when conservationists attempted to physically stop the project, was undertaken because the creek is a major drainage into Corte Madera Creek.

According to a corps spokesman, it will probably be another four months before a decision is reached whether to finance part of the Ross drainage improvements.

Families Of Victims Will Run Business

SEOUL (UPI)—The owners of a transportation company whose bus killed nearly 80 persons Monday in a crash decided today to turn over their business to the families of the victims.

The owners of Smail Transportation Co. reached the decision because they do not have enough property or cash to compensate relatives of the victims.

More Fringe Benefits In Novato Teacher Bid

The Novato Teachers Association is seeking comprehensive health and welfare benefits for 1971-72 estimated to cost an additional $160,976.

The fringe benefits included in the association's negotiating platform would boost the health and welfare override tax about 18 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to John H. Enders, association president.

The teachers proposed that all full-time district employees be provided health and dental insurance, disability insurance and vision service at no cost to the employees.

The association's platform also proposed a series of educational changes including hiring male high school or college students to assist in boys physical education classes in primary grades.

This would provide masculine guidance for boys at the primary level, the association said.

Other educational proposals included that:

Reading specialists be hired for intermediate grades at three intermediate schools as a pilot project.

There be aides at each first grade in the district for three hours a day.

There be pre-testing of all kindergarten children this fall during the week before school opens.

Four additional speech and hearing specialists be hired in the district.

The primary class ratio be held at 25 pupils to one teacher, and counseling loads in the secondary schools be set at 300 students for each full-time counselor.

Regarding negotiations, the association called for hiring a mediator when there is an impasse, a recommendation made by a fact-finding committee hired by the association and the district.

The association also proposed that teachers be involved in interviewing and selecting candidates for district administrative jobs and administrative jobs at schools.

Petaluman Bound Over On Drug Count

Harry R. Cartwright, 22, of Petaluma, was bound over to Sonoma County Superior Court yesterday on charges of possession of marijuana for sale and possession of dangerous drugs.

Southern Sonoma Municipal Court Judge Alexander J. McMahon scheduled Cartwright to be arraigned May 25 in Superior Court. He was arrested April 8 when police entered his home at 808 Keokuk Street with a search warrant.

Picket Struck, Charges Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A petite blonde allegedly socked a picketing embalmer in the jaw outside her husband's funeral parlor Tuesday for "annoying a bereaved family."

The picket, Jim Pickin, immediately filed a battery complaint against Mrs. Diane Brown, wife of manager Ronald Brown of the Comisky-Roche Funeral home, one of two dozen city mortuaries involved in a strike-lockout since April 19.

Mrs. Brown said she hit Pickin with an uppercut because he was "annoying a bereaved family while a funeral service was in progress."

After the incident, the picket line moved to another mortuary under a rotational plan, a spokesman for the Mortuary Employes Union said.

'Hold The Line' Budget Examined

The San Rafael Board of Education last night took a look at what the district superintendent, John F. Plank, called a "hold the line" preliminary budget for 1971-72.

No salary schedule raise for district employees was included in the budget, but increased costs were mainly due to built-in salary increases, added maintenance costs and structural supplies, according to the business manager, Charles Condrotte. (The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting a 3.5 per cent salary schedule hike was included.)

No estimate was made of the tax rate but Plank said that taxpayers will receive higher bills next year if the budget passes.

The board took no action on the budget in which proposed costs for the elementary district would be $5,460,845 as compared to $5,432,834 estimated expenditure for this year. The proposed costs for the high school district would be $5,494,000 as compared to $5,277,545 for this year.

The board will discuss the budget further at a May 25 meeting and is scheduled to adopt a tentative budget in June.

Later in the evening the board heard a proposal from the American Federation of Teachers for which no cost estimate was given.

(The AFT represents a minority of the district's teachers.)

The teachers union, in a proposal described by James Dalrymple, asked that teachers start at a minimum of $7,500 a year with $550 annual increases up to 10 years. The proposal also asked that teachers receive $50 a year for each additional graduate unit.

Trustee Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. said that he was "not interested in handing out green stamps" for graduate units but he and other trustees agreed to study the proposal.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

PREPLACEMENT — Heard a request by Mrs. Jules Becker of the Juvenile Justice Commission that the board recommend to county supervisors that the Preplacement Center at Juvenile Hall be retained.

BOOKLET — Heard described a proposed parents' guide which the citizens' advisory committee has recommended. Willard Hall told the board the booklet would cost approximately $6,000 to produce and distribute to district families.

BIDS — Approved letting bids for a shop at Santa Venetia Middle School and improvements to the science and multiuse rooms there as well as a music room at Davidson School.

GRADUATES — Heard the results of surveys of 1967-68 graduates of Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools.

COMMITTEE — Appointed Marion Cedarblade, John Blecka and William Dunlap to fill vacancies on the citizens' advisory committee.

APPOINTMENTS — Hired Goetz Klopfer and Mark Manion as instructional aides at $2.50 an hour, and Emmaline Williams and Susan Williams as substitute bus drivers at $3.04 an hour.

TEACHERS — Hired Marilyn Shulman and Earl Thomason as teachers for parent effectiveness training courses in the adult education school at Terra Linda High School at $8 an hour.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Andrea Creel, an instructional aide; Alan Finley, driver education instructor; Margaret Moran, instructional aide; Harvey Murdock, Coleman School teacher; Patricia Stegall, substitute English teacher, and Edward Zemla, accounting supervisor.

LEAVES — Granted leaves of absence to Harry Holland, assistant principal at Bahina Vista School, and Joan deLorimer, physical education teacher at Davidson School.

CLOSED — Went into closed session to instruct Dr. Plant about salary negotiations as well as discuss appointment of a San Rafael High School principal.

Jury Acquits Draft Objector In Unusual Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A federal court jury acquitted a 21-year-old university student Tuesday of willful failure to register for the draft--and apparently made Selective Service history.

Court officials said the not guilty verdict was believed to be first ever in a failure to register case and only the 15th acquital in any Selective Service case since World War II.

Jefferey W. Mertens, a student at the University of California at Santa Barbara, was acquitted after 90 minutes deliberation by a U.S. District Court jury.

His attorneys had argued during a two-day trial that Mertens' draft board in Berkeley failed to follow its own regulations, which required it to register Mertens involuntarily. The student had appeared several times both before and after his 18th birthday to inform the board his conscience would keep him from registering.

Novato GI Is Wounded In Vietnam

Army Sp/5 Kevin Lawson, 21, of Novato, was wounded last week while serving in Vietnam, his mother reported yesterday.

Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lawson of 100 San Joaquin Place, was wounded May 3 when a truck in which he was riding was hit by rocket fire, Mrs. Lawson said.

In a telephone call from Japan, Lawson told his mother he was wounded in the right arm and leg by shrapnel, taken to an evacuation hospital and flown to a hospital near Tokyo.

Lawson, who entered the Army in June 1967, had been in Vietnam since September, and was home on leave in January. He is with the 589th Signal Company.

Liquid Natural Gas Bus Plans

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Liquid natural gas will be used in 24 buses in four cities as an experiment designed to eliminate smelly exhaust, it was announced Tuesday.

The 24-month experiment, sponsored by the National Transportation Center in Pittsburgh and the Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio, Tex., will use six buses in each of four cities — Pittsburgh, Seattle, Atlanta and San Antonio.

"Preliminary testing of liquid natural gas as a fuel was indicated the possibility of total elimination of smoke and odor," a spokesman said.

Painting Taken From Dominic's

An oil painting, valued at $700, was taken between 5:30 p.m. Monday and 10 a.m. yesterday from Dominic's Restaurant, 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police reported.

The 24-by-36-inch painting of trees and horses was signed by artist Schiefer, manager Mario J. Brenta told police.

Steven Liggett Beauty Salon had a convention at the restaurant the night the painting disappeared, Brenta told police.

Pair Of Feet Leads To Missing Convict

San Quentin guards yesterday spotted a pair of feet in a small crawl space in the prison furniture factory, and a 24-hour escape attempt by a convicted murderer ended.

Franklin S. Bowersox, 26, who was sentenced to life last year, had two oranges with him when guards enlarged the opening to the crawl space to get him out, according to Associate Warden James W. L. Park.

When asked where he had planned to go, Bowersox told guards, "Anywhere," Park said.

Bowersox disappeared Monday while working in the furniture factory and was found about 4 p.m., yesterday.

Park said that the convict, who was "a little stiff," after his stay in the cramped area, "was reacting to facing a life sentence."

"To a man his age, life looks a pretty long time," Park said.

Bowersox was convicted of killing a Santa Barbara police officer in 1970. His brother, Bruce, 33, is on Death Row for the shooting death.

Mrs. Grissom's Suit Tossed Out

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—A $5 million damage suit filed by the widow of astronaut Virgil (Gus) Grissom was dismissed in federal court Tuesday on grounds it was filed after the statute of limitations expired.

The suit by Betty Grissom, filed Feb. 18, charged North American Rockwell Corp. and several of its subsidiaries with negligence in the death of her husband in a launch pad fire at Cape Kennedy.

Grissom and fellow astronauts Edward White and Roger Chaffee were killed Jan. 27, 1967, when a fire flashed through their spacecraft trapping them inside.

Refuses Entry

BERLIN (UPI)—East Germany refused today to open the wall over the Whitsunday holiday weekend to allow family reunions for the first time in five years, the West Berlin city government said. Whitsunday is May 30.

13 Teachers Laid Off In Petaluma

The Petaluma Board of Education last night reluctantly advised 13 teachers they would not be rehired next school year, but expressed the hope that circumstances might change before September.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the termination of their jobs would be effective June 30. He said lack of funds forced some programs to be curtailed and teachers let go while in other cases the lower seniority teachers will be replaced by teachers returning from sabbatical leaves.

He said enrollment has remained static or has decreased and that the excess teachers cannot be placed in new classroom positions at this time. Meyer said it has not been determined exactly how much money will be saved by the cutbacks.

Board secretary Marion Beltzner said it is hoped that enough vacancies will occur through normal attrition so that the teachers can be reemployed.

The teachers included Dale Nelson, Donald Hanson, Michael Mejia, Mary Buck, Barbara Cochran, Claudia Dopkins, Jameanne Owen, Shirley Collins; Heidi McLaughlin, Jean Nelson, Alyce Woods, Ned Spina and Shirley Spina.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

MOBILITY—Signed an agreement with Marin County Schools, Napa County Schools, Novato School District and Santa Rosa School district to hire jointly a mobility training instructor to assist blind students in learning to walk through their communities without the aid of a dog. The program will be financed by the state.

BIDS—Scheduled bid opening for the new Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School on June 17.

PROPERTY—Agreed to exchange property at the Casa Grande school site with developer Arthur Condiotti so that property lines can be straightened. Less than one acre is involved.

Supervisors Approve Creation Of A Fourth Municipal Court

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the creation of a fourth municipal court in an attempt to cut into the growing backlog of cases.

Supervisors also agreed unanimously to discuss consolidation of the county's central and western judicial districts when budget sessions begin in June.

The fourth court would be opened Jan. 2 without consolidation and perhaps sooner with a merger of the districts, supervisors said.

If the districts are merged, said county Administrator Alan Bruce, the fourth judge would either hold court at the Civic Center in a new courtroom approved yesterday by supervisors or would travel a circuit.

Bruce said that under state law, creation of a fourth court within two years of a merger would require the board to appoint David R. Baty to the municipal bench.

Baty, a San Rafael resident, is an elected part-time judge of the West Marin Justice Court at Point Reyes. Station. He is a Democrat.

Bruce said the justice court has a proposed budget of $27,924 for the coming fiscal year and produces revenues estimated at $2,700. He estimated it would cost $180,000 to operate another court in the Hall of Justice.

Supervisors were told of the need for an additional court yesterday by presiding Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith, Public Defender Harold J. Truett, Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman, and Herbert K. Walton Jr., speaking for the Marin County Bar Association. Creation of a fourth court was unanimously approved by the bar at a meeting April 29.

Judge Smith told supervisors the court has "800 cases trailing on the criminal case calendar.'' He said that only one judge at a time can handle the criminal cases because of a heavy caseload of civil and misdemeanor cases.

Smith said the overload "brings on bargaining with attorneys."

William O. Weissich, San Rafael attorney and former district attorney, predicted an "utter collapse" of the court "in a week or two," and said many of the 800 criminal cases will result in dismissals.

Truett cited the case of one man who received a sentence shorter than the 30-days he spent in jail waiting for trial.

Smallman said the court will soon be treating defendants "like numbers."

In 1965 a grand jury special report recommended merger of the two districts with elimination of the West Marin Justice Court, claiming it would save taxpayers $7,000.

About 200 residents appeared at a meeting of supervisors the following April to urge retention of the court and supervisors voted to keep it open.

Panel To Narrow Field For Bloom's Successor

A new county fire chief to succeed retiring Chief Louis J. Bloom will be picked by the Marin County Board of Supervisors after a three-man panel has screened the nine men in the department.

Supervisors yesterday appointed the following to the screening panel: Charles Fairbank, deputy state forester; William R. Seeger, general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District; and Boyd Stewart, Olema rancher.

Supervisor chairman Louis H. Baar wanted outgoing Bloom to be a member of the screening panel, but he was outvoted 4 to 1.

The panel will screen the nine in the department who qualify and recommend three to supervisors for appointment.

The nine include two assistant chiefs, Harold S. Rowan and Richard Pedroli; training officer, Jerry Van Soest, and six captains.

Bloom, who reaches mandatory retirement age of 60 June 1, recommended Pedroli as successor.

The Marin County Board Of Supervisors Also:

ROAD MAINTENANCE — Approved a resolution calling for a June 29 election to raise $5,000 a year for maintenance of roads at Paradise Ranch Estates at Inverness.

AIRPORT RESURFACING — Called for bids for the estimated $39,000 resurfacing of runways at Gnoss Field.

SUICIDE SALE — Approved Saturday's white elephant sale to raise funds for the suicide prevention center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of the Old Courthouse in San Rafael.

ROAD ADOPTION — Adopted the official listing of county maintained roads submitted for approval by the Marin Department of Public Works.

LANDSCAPING — Approved a joint powers agreement between the Marin Department of Public Works and San Rafael for maintenance of landscaping on South San Pedro Road for the coming fiscal year at a cost of $5,620.

SUBDIVISION ANNEXATION — Approved an agreement between Novato and the public works department to allow subdivision improvement to begin prior to completion of annexation to the city.

CEASE SUPPLEMENTATION — Voted to cease residual supplementation in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The state has decided to increase its contributions to the county at an $11,000 annual saving to residents.

WIDENING STRIP — Voted acceptance by Novato of a 15-foot widening strip along Sutro Avenue for public roadway.

HELICOPTER — Referred to the public works department for further review a proposal to increase fees collected from SFO Helicopter Airlines from 25 cents to 33 cents with 10 cents in either case to be retained by the county and balance to heliport land owner Don McCoy Co.

BCDC COMPLAINT — Heard Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo complain that the Bay Conservation and Development Commission had an obligation in rejecting plans — such as Paul J. Broman's 96-unit Strawberry Cove apartments — to provide guidelines on what is acceptable. Supervisors agreed and instructed county staff to meet with BCDC staff to see if better coordination could be achieved.

Marin Assured On Medi-Cal Tab

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and other counties can rest assured that they will not be burdened with bigger Medi-Cal and welfare costs this year.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley and State Sen. Peter H. Behr, both San Rafael Republicans, gave that assurance to Marin County supervisors, who went to Sacramento yesterday to plead for tax relief. (Another Marin supervisors story, page 1)

"This Legislature is not going to stand for any shift of welfare or Medi-Cal cost to counties, even if we have to include a hold harmless clause," declared Bagley. A "hold harmless" clause would insure that state welfare reforms will not increase the cost to counties.

Behr agreed that sentiment in the Senate is to protect counties from any further financial burdens.

The other major concern of the Marin supervisors — the cost of security and the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee trial — did not get a clear-cut answer. But Bagley and Behr promised to approach the problem from various angles, including a survey to see if San Quentin should be moved out of Marin.

"We're dealing with something that is statewide and nationwide, and Marin is paying the tab," complained Louis H. Baar, chairman of the Marin supervisors. "It just doesn't seem equitable that Marin should bear the brunt of the cost."

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella and Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell gave these figures on anticipated extra cost this year:

Cost of the Davis-Magee trial and building securtiy will add about 12 cents to the basic county tax rate. Higher insurance costs will add another six cents. Welfare caseload increases and the expected shift of welfare and Medi-Cal costs will add another 33 cents.

These plus salary raises and other inflationary costs are expected to shoot the basic county tax rate from this year's $2.575 to $3.23 or more.

Assemblyman Bagley and Marin officials discussed these possible countermoves:

1. Assemblywoman Pauline Davis, D-Portola, has introduced a bill that would require the state to pay for any cost of a major trial that exceeds what can be raised by five cents on the tax rate. In Marin, that would mean any major trial that costs over $350,000.

The success of this bill will depend on whether the governor gives it the green light, said Bagley.

2. Section 4700 of the state Penal Code provides for state reimbursement of costs stemming from escapes from state prison. "We believe the Davis-Magee case comes under Section 4700, but the state attorney general has not yet ruled on that," said Marin County Counsel, Douglas J. Maloney. If the case keeps dragging out in legal maneuvers, the cost could run as high as $2 million, said Maloney.

If the attorney general's ruling is unfavorable, Bagley declared he will introduce a special bill to get reimbursement for Marin.

3. Bagley said he has asked the state's legislative analyst, A. Alan Post, to prepare a preliminary report on the desirability of closing San Quentin Prison on the basis of economic inefficiency. "I also want to make sure that no new capital improvements at the prison are included in this year's budget."

After a two-hour meeting in Bagley's office, Marin's five supervisors had dinner with Bagley and representatives from the governor's office, departments of finance and corrections and the California Supervisors Association.

Supervisors Approve Creation Of A Fourth Municipal Court

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the creation of a fourth municipal court in an attempt to cut into the growing backlog of cases.

Supervisors also agreed unanimously to discuss consolidation of the county's central and western judicial districts when budget sessions begin in June.

The fourth court would be opened Jan. 2 without consolidation and perhaps sooner with a merger of the districts, supervisors said.

If the districts are merged, said county Administrator Alan Bruce, the fourth judge would either hold court at the Civic Center in a new courtroom approved yesterday by supervisors or would travel a circuit.

Bruce said that under state law, creation of a fourth court within two years of a merger would require the board to appoint David R. Baty to the municipal bench.

Baty, a San Rafael resident, is an elected part-time judge of the West Marin Justice Court at Point Reyes Station. He is a Democrat.

Bruce said the justice court has a proposed budget of $27,924 for the coming fiscal year and produces revenues estimated at $2,700. He estimated it would cost $180,000 to operate another court in the Hall of Justice.

Supervisors were told of the need for an additional court yesterday by presiding Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith, Public Defender Harold J. Truett, Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman, and Herbert K. Walton Jr., speaking for the Marin County Bar Association. Creation of a fourth court was unanimously approved by the bar at a meeting April 29.

Judge Smith told supervisors the court has "800 cases trailing on the criminal case calendar.'' He said that only one judge at a time can handle the criminal cases because of a heavy caseload of civil and misdemeanor cases.

Smith said the overload "brings on bargaining with attorneys."

William O. Weissich, San Rafael attorney and former district attorney, predicted an "utter collapse" of the court "in a week or two," and said many of the 800 criminal cases will result in dismissals.

Truett cited the case of one man who received a sentence shorter than the 30-days he spent in jail waiting for trial.

Smallman said the court will soon be treating defendants "like numbers."

In 1965 a grand jury special report recommended merger of the two districts with elimination of the West Marin Justice Court, claiming it would save taxpayers $7,000.

About 200 residents appeared at a meeting of supervisors the following April to urge retention of the court and supervisors voted to keep it open.

Panel To Narrow Field For Bloom's Successor

A new county fire chief to succeed retiring Chief Louis J. Bloom will be picked by the Marin County Board of Supervisors after a three-man panel has screened the nine men in the department.

Supervisors yesterday appointed the following to the screening panel: Charles Fairbank, deputy state forester; William R. Seeger, general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District; and Boyd Stewart, Olema rancher.

Supervisor chairman Louis H. Baar wanted outgoing Bloom to be a member of the screening panel, but he was outvoted 4 to 1.

The panel will screen the nine in the department who qualify and recommend three to supervisors for appointment.

The nine include two assistant chiefs, Harold S. Rowan and Richard Pedroli; training officer, Jerry Van Soest, and six captains.

Bloom, who reaches mandatory retirement age of 60 June 1, recommended Pedroli as successor.

The Marin County Board Of Supervisors Also:

ROAD MAINTENANCE — Approved a resolution calling for a June 29 election to raise $5,000 a year for maintenance of roads at Paradise Ranch Estates at Inverness.

AIRPORT RESURFACING — Called for bids for the estimated $39,000 resurfacing of runways at Gnoss Field.

SUICIDE SALE — Approved Saturday's white elephant sale to raise funds for the suicide prevention center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of the Old Courthouse in San Rafael.

ROAD ADOPTION — Adopted the official listing of county maintained roads submitted for approval by the Marin Department of Public Works.

LANDSCAPING — Approved a joint powers agreement between the Marin Department of Public Works and San Rafael for maintenance of landscaping on South San Pedro Road for the coming fiscal year at a cost of $5,620.

SUBDIVISION ANNEXATION — Approved an agreement between Novato and the public works department to allow subdivision improvement to begin prior to completion of annexation to the city.

CEASE SUPPLEMENTATION — Voted to cease residual supplementation in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The state has decided to increase its contributions to the county at an $11,000 annual saving to residents.

WIDENING STRIP — Voted acceptance by Novato of a 15-foot widening strip along Sutro Avenue for public roadway.

HELICOPTER — Referred to the public works department for further review a proposal to increase fees collected from SFO Helicopter Airlines from 25 cents to 33 cents with 10 cents in either case to be retained by the county and balance to heliport land owner Don McCoy Co.

BCDC COMPLAINT — Heard Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo complain that the Bay Conservation and Development Commission had an obligation in rejecting plans — such as Paul J. Broman's 96-unit Strawberry Cove apartments — to provide guidelines on what is acceptable. Supervisors agreed and instructed county staff to meet with BCDC staff to see if better coordination could be achieved.

Hub Council Ruffled By Demand It Contribute To Creek Upkeep

That concrete channel called the Corte Madera flood control project was under attack again last night.

The San Anselmo City Council was griping that San Anselmo is being asked to contribute to the maintenance of the channel which, councilmen said, has no effect in San Anselmo and about whose design San Anselmo was allowed to say nothing. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1)

"We've been placed in a position where you're not going to help us, but we have to help you," Councilman James F. Reed told Charles E. Murphy, Marin County Flood Control Engineer.

Murphy said he had been asked to appear before the council by the Ross Valley Flood Control District Advisory Board after the council on April 13 rejected an amendment to a 1965 joint powers agreement with the flood control district.

Fairfax and San Anselmo refused to join the flood control district, although the two cities comprise 20 per cent of the Ross Valley watershed and contribute proportionately to Corte Madera Creek flooding, Murphy said.

He advised the council to retain the joint powers agreement on the grounds that "those who contribute to the problem should contribute to the mianteance."

But, under questioning by Reed, Murphy agreed that the concrete channel downstream from San Anselmo had "little or no" effect on San Anselmo flooding.

And City Atty. John G. Buresh confirmed Reed's contention that downstream properties legally must accept upstream waters, and thus San Anselmo was in no way responsible for what happened to water once it left the city.

Murphy advanced the propouitions that the downstream creek work will benefit San Anselmo when San Anselmo is ready to do its own flood control work and that the whole creek is the responsibility of everyone along it.

Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro said San Anselmo never joined the flood control district because it didn't want the "concrete ditch and chain link fence," but he agreed with Murphy that "the whole creek is everybody's concern."

Some sort of solution may have been found when Murphy agreed to explore the possiblity of working out a maintenance program that would be acceptable to the council. Such a program, Councilman Warren R. Perry suggested, would be one whereby San Anselmo's maintenance money went for work on the San Anselmo portion of the creek.

Berkeley Council Votes Out Pledge Of Allegiance

BERKELEY (UPI) —The new members of the Berkeley City Council have voted to discontinue the Pledge of Allegiance at their meetings.

The decision to drop the flag pledge came on a 5-3 vote Tuesday night with Mayor Warren Widener and the four new councilmen, including three members of a radical "April Coalition" voting against opening meetings with the flag salute.

At their first council meeting last week, the three radicals refused to give the pledge while the other five stood and recited it. Widener and Edward Kallgren, a moderate elected last month, took the pledge last week but voted for its discontinuance.

The radicals said they wouldn't take the pledge because there was no "justice for all" in the United States.

The mayor and radical councilmen failed later Tuesday night in an effort to have the city adopt a "People's Peace Treaty" with North Vietnam. The vote was four in favor three against and one abstention with five ayes needed for passage.

Kallgren cast the deciding vote after saying he favored city concern over the war, but could not "ignore what this specific treaty says." He favored a weaker antiwar measure which was defeated two to five when Widener and the "April Coalition" councilmen voted no on grounds it wasn't strong enough.

Marin Suicide Prevention Center Inc. announced today it had erred in classified ads placed last week in the Independent-Journal announcing the location of a white elephant sale to be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

The sale will be held in front of the Old Courthouse on Fourth Street in San Rafael not the Marin County Civic Center as advertised.

San Anselmo To Trade Funds With Fairfax In Unusual Deal

A fancy piece of financial footwork is going to have San Anselmo trade $11,250 in state funds for $15,000 in federal funds with Fairfax.

Fairfax, which appears to be losing $3,750 in the deal, will actually gain $11,250, the San Anselmo City Council was told last night.

The council approved the funds exchange, proposed in a letter from Fairfax City Administrator Robert E. Crowe.

In his letter, Crowe said Fairfax has been allotted $15,000 from a federal fund designed specifically for traffic control projects.

Since Fairfax does not have a $15,000 traffic control project, and can't use the money for anything else, it is willing to trade the federal funds for $11,250 of San Anselmo's share of state gas tax funds, whose permitted uses are not so limited.

San Anselmo will use the federal funds toward its signalization project on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The San Anselmo council approved the trade by a 4-1 vote. Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro dissented, angry at Fairfax's refusal to assist San Anselmo with a portion of the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard project.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

LIBRARY—Authorized the San Anselmo Library Board to enter into a one-year reciprocal agreement between the San Anselmo Library and the Marin County Library for an exchange of patron services.

PARK—Set a joint meeting with the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission to discuss fees and permitted uses at Robson-Harrington Park for 8 p.m. May 20.

POLICE—Listened to a proposal for life insurance, salary increase, longevity pay and uniform allowance for San Anselmo police by James Martin MacInnis, an attorney for the San Anselmo Police Officers Association. There was no discussion and Mayor Kenneth L. Anderson said the council would respond through its negotiators.

ORDINANCE—Introduced an ordinance providing for the removal of abandoned or inoperative vehicles from private and public property.

APPOINTMENT—Named Deputy Marin County Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, a San Anselmo resident, to the city's streets and traffic committee.

ANIMALS—Directed City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel to form a committee from a list of persons who have expressed interest in a proposed ordinance regulating the keeping of large animals, such as horses, in San Anselmo. The committee is to make recommendations on the ordinance proposal to the council.

MEETING—Adjourned to 8 p.m. next Tuesday for a joint meeting with the Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District Board to discuss city services to the unincorporated area.

All sporty cars look pretty much the same, cost pretty much the same, and act pretty much the same.

Except the 1980 looking Javelin.

The original idea of the sporty car was to give you a car with some individuality..

But lately, all the sporty cars are looking pretty much alike.

So, at American Motors, we went all-out to make our Javelin a really different-looking car. Even at the risk of scaring some people off.

The fenders rise and fall in an aerodynamic whoosh around the tires.

The grill and hood slope to a canopy roof with a rear spoiler lip.

And on the inside, the smooth racy feeling of the outside carries through. The "cockpit" instrument panel. The high-back buckets in vinyl or optional fabric or leather.

But not only did we make the Javelin look good, we made it drive good. It's longer, lower, and wider for a smoother ride. The steering ratio is quicker and the suspension is tougher for faster, tighter cornering.

And to make the Javelin really go like it looks, we've got engines from a base 6 all the way up to an optional 401 cubic inch V8. Which are available in all the Javelin models: the Javelin; the luxurious Javelin SST; and the brawny Javelin AMX, the car Trans-Am race driver Mark Donohue helped us design.

All in all, we've achieved one very important thing with the new Javelin:

Before, you were stuck with the choice of, 1) getting a sporty car that looked like all the others, or 2) spending a lot of money for one that looked different.

Now you're not.

That concrete channel called the Corte Madera flood control project was under attack again last night.

The San Anselmo City Council was griping that San Anselmo is being asked to contribute to the maintenance of the channel which, councilmen said, has no effect in San Anselmo and about whose design San Anselmo was allowed to say nothing. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1)

"We've been placed in a position where you're not going to help us, but we have to help you," Councilman James F. Reed told Charles E. Murphy, Marin County Flood Control Engineer.

Murphy said he had been asked to appear before the council by the Ross Valley Flood Control District Advisory Board after the council on April 13 rejected an amendment to a 1965 joint powers agreement with the flood control district.

Fairfax and San Anselmo refused to join the flood control district, although the two cities comprise 20 per cent of the Ross Valley watershed and contribute proportionately to Corte Madera Creek flooding, Murphy said.

He advised the council to retain the joint powers agreement on the grounds that "those who contribute to the problem should contribute to the miantenance."

But, under questioning by Reed, Murphy agreed that the concrete channel downstream from San Anselmo had "little or no" effect on San Anselmo flooding.

And City Atty. John G. Buresh confirmed Reed's contention that downstream properties legally must accept upstream waters, and thus San Anselmo was in no way responsible for what happened to water once it left the city.

Murphy advanced the propouitions that the downstream creek work will benefit San Anselmo when San Anselmo is ready to do its own flood control work and that the whole creek is the responsibility of everyone along it.

Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro said San Anselmo never joined the flood control district because it didn't want the "concrete ditch and chain link fence," but he agreed with Murphy that "the whole creek is everybody's concern."

Some sort of solution may have been found when Murphy agreed to explore the possiblity of working out a maintenance program that would be acceptable to the council. Such a program, Councilman Warren R. Perry suggested, would be one whereby San Anselmo's maintenance money went for work on the San Anselmo portion of the creek.

Santa Cruz Beach Outing Set May 22

A trip to Santa Cruz beach and boardwalk on May 22, for seventh and eighth grade students in the city of San Rafael will be sponsored by the Junior Hi Youth Club of San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department.

Chartered buses will leave the Community Recreation Center, 1011 Fifth Avenue, at 9 a.m. for Davidson Junior High Students and 8:30 a.m. at Vallecito Junior High School for those students. Reservations must be made by Friday at the Parks and Recreation Department.

All sporty cars look pretty much the same, cost pretty much the same, and act pretty much the same.

Except the 1980 looking Javelin.

The original idea of the sporty car was to give you a car with some individuality..

But lately, all the sporty cars are looking pretty much alike.

So, at American Motors, we went all-out to make our Javelin a really different-looking car. Even at the risk of scaring some people off.

The fenders rise and fall in an aerodynamic whoosh around the tires.

The grill and hood slope to a canopy roof with a rear spoiler lip.

And on the inside, the smooth racy feeling of the outside carries through. The "cockpit" instrument panel. The high-back buckets in vinyl or optional fabric or leather.

But not only did we make the Javelin look good, we made it drive good. It's longer, lower, and wider for a smoother ride. The steering ratio is quicker and the suspension is tougher for faster, tighter cornering.

And to make the Javelin really go like it looks, we've got engines from a base 6 all the way up to an optional 401 cubic inch V8. Which are available in all the Javelin models: the Javelin; the luxurious Javelin SST; and the brawny Javelin AMX, the car Trans-Am race driver Mark Donohue helped us design.

All in all, we've achieved one very important thing with the new Javelin:

Before, you were stuck with the choice of, 1) getting a sporty car that looked like all the others, or 2) spending a lot of money for one that looked different.

Now you're not.

LBJ Tells Of Soviet's '67 Threat

NEW YORK (UPI) —Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said Tuesday that near the end of the 1967 six-day Mideast War he received a message from Soviet Premier Alexsei Kosygin threatening military intervention if Israel did not stgp operations.

Johnson said he ordered the U.S. Sixth Fleet moved closer to the Syrian coast, where fighting continued, in case the Russians intervened, but the war ended before the Soviets could get involved.

Johnson made the comments in an interview with Mike Wallace on CBS' "60 Minutes" telecast Tuesday night.

The hotline call from Kosygin came about 8 a.m. June 10, 1967. Johnson said the message said the Soviet Union would take "necessary actions including military" within a few hours unless Israel unconditionally halted military operations.

Israel and Egypt had gone to war June 5 and the Israelis were still fighting Syria at the time.

Johnson said Ambassador-at-large Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr. was asked to make sure the translation included the word "military" and when assured it did, the president ordered the Sixth Fleet to 50 miles off the Syrian coast. The fleet usually stays at least 100 miles away.

"Of course, every man in that room knew, and all the leaders of the Soviet Union knew that every movement of that fleet was being monitored by the Soviet Union," Johnson said.

Good News Singers To Perform Tomorrow

The Good News Singers, a Christian folk group from Castle Air Force Base, Merced County, will sing at the Novato United Methodist Church at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The group, directed by Sgt. Steven Norberg, is composed of 10 young adults.

Delay For Lot Plan In Southern Heights

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night postponed until May 25 consideration of a three lot subdivision on Southern Heights Boulevard.

The vote was 4-0 with Commissioners Thomas R. O'Toole, Alan M. Kay and Jorgen V. Lunding absent.

Postponement was requested by several members of the Bret Harte Heights Association becaused a general meeting of the association scheduled for next Wednesday.

Douglas Chambers of 11 Southern Heights objected to the subdivision as requested by Sheldon Brandenburger because it would mean bulldozing trees and cutting through an old rock wall on his property.

James M. Fletcher of 295 Bret Harte Road, Brandenburger's attorney, said he was surprised at Chambers' objection because they had an agreement for a road easement over his property in return for Chambers keeping his septic tank and leaching field on the Brandenburger property.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner said that the staff would like more time to study an alternate proposal to make two lots instead of three in the subdivision.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

WAREHOUSE—Granted a use permit and architectural approval for 16,224 square foot warehouse to W and N Enterprises for 155 Larkspur Street.

MEDICAL ADDITION—Gave architectural approval to a 1,500 square foot addition as a second story office to the Medical Clinic at 1540 Fifth Avenue to San Rafael Physicians Building Corp.

SUBDIVISION—Approved subdividing a lot at 50 Belvedere Street into two 16,000 square foot lots for Christine Ghilotti. The commission also gave a use permit for a 700 square foot showroom, 800 square foot office and 7,000 square foot warehouse in a building on one of the lots.

LANDSCAPING — Approved plans for landscaping around an office trailer at 2031 Francisco Boulevard for Bresnan-Dalecio Inc.

POSTPONED—Postponed indefinitely consideration of a six-car parking lot for an adjacent apartment house at 233 Southern Heights Boulevard for Charles Freeman and until May 25, consideration of plans to remodel a fire damaged building at 1017 D Street for Rolfe Croker.

SIGN—Denied Standard Oil Co. of California a freestanding sign at 871 Francisco Boulevard. This was done with the understanding that new plans would be submitted.

CHICKENS — Overrode the planning director's recommendation that John L. Moller not be permitted to keep two leghorn hens at 1442 Nye Street. This was by a 3-1 vote with Commissioner James Dougan against. T. A. Fraize of 1444 Nye Street objected to the noise and odor so close to his house.

MEETING—Requested that a meeting be held between the city council, planning commission, planning director and city manager to discuss the animal control ordinance.

Quake Session Set In San Francisco

WASHINGTON (UPI) —An international conference on reducing the hazards of earthquakes to people and property will be held in San Francisco May 20-25.

The meeting, with the United States as chief sponsor, is expected to attract about 170 seismologists, scientists, engineers, disaster experts and other specialists from at least 18 nations.

Famous Sculptor Dies In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — All newspapers have reported the death of unspecified causes of Ekaterina F. Belashova, Russia's most famous sculptress. She was 65.

A lengthy obituary was signed by Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist party, and other members of the Politburo and leading Soviet intellectuals.

She was president of the artists' union, and a member of the Academy of Arts.

Mrs. Mellon To Wed Briton

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mrs. Constance Prosser Mellon, widow of financier and civic leader Richard King Mellon, plans to marry an Englishman this summer.

She will be wed to Peter E. Burrell, Newmarket, England. Burrell for more than 30 years has been director of the National Stud of the United Kingdom, an organization devoted to improving the breeding of horses. He plans to retire this year.

The engagement was announced Tuesday by Richard K. Mellon & Sons.

Mount Etna Lava Threatens A Village

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Lava boiled from a new fissure on the slopes of Europe's tallest volcano — Mount Etna — today and flowed to within one mile of a villabe damaged by eruptions in 1950. Officials expressed concern for villagers.

The village, with a population of 2,000 persons, was one of four evacuated and damaged by lava in 1950.

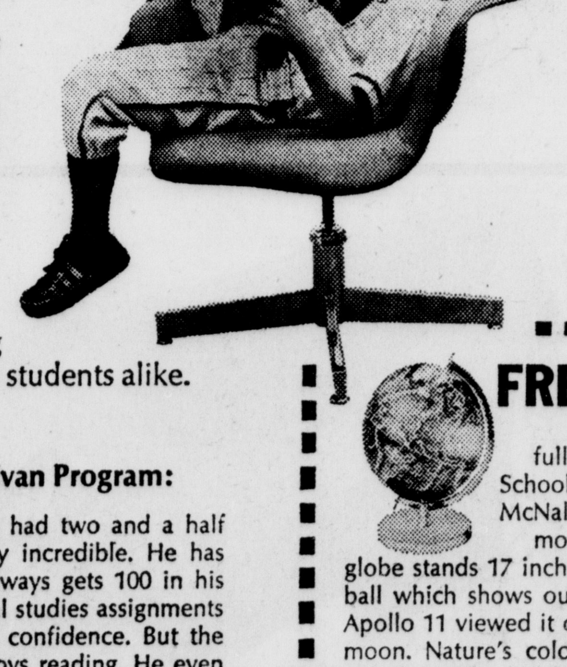
Here's a summer school that won't interfere with vacation plans.

If your child does not show the interest in school that you would like to see or, if your child would like to take a step ahead; enroll him now in the Sullivan Reading Center Summer School. The Center offers accelerated learning programs in math and reading using the highly successful Sullivan programmed teaching methods.

Reading Your child will work at his own personal level of understanding. If he finds a difficult sound, the instructor comes immediately to his aid, and works with him until the material is fully understood. This immediate response to your child's questions eliminates any frustrating mental stumbling blocks toward learning. There is no regression in the Sullivan teaching method. Each page of text is an upward step in the child's learning curve.

Math Math-without-words. The basal mathematics course does not use a single word of English or any other language. The fact that the program does not rely on words means a student is never handicapped by a low reading level or other language problems. Each student progresses at his own pace offering advantages to gifted and slower students alike.



What Parents say about the Sullivan Program:

Mrs. Joseph Mell, Palo Alto, Ca.: Joe had two and a half sessions and the change is absolutely incredible. He has moved to a top reading group, he always gets 100 in his spelling tests, and can handle his social studies assignments which require reading with ease and confidence. But the best change of all is that he now enjoys reading. He even bought two books with his own money.
Mrs. William Weir, Novato, Ca.: Brad's attitude toward learning has greatly improved as a result of your program. He seems to respond favorably to the individual attention that is your specialty.

Hours are scheduled for reading, math and if you wish, reading and math together. Your child can attend for one or two hour sessions on days convenient to the family schedule.

Benefits of the Sullivan Program

☐ Parents receive home evaluation checklist
☐ Individualized programmed instruction
☐ All Sullivan materials are provided
☐ You select the session times
☐ Free reading evaluation test
☐ Free math evaluation test

FREE World Globe

All children who enroll for one full session in the Sullivan Summer School will receive this $12.95 Rand McNally World Portrait Globe. This modern, up-to-the-minute world globe stands 17 inches high and features a 12 inch ball which shows our earth exactly as the crew of Apollo 11 viewed it on their historic journey to the moon. Nature's colors stand out in three-dimensional raised relief features. This globe is not a toy, but a geographically accurate, precisely correct educational tool.

Red China: Affluent, But Yet Austere

LONDON —One of the most notable features of the Chinese "thaw" which set in last year with a succession of diplomatic moves and has continued in 1971 with a virtuoso display of table tennis has been the revelation—or partial revelation—of what China's economy is worth.

In an interview last year with the veteran American journalist Edgar Snow, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai quoted a series of production figures which were not only the first to be released by any Chinese source for 13 years, but also reassungly close to the guesses of the best informed outside observers.

The Chou interview presumably meant that China's economic planners, after the traumatic experiences of the Great Leap Forward (1958-60) and the Cultural Revolution (1966-69), were once again confident enough to display their achievements to the outside, and the welcome China has subsequently given to a selected band of western journalists and businessmen has underlined this point still further.

But if China is once again showing its face to others, and even encouraging them to come and see for themselves, it does not follow that the expression on the face is easy to read. These doubts apply above all to the state of the Chinese economy.

The paradox which strikes a visitor to China today is that the country is both relatively affluent and at the same time forbiddingly austere.

The city of Canton, the largest in south China and by any standards an important economic center, has the style and appearance which would be natural to a quiet provincial town in any other Asian country.

The plain cotton trousers and jackets of its people make no distinction by sex. The buildings do not seem to have had a coat of paint for many years, and the occasional car hoots continuously as it overtakes flocks of bicycles and pedestrians.

In the countryside around Canton it is still possible to see women pushing heavily loaded hand-carts or peasants working by the thousands on a construction project where the main tools are the pick and the straw basket.

Yet while in matters like these China is far more backward than say, Indonesia, it is in many other ways infinitely more advanced.

The endless green rice paddies of the Pearl River basin have some of the highest yields in Asia outside Japan and are steadily becoming still more productive as the People's Commune year by year add to their irrigation networks and experiment with imported or indigenous verions of the new short-stalked rice (the strains which, elsewhere in Asia, have been hastening the "green revolution").

In Canton itself, shabby buildings may hide well-stocked department stores selling transistors, watches and sewing machines as well as the ubiquitous vacuum flask from which every Chinese family serves an apparently endless succession of cups, of tea.

The counters selling consumer durables at the store I visited were doing even brisker business than the one dealing in the works of Chairman Mao.

Their prices may have been high—even a sewing machine, which is one of the most popular buys in present-day China, costs around $41, or nearly two months' wages for an average factory worker, and wrist watches are apparently only slightly cheaper.

Yet roughly half the 12,000-odd families in a big rice-growing commune I visited outside Canton were equipped with sewing machines, and about as many had bicycles.

In a poorer and remoter mountain commune 80 miles north of the city no fewer than 90 per cent of the families have their own bank accounts.

The explanation for the apparent discrepancy between medieval simplicity and this highly specialized form of affluence is not that some people are significantly richer than others or that income levels are unevenly distributed between countryside and town.

It is quite simply that China is one of the most highly disciplined countries in the world — and the discipline spreads far beyond the enforcement of a particular pattern of consumer spending.

The factory workers of Canton and the commune workers in the neighboring countryside are not only using their money to buy the things their government wishes them to buy, they are exercising an exemplary self-restraint in not demanding many other things which China is capable of producing in quantity.

They are also saving an unprecedented proportion of their modest wages (about 50 per cent in the case of my interpreter, whose own and his wife's savings come to 120 yuan a month, or 30 per cent in the case of a poorer agricultural family).

They are doing so, not because of the modest 3 1-3 per cent interest offered by the state savings bank on time deposits, but because they have been exhorted to save by everyone from Chairman Mao down to the local party official.

Finally—and once again in conformity with the chairman's wishes—every factory, every commune, and even every school in China, appears to be falling over itself to avoid buying from an outside source (even a "fraternal factory") any article that can be made on the spot.

The doctrine of self sufficiency, or, as the Chinese would put it, "solving problems in accordance with the brilliant thought of Chairman Mao Tse-tung," is one of the most remarkable aspects of China's economic system.

Doors To Five Schools Closed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five public elementary schools were closed Monday because of potential earthquake hazards, giving 3,000 students a two-day holiday until transfer to safer buildings.

The children will be moved to other schools Wednesday under a plan worked out by Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen.

The main building of Polytechnic High School will be closed Wednesday because of the same danger.

The five closed schools were Argonne, Fairmont, Grant, Monroe, and Webster.

Names For Parks To Be Sought

Name suggestions for three parks planned in Rohnert Park are being sought by the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission.

Recreation Director James Pekkain said the commission decided at its meeting Monday to gather suggestions for names and to make a final decision at its June 28 meeting.

The planned parks include the regional park east of the Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course near Snyder Lane and two neighborhood parks, one in the planned Holiday Park subdivision and the other in the El Colegio subdivision.

The commission also scheduled a work session on its preliminary 1971-72 budget for May 19 at 7:45 p.m. at the Benecia Park Recreation building.

Warrant Issued In Auto Theft

A bench warrant was issued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for William Wesley Hazelton, 20, of Belmont, when he failed to appear for a preliminary hearing.

Judge David Menary Jr. set bail on the warrant at $10,000.

Hazelton is charged with stealing a car owned by a San Bruno man and possessing marijuana when he was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Feb. 8.

Red China: Affluent, But Yet Austere

LONDON —One of the most notable features of the Chinese "thaw" which set in last year with a succession of diplomatic moves and has continued in 1971 with a virtuoso display of table tennis has been the revelation—or partial revelation —of what China's economy is worth.

In an interview last year with the veteran American journalist Edgar Snow, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai quoted a series of production figures which were not only the first to be released by any Chinese source for 13 years, but also reassungly close to the guesses of the best informed outside observers.

The Chou interview presumably meant that China's economic planners, after the traumatic experiences of the Great Leap Forward (1958-60) and the Cultural Revolution (1966-69), were once again confident enough to display their achievements to the outside, and the welcome China has subsequently given to a selected band of western journalists and businessmen has underlined this point still further.

But if China is once again showing its face to others, and even encouraging them to come and see for themselves, it does not follow that the expression on the face is easy to read. These doubts apply above all to the state of the Chinese economy.

The paradox which strikes a visitor to China today is that the country is both relatively affluent and at the same time forbiddingly austere.

The city of Canton, the largest in south China and by any standards an important economic center, has the style and appearance which would be natural to a quiet provincial town in any other Asian country.

The plain cotton trousers and jackets of its people make no distinction by sex. The buildings do not seem to have had a coat of paint for many years, and the occasional car hoots continuously as it overtakes flocks of bicycles and pedestrians.

In the countryside around Canton it is still possible to see women pushing heavily loaded hand-carts or peasants working by the thousands on a construction project where the main tools are the pick and the straw basket.

Yet while in matters like these China is far more backward than say, Indonesia, it is in many other ways infinitely more advanced.

The endless green rice paddies of the Pearl River basin have some of the highest yields in Asia outside Japan and are steadily becoming still more productive as the People's Commune year by year add to their irrigation networks and experiment with imported or indigenous verions of the new short-stalked rice (the strains which, elsewhere in Asia, have been hastening the "green revolution").

In Canton itself, shabby buildings may hide well-stocked department stores selling transistors, watches and sewing machines as well as the ubiquitous vacuum flask from which every Chinese family serves an apparently endless succession of cups, of tea.

The counters selling consumer durables at the store I visited were doing even brisker business than the one dealing in the works of Chairman Mao.

Their prices may have been high—even a sewing machine, which is one of the most popular buys in present-day China, costs around $41, or nearly two months' wages for an average factory worker, and wrist watches are apparently only slightly cheaper.

Yet roughly half the 12,000-odd families in a big rice-growing commune I visited outside Canton were equipped with sewing machines, and about as many had bicycles.

In a poorer and remoter mountain commune 80 miles north of the city no fewer than 90 per cent of the families have their own bank accounts.

The explanation for the apparent discrepancy between medieval simplicity and this highly specialized form of affluence is not that some people are significantly richer than others or that income levels are unevenly distributed between countryside and town.

It is quite simply that China is one of the most highly disciplined countries in the world — and the discipline spreads far beyond the enforcement of a particular pattern of consumer spending.

The factory workers of Canton and the commune workers in the neighboring countryside are not only using their money to buy the things their government wishes them to buy, they are exercising an exemplary self-restraint in not demanding many other things which China is capable of producing in quantity.

They are also saving an unprecedented proportion of their modest wages (about 50 per cent in the case of my interpreter, whose own and his wife's savings come to 120 yuan a month, or 30 per cent in the case of a poorer agricultural family).

They are doing so, not because of the modest 3 1-3 per cent interest offered by the state savings bank on time deposits, but because they have been exhorted to save by everyone from Chairman Mao down to the local party official.

Finally—and once again in conformity with the chairman's wishes—every factory, every commune, and even every school in China, appears to be falling over itself to avoid buying from an outside source (even a "fraternal factory") any article that can be made on the spot.

The doctrine of self sufficiency, or, as the Chinese would put it, "solving problems in accordance with the brilliant thought of Chairman Mao Tse-tung," is one of the most remarkable aspects of China's economic system.

Doors To Five Schools Closed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five public elementary schools were closed Monday because of potential earthquake hazards, giving 3,000 students a two-day holiday until transfer to safer buildings.

The children will be moved to other schools Wednesday under a plan worked out by Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen.

The main building of Polytechnic High School will be closed Wednesday because of the same danger.

The five closed schools were Argonne, Fairmont, Grant, Monroe, and Webster.

Three Earn Eagle Awards

STEPHEN R. WALLACE
Eagle award

SAMUEL COOK
Scout achievement

DAVID NORALL
Honored

Three Tamalpais High School students, all members of Boy Scout Troop 34, will receive the Eagle Scout award at a court of honor at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Mill Valley Community Church.

They are Stephen R. Wallace, David Norall and Samuel Cook.

Wallace, 16, is a sophomore at Tam High and a member of the sophomore wrestling team, this year winning the Most Improved Wrestler award. His hobbies include motorcycling, sailing, camping, skiing and bicycling. He plans a bicycle tour of Europe this summer with a youth hostel group.

Wallace's Eagle Scout community service project was rebuilding 15 steps between Cascade Drive and Marion Avenue.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wallace of 165 Marion Avenue, Mill Valley.

Norall, 15, is a sophomore and has belonged to the school's honor society since entering Tam. His hobbies include swimming, water polo, bicycling and tennis.

He was named honor scout at summer camp at Kibby Lake in 1969. His Eagle project was planning and carrying out the troop's display on small craft and water safety in the 1970 Marin Scout-O-Rama.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norall of 236 Morning Sun Avenue, Mill Valley.

Cook, 18, is a senior at the high school. His hobbies include handball, hiking and camping, gardening and studying edible plants.

He has been a scout for six years. He will be a counselor at Marin Sierra Boy Scout Camp this summer.

His Eagle project was mapping out a trail which runs from Mill Valley to Point Reyes National Seashore.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cook of 2 Del Casa Drive, Mill Valley.

Professor Fined For Obstructing Police Officer

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)— Bruce Franklin, the suspended Stanford University English professor, pleaded guilty Tuesday to obstructing an officer in the performance of his duties.

Franklin was fined $675. He paid promptly after the judge said a six-month probationary period would be lifted if the fine was paid within 10 days.

Franklin was arrested Jan. 23 by Sheriff Deputy James Burns, who said the professor attacked him during a Redwood City demonstration.

The judge dismissed an assault charge against Franklin.

Bound Over In Drugs Case

Gary Joel Rosenberg, 24, of no known address, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing mescaline.

He is to be arraigned in superior court June 9.

Rosenberg was arrested Jan. 8 when sheriff's deputies found a bag of suspected drugs when he was being booked for traffic warrants.

A PORK ROAST with a Mexican flavor glazed with a tasty sauce is ideal for those who don't like chili, yet do like a zippy glaze with the meat. It can be served with refried beans, tortillas and guacamole over shredded lettuce.

First Stop On World Cuisine Tour — Mexico

Though all will agree the best policy for exploring new cuisines is to travel, it is not always possible. This being the case, start your family on a world tour by preparing new, tempting foods from around the world. Make your first stop Mexico with spicy roast pork a la Acapulco.

This spicy pork roast is typical of all Mexico. It is baked slowly and glazed with a tasty sauce, as Mexicans generally believe that nothing should be eaten without some type of sauce. This traditional pork entree is ideal for those who do not like chili yet want a zippy glaze.

The fact that there is an abundant supply of pork at present makes this roast a treat indeed for the economy minded. Further. pork is highly nutritious and provides the highest quality protein.

Serve spicy roast pork a la Acapulco with refried beans topped with grated cheese, relish tray, guacamole over shredded lettuce, Mexican cornbread or tortillas, wine or fruit punch and a pudding, custard or cooked fruit dessert with coffee.

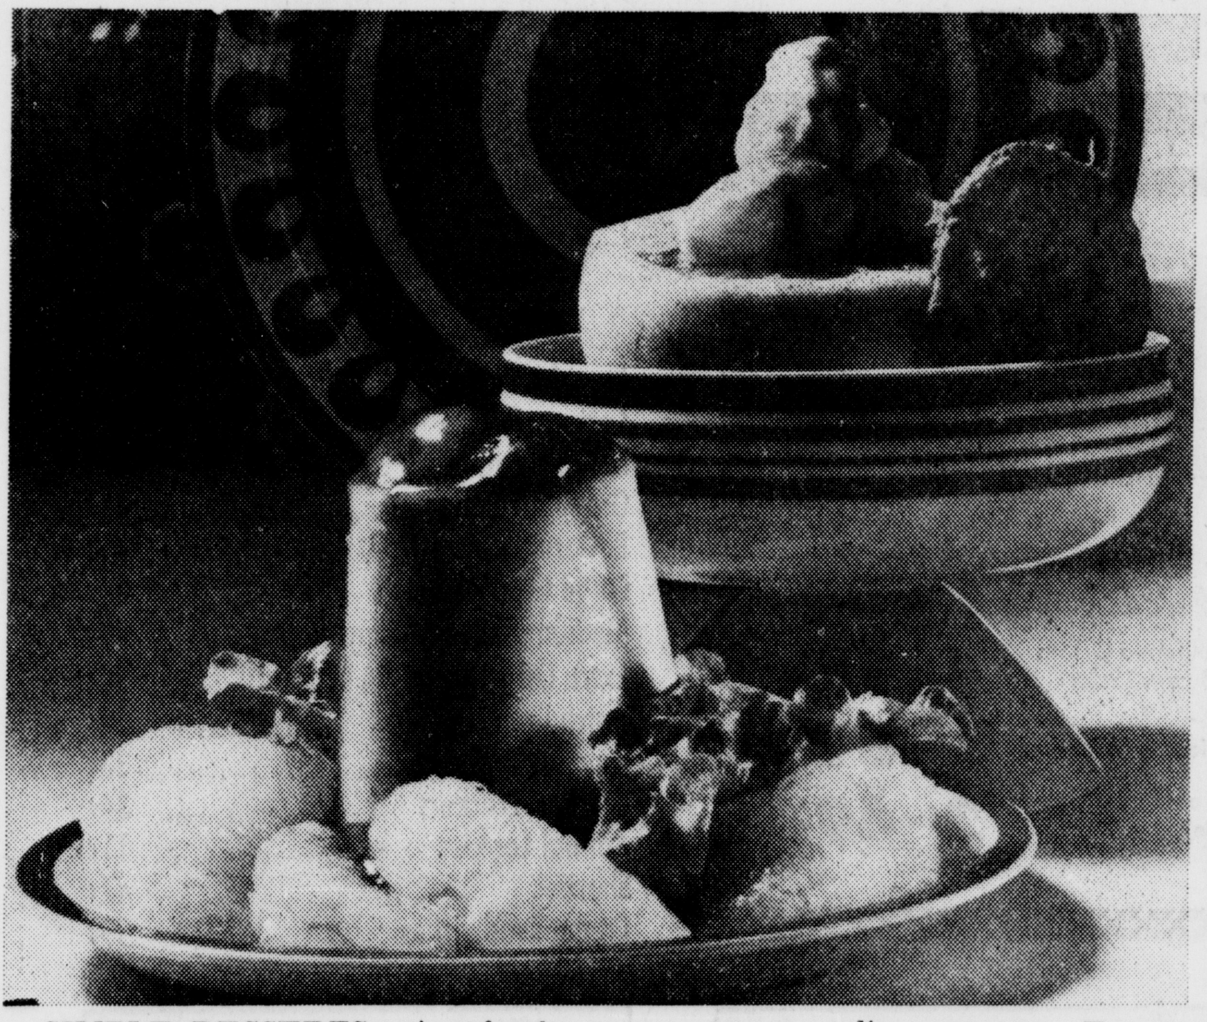
SPICY ROAST PORK A LA ACAPULCO

1 teaspoon ground coriander seed
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic, mashed
4 to 5 pound pork loin roast
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Combine coriander, salt, pepper and garlic; mix well. Rub over outside of roast. Place meat on rack in shallow uncovered roasting pan. Bake in slow oven 325 degrees until meat is fork tender, two and three quarter to three hours, or until roast reaches an internal temperature of 170 degrees. Prepare glaze.

Combine and mix sugar and cornstarch. Stir in vinegar, water and soy sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Brush roast well with glaze several times during last 30 minutes of roasting. Serve remaining glaze with roast. Makes six to eight servings.



SIMPLE DESSERTS using fresh grapefruit are good for lunch or dinner. In front is the dessert of grapefruit sections combined with frozen fruit-flavored yogurt. It also can serve as lunch itself if you are on a slim program. For dinner dessert is grapefruit raspberry rum — grapefruit halves topped with cream drizzled with raspberry jam and rum sauce.

Frozen Yogurt With Grapefruit Is Quick, Simple, Healthful

Frozen yogurt with grapefruit is a to-your-health-sundae that is quick and simple at lunchtime. Your favorite fruit yogurt, unmolded and served with pale, golden or pink sections of juicy grapefruit.

Or grapefruit raspberry rum, a sophisticated dessert to serve for company. Even when they're unexpected, it can be whipped up quickly.

GRAPEFRUIT AND FROZEN YOGURT

2 cartons (8 oz. each) fruit flavored yogurt
2 grapefruit
Lttuce

At least two and one half hours before serving place yogurt in freezer. At serving time, peel grapefruit, removing all pulp and membrane, and divide into segments. Unmold yogurt from cartons and place in center of lettuce on serving plate. Arrange grapefruit segments around yogurt.

Makes two servings.

Try Watercress Salad Next

1 bunch watercress
2 medium oranges
½ small green pepper, slivered
3 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
½ teaspoon seasoning salt
¼ teaspoon salt

Remove heavy part of stems from watercress; wash in cold water, drain and dry in a towel; there should be five cups loosely packed; chill. Cut, peel away from oranges so they are membrane free; slice medium thick; quarter each round; chill. At serving time toss together the cress, oranges, green pepper, oil, vinegar, seasoning salt and salt.

GRAPEFRUIT RUM RASPBERRY DESSERT

2 cartons (8 oz. each) fruit flavored yogurt
2 grapefruit
Lttuce
Whipped cream

Loosen grapefruit from membrane and chill. In a small saucepan, simmer jam with rum and cinnamon for a few minutes. Strain out seeds. Cool. Top grapefruit with a dab of whipped cream and a spoonful of sauce.

Makes four servings.

A Quick Dressing

Make a quick and unusual dressing for cole slaw or chicken or fish salad by thinning one cup of mayonnaise with 3 tablespoons of frozen grapefruit or orange-grapefruit concentrate.

Stretching A Pound Of Ground Beef

Without a doubt ground beef is the fastest moving cut of beef. This suggestion stretches a pound of lean ground beef into an extra serving or two.

Follow the simple directions for making the beef loaf mixture and for rolling it with an inside stuffing. It's the kind of recipe you can double to make and bake one now and make another to store in the freezer.

ROLLED BEEF LOAF

1 egg
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ pounds ground lean beef
Stuffing

Combine lightly beaten egg with crumbs, milk, mustard, salt and pepper. When milk is absorbed, mix in beef lightly with fork. Turn out onto sheet of wax paper and shape into 8x12-inch rectangle. Spread stuffing evenly over beef. Using paper to lift beef, roll up as for jelly roll, starting from shorter side. Place on shallow pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° degrees) about 1 hour.

Makes six to eight servings.

Stuffing: Combine one quart soft bread crumbs with one-quarter cup melted butter, one tablespoon instant minced onion, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon sage, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and one-half cup chopped celery.

A Baked Potato Is Not Fattening

Diet-conscious people who avoid potatoes as if they were ice cream sundaes don't know what they're missing. A medium-sized spud, boiled, baked or pressure-cooked provides only about 100 calories, or about as many as a large apple or an orange. That same spud contains worthwhile amounts of Vitamin C, two important B-vitamins and the minerals iron, phosphorus and potassium.

Naturally, sauces or gravies or fats used in frying will add calories. But baked or boiled potatoes moistened with a little skim milk and seasoned with salt, pepper, herbs such as parsley and onion make delicious but low-calorie eating.

Dress Up Dinner With Wheat Germ Muffins

The custom of serving a sweet bread with the main course of a meal is typically American and a good one. So dress up dinner with these wheat germ molasses squares, hot from the oven, and pass the butter or margarine.

WHEAT GERM MOLASSES SQUARES

3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugared honey wheat germ
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. soda
2 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
1 cup light molasses
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup canned applesauce
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped walnuts

Measure flour, wheat germ, baking powder, soda and spices onto wax paper. Stir well to blend. Combine molasses, sugar and butter in large saucepan. Cook over medium heat until butter melts, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in applesauce and egg. Add blended dry ingredients. Mix well. Stir in raisins and nuts. Spread in greased 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm with butter. Yield: 20 servings.

A Tasty Idea For A Brunch

Here's a good breakfast or brunch special. Combine half cup each of butter and firmly packed brown sugar and one tablespoon of light corn syrup; bring to a boil in saucepan, stirring constantly. Pour into five-and-a-half cup ring mold or a 9 by 5-inch loaf pan and tilt to coat sides and bottom. Sprinkle with half cup of chopped toasted filberts.

Prepare rolled biscuits from a mix, using two and a half cups mix and three-quarters of a cup of milk. Stand biscuits on sides and place around the ring pan or in two rows in loaf pan. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven 30 to 40 minutes, or until biscuits are well browned. Invert onto serving plate, let stand five minutes, then remove pan. Makes six servings.

A PORK ROAST with a Mexican flavor glazed with a tasty sauce is ideal for those who don't like chili, yet do like a zippy glaze with the meat. It can be served with refried beans, tortillas and guacamole over shredded lettuce.

First Stop On World Cuisine Tour — Mexico

Though all will agree the best policy for exploring new cuisines is to travel, it is not always possible. This being the case, start your family on a world tour by preparing new, tempting foods from around the world. Make your first stop Mexico with spicy roast pork a la Acapulco.

This spicy pork roast is typical of all Mexico. It is baked slowly and glazed with a tasty sauce, as Mexicans generally believe that nothing should be eaten without some type of sauce. This traditional pork entree is ideal for those who do not like chili yet want a zippy glaze.

The fact that there is an abundant supply of pork at present makes this roast a treat indeed for the economy minded. Further. pork is highly nutritious and provides the highest quality protein.

Serve spicy roast pork a la Acapulco with refried beans topped with grated cheese, relish tray, guacamole over shredded lettuce, Mexican cornbread or tortillas, wine or fruit punch and a pudding, custard or cooked fruit dessert with coffee.

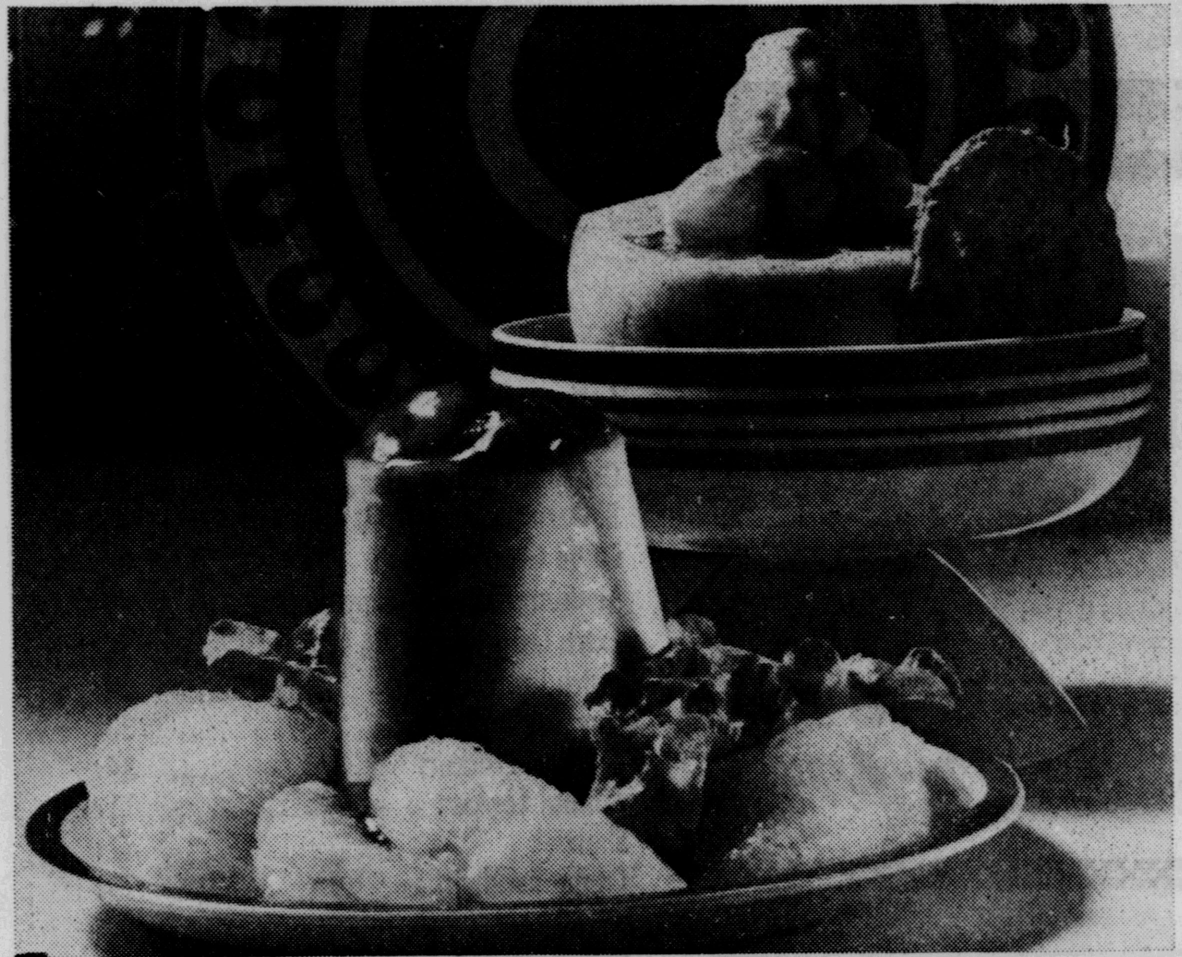
SPICY ROAST PORK A LA ACAPULCO

1 teaspoon ground coriander seed
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic, mashed
4 to 5 pound pork loin roast
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Combine coriander, salt, pepper and garlic; mix well. Rub over outside of roast. Place meat on rack in shallow uncovered roasting pan. Bake in slow oven 325 degrees until meat is fork tender, two and three quarter to three hours, or until roast reaches an internal temperature of 170 degrees. Prepare glaze.

Combine and mix sugar and cornstarch. Stir in vinegar, water and soy sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Brush roast well with glaze several times during last 30 minutes of roasting. Serve remaining glaze with roast. Makes six to eight servings.



SIMPLE DESSERTS using fresh grapefruit are good for lunch or dinner. In front is the dessert of grapefruit sections combined with frozen fruit-flavored yogurt. It also can serve as lunch itself if you are on a slim program. For dinner dessert is grapefruit raspberry rum — grapefruit halves topped with cream drizzled with raspberry jam and rum sauce.

Frozen Yogurt With Grapefruit Is Quick, Simple, Healthful

Frozen yogurt with grapefruit is a to-your-health-sundae that is quick and simple at lunchtime. Your favorite fruit yogurt, unmolded and served with pale, golden or pink sections of juicy grapefruit.

Or grapefruit raspberry rum, a sophisticated dessert to serve for company. Even when they're unexpected, it can be whipped up quickly.

GRAPEFRUIT AND FROZEN YOGURT

2 cartons (8 oz. each) fruit flavored yogurt
2 grapefruit
Lttuce

At least two and one half hours before serving place yogurt in freezer. At serving time, peel grapefruit, removing all pulp and membrane, and divide into segments. Unmold yogurt from cartons and place in center of lettuce on serving plate. Arrange grapefruit segments around yogurt.

Makes two servings.

Try Watercress Salad Next

1 bunch watercress
2 medium oranges
½ small green pepper, slivered
3 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
½ teaspoon seasoning salt
¼ teaspoon salt

Remove heavy part of stems from watercress; wash in cold water, drain and dry in a towel; there should be five cups loosely packed; chill. Cut, peel away from oranges so they are membrane free; slice medium thick; quarter each round; chill. At serving time toss together the cress, oranges, green pepper, oil, vinegar, seasoning salt and salt.

GRAPEFRUIT RUM RASPBERRY DESSERT

2 cartons (8 oz. each) fruit flavored yogurt
2 grapefruit
Lttuce
Whipped cream

Loosen grapefruit from membrane and chill. In a small saucepan, simmer jam with rum and cinnamon for a few minutes. Strain out seeds. Cool. Top grapefruit with a dab of whipped cream and a spoonful of sauce.

Makes four servings.

A Quick Dressing

Make a quick and unusual dressing for cole slaw or chicken or fish salad by thinning one cup of mayonnaise with 3 tablespoons of frozen grapefruit or orange-grapefruit concentrate.

Four-Inch Heels Presented By Geoffrey Beene For This Fall

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Just when women got comfortable in shoes with sensible heel heights, guess what some of the nation's fashion designers have in store for fall and winter. Four-inch heels!

These heels showed throughout the daytime collection of designer Geoffrey Beene Monday and it may be a sign that fashion is escalating a backlash to women's lib. Beene's was one of the first showings by major designers now previewing fall wear for store buyers.

EVERY WOMAN knows nothing hobbles her worse than really high heels, the kind meant for teetering on. The heels in Beene's collection were by the award-winning husband-wife team of shoe architects, Herbert and Beth Levine.

Another possible women's lib backlash in the Beene collection was the way he cold-shouldered long pants, now a staple of every well-dressed woman's cold weather wardrobe.

He had one novelty pants suit in light blue and black satin — and one black jumpsuit. All the rest were skirts.

Put women back in skirts, balance them on high heels and any dame knows she won't be as liberated as she is currently —especially in her ability to get from here to there swiftly and comfortably.

THE HIGH heels and the ladylike skirts — over the knee but no midi, mind you — are part of the nation's fashion trek back to the 1940s. For daytime the ladylike silhouetes so saturated the Beene collection that hats and gloves were shown throughout.

The hats were crushed pillboxes, worn slouched to the right, covering the ear on that side. The bared ear on the other side always sported one prune-sized, flattened pearl earring.

For evening the hats came off and wigs went on —the chin length hair covering the right side of the face completely. The evening look was most influenced by the headlines. At least the outstanding of the evening collection included mandarin silhouettes and, on occasion, sequins embroidered in the shape of Chinese dragons.

THE DAYTIME look Beene endorsed was mostly wool in muted colors — dark green, black, maroon, accented by orange or red piping. Bodices on dresses clung to the anatomy, sleeves were long and skirts were ladylike via inverted pleats and soft gathers.

Suit jackets were ample, frequently having flat shawl collars that were shoulder-wide, worn flat or standing up.

And the daytime coats?

Mostly wraparounds. The 1940s, you know. Remember?

The 'Liberated' Woman Causes E. German Havoc

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI)—The clashing views of East Germany's liberated women and its conventional men are boosting the nation's divorce rate and even causing a ruckus about advertising for soap flakes.

The "lib" is worrying the government. The Communists are happy that women have turned their backs on the old Nazi slogan of "kinder, kueche, kirche" (children, kitchen, church) to such an extent that 75 per cent of all women are either working or studying. In West Germany, the figure is 37 per cent.

BUT THE Communists call the family "the smallest cell of society", or the "smallest party cell" and they want liberated women to keep on being wives.

Too often, women are deciding that a husband plus a job are too much of a burden and are discarding the husband. Or, their refusal to do all of the household chores alone after a hard day's work causes a quarrel that ends in the divorce court.

Since 1958, the East German divorce rate has increased from 1.3 per 1000 persons to 1.7 per 1000 and Dr. Franz Thoms, East German supreme court justice, says it will go still higher.

Why?

Because the emancipated woman often feels she does not need a husband. And, because many men have developed inferiority complexes as their wives' earning power surpasses their own.

Thoms, in a study of divorces, concludes that "the vast majority of those suing... are women."

EAST GERMANY leaders probably did not realize how emancipated their women were until they brought out a new soap flakes called "Spee". The soap box has a picture of a woman — an attractive young woman — on it.

The manufacturers, newspapers and government agencies were deluged with letters. Some samples:

Gerlinde Bigesse, of Potsdam, wrote, "Such a relapse in the past to accompany a new product. The woman belongs at the wash tub and the precious man is to be waited on hand and foot... the smiling girl on the Spee box is nothing more than a justification of this outmoded theory."

Inge Lorenz, of Leipzig, wrote, "The new soap flakes seem to be good. But doesn't the box cling to the old conception that only women have an interest in soap flakes?"

Expert Explains Narcotics Use

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Dale C. Cameron, chief medical officer of the Drug Dependence Unit of the World Health Association (WHO), reports that five important motives probably figure in drug use. As he lists them in WHO's journel, "World Health," they are:

—To escape from something; to have a new, pleasurable or thrilling experience; to achieve improved understanding or insight; to achieve a sense of belonging; to express independence and sometimes hostility.

Nurse Finds Acting Helps

Mary Ellen McCurdy spends her weekends rehearsing for the role of Pegeen, the female lead in this year's Mountain Play production, "Playboy of the Western World."

Her weekdays are spent working in the isolation ward of Marin General Hospital.

"As a nurse I try to help people," says the Mill Valley woman, "and acting has been a great love since college. The two together give me as much of a well rounded life as possible."

Her dramatic training has augmented the medical and technical she has received to make her a better licensed vocational nurse, since, "a nurse should also be a bit of an actress in order to give her patients extra cheer or understanding."

In addition to the cheer, she says, her acting has produced some unusual hospital happenings.

"Patients have recognized me from stage work and asked me to recreate a scene they remember," she says.

Nursing has helped her acting also. Patients with foreign accents have helped her develop accents she needed for various roles.

"Acting is a great outlet," she says. "It is a way to relax, to extend your life into new areas and even experiment with your personality. The great acting coaches are almost like the great psychologists."

Mrs. McCurdy appeared in Sausalito Little Theatre productions of "Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Children's Hour." After an illness stopped her acting for three years, she decided to go into nursing and returned to school to study for an LVN degree.

She is also a student of kundalini yoga,which she describes as physical movement, concentration in trying to block off areas of the body to keep energy inside and allow total meditation.

Although she is not new to the role of Pegeen, having appeared in the Jack Aranson production of "Playboy of the Western World" in Sausalito several years ago, rehearsals have been numerous.

"Audiences can be assured there is an actress on the stage that will be doing her best to offer entertainment and enjoyment," she says. "When I see just a moment's cheer, either in the patients or with an audience, then I know I've done something, just a little something for someone else, and that is a truly magnificient feeling."

The 54th annual Mountain Play will be performed May 23 and 30 at 2 p.m. at the outdoor amphitheater on Mt. Tamalpais.

Robert Parnow Will Marry Trisha Clifford

Mrs. Eugene S. Clifford is announcing the engagement of her daughter Trisha to Robert Parnow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Parnow, all of San Rafael.

Trisha is the sister of Mrs. Walter Mollison of Mill Valley, Mrs. Richard Gilardi and Sars Clifford of San Francisco and Mike, Rick, Margaret, Shirley, John and David Clifford of San Rafael. Mrs. James R. Kelly of Pacific Grove is her grandmother. She was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin. She will be graduated from Bauder Fashion College in Sacramento in June.

Robert is the brother of Tappy, Pat, Katie, Pete, Tim, Mark, CiCi, Trish, Mary and Noel Parnow, all of San Rafael. He is the grandson of Mrs. Thelma Buchignani of San Anselmo and Mrs. Francis Parnow of San Rafael. He was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin. He is a contractor in San Rafael.

The couple plans to be married at St. Raphael's church on June 13.

Changes Noted On Food Buying Habits

A recent survey by an advertising agency shows that the head of household has changed food buying habits. He or she is more concerned with cost and quality than convenience and brands since faced with higher prices.

In addition they watch the sales, they substitute less expensive foods and plan menus in advance and do more food preparation in the home kitchen.

Raw Meat

Wash hands with soap and water after handling raw meat and poultry and before touching other foods.

MILK PUNCH

Sure. Milk Punch. It's quick and easy, and a fresh new way to serve a fresh, cool favorite: Foremost Vitamin D Milk. Just mix these things all together and pretend it's New Year's Eve:

Milk Punch
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup honey
1½ qts. Foremost milk
1 cup fresh strawberries sliced (or fruit of your choice)

Add cinnamon, nutmeg, salt and honey to milk. Beat to blend thoroughly. Add fresh fruit and chill at least ½ hour. Makes 12 punch cup servings.

Foremost. The Freshmost.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

'The Conquering' Hero Should Be Tossed Out Flat On His Posterior

DEAR HELEN:

Hail the eternal Romeo! May his many conquests fill his handsome head with bursting pride.

May he never stop to think of the warm, earthy female he belittles and badgers at home when he is on the trail of a new filly. May he never be concerned with her human needs as he is busy hoarding all his ammunition for the new affair. Can't put out two fires at once, you know, but never must his deprived (and still sexy) wife run around on him, or she is promptly labeled a slut and a trollop. (She doesn't.)

May this Don Juan's children never notice the gross neglect of their mother, and his indifference to them, but keep on thinking of him as their "idol." May they shrug off his chasing of young, middleaged and even older dames as "Well, that's Pop for you," or "Can we help it if they fall all over him?" May he never run out of sex drive, for he has nothing else.

Let me, the wife, be the first to shout, "Hail, the conquering hero! — CHASER'S MATE
P.S. MAY HE DROP DEAD!

DEAR C.M.:

Why haven't you shouted long ago: "To Hell with the 'Conquesting' zero!"

P.S. Someday he may, but don't waste your life waiting. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My mistakes started early. I am 23, have three children, ages seven, five and three. Now I'm trying to straighten out my life. I'm off welfare and work every day, and I want to marry the man I'm living with, but there are complications.

He had been separated eight years, but not divorced. Last year his wife was killed in an accident. Since then he has been sending money to support her five children who live with an aunt. But Helen, only two of them are his!

If we marry, that will mean eight kids we have to support, and I can't see taking responsibility for three that don't belong to him. Their aunt is bringing them up to call him "Dad," and it isn't honest, besides being very expensive.

I want a real father for my children, but I don't want to be the "mother" of eight at only 23! Should I move out before I make another mistake? — TOO MANY PROBLEMS

DEAR TMP:

Your letter never once mentioned love — which seems doubly important with all that motherhood. Don't turn this temporary arrangement into marriage unless you are sure you can handle all the little problems. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My wife and I have been married seven years. My mother-in-law never fails to give me a birthday and Christmas present. Very thoughtful, BUT — a sewing machine, a rug shampooer, a set of baking dishes? Once she gave me a ski sweater, but it was size 36. I wear a 42, so my wife got it.

Is she trying to tell me something? — BILL

DEAR BILL:

Yes: Like, she would not love you half so well, loved she not her daughter more. — H.

Consume All Meat That Is Produced

The people in the United States consume all of the beef, veal, pork and lamb the nation's livestock industry can produce. This is more than any other country in the world.

But individually, we don't eat as much red meat as they do in New Zealand where per capita red meat consumption is 222 pounds, nor Argentina and Australia, at 211 pounds, reports the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

U. S. Affluence

The United States, with only 6 per cent of the world's population, consumes 40 per cent of the world's raw materials, excluding foodstuffs, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Students Gain In Full Food Labeling

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Would you approve of growing children drinking all the coffee they want during the day?

Most people would answer with a resounding "no." Almost everyone knows that coffee contains caffeine, a powerful stimulant that can be harmful in a number of ways, especially for children.

Yet few parents realize that children consume substantial amounts of caffeine when they drink quantities of cola drinks.

Caffeine is present to some degree in all cola drinks. In fact, the law requires any cola drink to have caffeine in it. Otherwise, it cannot be labeled as cola.

BUT, HAPPILY for the manufacturers, the law does not require labels to disclose the presence of caffeine except in "diet" drinks.Nor does the law require labeling of some 80 other optional ingredients that can be added to cola to help promote fizzing, preserve chemical stability or for other purposes.

Among these other goodies are:

Brominated vegetable oils, carob bean gum, glycerol ester of wood resin, gual gum, gum acacia, gum trag acanth, hydoxylated lecithin, methylcellulose, mono- and diglycerides of fat-forming fatty acids, pectin, polyglycerol esters of fatty acids, propylene glycol alginate and sodium alginate.

Federal law also does not require the labeling of monosodium glutamate or coconut oil in mayonnaise.

IF YOU don't think that such ingredients should be kept secret from buyers of these products, then you have something in common with LABEL, the acronym for Law Students' Association for Buyers' Education and Labeling.

The group was formed at George Washington University in connection with a course conducted by Prof. John Banzhaf, the man whose law suit led to the banning of cigarette advertisements on radio and television.

Known as "Banzhaf's Bandits," the students have formally petitioned the Food and Drug Administration to order the labeling of all ingredients in food products. And the agency has accepted the petition and decided to seek comments from the public.

Their petition notes the fact that products with accepted "standards of identity" are not required to list all ingredients on the label, while products without such standards are required to do so and put them in descending order of their importance in the product.

THE RESULT, say the students, is confusion in the minds of buyers.

The students quote from an FDA publication in 1968 proclaiming that "food products are labeled with required information to guide and protect the consumer."

Not in all cases, say the students, adding:

"The fact that major ingredients, such as caffeine, MSG, milk and eggs, are not listed on labels of standardized products conflicts with the policy and Congressional mandate of promoting honest and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer."

BUT THE students say they need letters of support from the public addressed to the FDA Hearing Clerk, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20852. They urge that copies to sent to LABEL, Inc., Room 226, 2020 F Street N.W., Washington, D.C.

Chocolate Tips

All types of chocolate can be refrigerated. But be sure to seal them tightly so they don't take on odors or moisture from other foods. Chocolate becomes hard and brittle when refrigerated. It should be returned to room temperature before eating, to protect the teeth.

Candidate For Queen

Sheri James of White Pines, formerly of Mill Valley, is a candidate for the title of Miss Calaveras in conjunction with the county fair and frog-jumping jubilee at Angel's Camp tomorrow.

She attended Tamalpais High School, and now is a junior at Calaveras High School.

She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Tom H. James of White Pines, formerly of Mill Valley.

Perishable Item

Handle ground beef as you would perishables. Plan to use ground beef one or two days after purchase. To store for a longer period, shape into patties, place on waxed paper on a tray and freeze until firm. Then remove the beef patties from tray and package in plastic moistureproof bags for the freezer.

HELEN HELP US!

'The Conquering' Hero Should Be Tossed Out Flat On His Posterior

DEAR HELEN:

Hail the eternal Romeo! May his many conquests fill his handsome head with bursting pride.

"You're looking breath-takingly handsome tonight, my dear."

Hotpants, Knickers Top Fashions

Everything's coming up spring this time of year — new, fresh, and different after a long winter's nap.

Whether you've spent your winter bundled in woolen underwear, or basking in abikini, you're probably ready for a change in your look — and outlook.

PANTS ARE the hot fashion item, particularly HotPants. If you're over twenty-five, you called them "short shorts" back in the 1950s. Today, they're designed by couturiers and worn with patterned hose and boots, or topped by tunics and long, slit skirts. And the fashion pace-setters who choose HotPants will want sizzling new chromes and metal sunglasses to complete the look. "Chromatics" are available in both gold and silver finishes, with pierced metal racing temples and a wide range of lens tints.

Another pant look for spring is knickers. Available in fabrics from velvet to denim, knickers are kicks for daytime or night. For a high-flying fashion accent, wear them with popular metal "aviators". Choose either the "Amelia E's" or the latest "Eye-Flyers," a set of four interchangeable aviator and oval lenses in the new darker tints of demi-amber, brown, grey, and blue.

If you're the "elusive" type who prefers to suggest rather than reveal, wear the pants with slits.

Rite To Be In August

Karen Joyce Pohoriles and Richard Stewart Arrow, both of San Francisco, are planning an Aug. 15 wedding at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Announcement of the engagement was made by the future bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Pohoriles of San Anselmo.

The future bride is the sister of Bruce Pohoriles of Greenbrae and the granddaughter of Mrs. Dora Block of San Francisco. She was graduated from Redwood High School and College of Marin. Following graduation she worked on a kibbutz in Israel. She is employed in the University of the Pacific endodontic laboratory in San Francisco.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Arrow of Terra Linda and the brother of Michael Arrow and Mrs. Jay Trenchard. A graduate of Terra Linda High school, he attends San Francisco State College.

League Of Women Voters Pick Slate

Mrs. David Rose, newly elected president of the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin for 1971-73, says, "I believe the League of Women Voters is one of the most effective of political organizations. Its prime purpose is to promote an informed and active electorate and in keeping with this purpose it has maintained a nonartisan policy."

A member of the league five years, the new president has served as chairman of voters service, membership and program. She says among her goals for her term in office will be continuation and expansion of voter education projects and the informal coffees open to the community in which prominent persons have the opportunity to express their views, and the audience has the opportunity to question them.

Kay Rose was born in Minnesota, and grew up in Minnesota and Iowa. She received B.S. and M.A. degrees in dance and related arts from Texas Women's Univeristy. She taught dance four years at Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga., in addition to conducting various dance seminars at colleges and universities and serving as state dance chairman for Georgia.

Kay lives with her husband, David, and American Airlines pilot, in Mill Valley. In addition to the league her interests include drama, dance and playing various musical instruments.

Other newly elected officers are Mmes. Roger J. Fleischmann, first vice president; Florine Miller, second vice president; Frederica Leach, secretary, and Phillip Pease, treasurer. New board of directors members are Mmes. Jules Becker, John Eiler, Roy D. Knapp, William McDougal, Thomas Rogers, R. C. Shaughnessy and Dale Williamson.

Lagunitas P-TA Picks Officers

Mrs. Ted Van Midde of Woodacre has been re-elected president of the Lagunitas School Parent-Teacher Association for the year.

A 16-year resident of Marin and a 16-year member of the P-TA, Mrs. Van Midde has served the group as president, vice president, secretary and membership chairman. She is also active with the San Geronimo Valley Presbyterian Church and the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Van Midde and her husband, who is assistant manager of Shamrock Materials in San Rafael, are parents of Mrs. Richard Abbott of Farifax and Renee, 11; Teddy, 9, and Mark, 7.

Also serving as P-TA officers for the year are Mmes. William C. White, vice president; Robert Wick, treasurer; Robert Gustafson, corresponding secretary; Allem Kircham, recording secretary; Harry Simon, auditor; and Roger Machin, historian.

Coat More Than Just A Coat

The coat that's just a coat, the skirt-and-jacket suit — where are they this spring? More often than not, they've abandoned their traditional roles to become part of a costume.

A coat adds skirt and top or dress, and probably, pants too, while even the most basic and classic suit is likely to show up with its own ready-coordinated blouse or shirt.

When it appears, the separate coat is usually more than just a coat. It goes the any-weather way, adding to fashion the extra dimension of protection against spring showers.

Separately, as rain-shine companions or as costume components, the season's coats present a new approach to the classics. Reefers, trenches, boy coats shape up smartly for spring.

Wrap coats provide soft coverage.

Budget Strides For Sausalito

A $262,513 public works budget received tentative approval last night from the Sausalito City Council which met with its finance committee in a continuing series of budget study sessions.

The proposed public works spending program for 1971-72 is approximately 27 per cent higher than last year's $190,956 budget. It includes the following expenditures: administration and engineering, $39,099; street improvement, $13,300; street and subdrain maintenance, $113,416; street trees, $28,969; street construction, $22,582 and street lighting and traffic, $33,482.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said the largest public works increases are in street and subdrain maintenance (up from $89,544); street construction (up from $2,367), and street improvements (up from $2,781). He explained the cost rise by saying the city has "been putting off some needed work for years and it must be done."

The council asked Norman Wohlschlaeger, director of public works, to list his department's 20 proposed street improvement projects in order of priority and present the list at its next budget session May 25 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

The council also gave a tentative nod to a $42,758 park budget, down from this year's $74,402 figure because the city plans fewer capital improvements and a $62,673 library budget.

Also approved was a $12,782 recreation budget which includes a new $1,000 expenditure for a recreation program for Sausalito's older residents. St. Cyr said the city will obtain matching funds from the county to set up the program.

Tentative Shoreline Budget Is Adopted

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night approved a tentative budget of $1,196,240 for fiscal 1971-72. It is not expected to change the tax rate.

Trustees also granted teachers and administrators a 4 per cent pay raise, estimated to cost $22,000, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

Although the tentative budget is about $30,000 higher than last year's budget, the tax rate is expected to remain at $3.675 per $100 assessed valuation, according to McCully, because there has been an increase in assessed valuation, due to reassessment from 23 to 25 per cent of market value.

The tentative budget includes establishing a home economics program at Tomales High School and changing the high school counselor from half-time to full-time.

The salary schedule for teachers will range from $7,001 to $13,466; principals will receive $15,912, and Asst. Supt. Anthony Matulich will receive $18,160.

The teachers had been seeking a 10 per cent pay hike, McCully reported.

The Shoreline School Board Also:

ARCHITECT — Hired architects Barnum, Mau and Folsom of Sacramento to plan a new Tomales elementary school, at a fee of 8 per cent if the job is undertaken and $1,500 if it is abandoned.

GRADUATION—Set graduation dates for June 11 at Tomales High School, and June 10 at Tomales and West Marin elementary schools.

CALENDAR—Approved the next school year's calendar of 178 school days, opening Sept. 13 and closing June 16.

NEXT MEETING—Adjourned until 8 p.m. May 20 at the district office in Tomales.

Grand Jury In Three Indictments

A San Francisco man charged with sex perversion and two San Quentin inmates were indicted yesterday by the Marin County Grand Jury.

Carl Leonard Collins, 25, was indicted in connection with a March 27 incident in which a San Francisco man told Tiburon sheriff's deputies that collins had molested his five-year-old son in a public restroom at Paradise park.

Inmate Charges E. Lennon, 28, was indicted on a charge of escape.

Prison officials said Lennon, a convicted rapist-kidnapper from Los Angeles County, fled over the roofs of prison buildings Feb. 28, using a homemade grappling hook and a long rope. He was captured near the Sears Service Center on Highway 101 shortly after getting out of the prison grounds.

Morris Ervin, 24, was charged with possessing a sharp instrument at the prison March 9.

Ervin is serving three sentences, ranging from six months to life imprisonment, for his conviction in San Francisco last year of assault with a deadly weapon, assault with a deadly weapon on a peace officer and first degree robbery.

All three men were ordered to appear Monday in Marin Superior Court for arraignment.

Heart Patient Says 'I'm Fine'

CAPE TOWN (UPI)—Dirk Van Zyl, the world's latest heart transplant recipient, was well enough today to eat a light meal, Groote Schuur Hospital said in a medical bulletin.

The bulletin said Van Zyl, 44, was in "excellent" condition, two days after his seven-hour operation.

The South African felt well enough Tuesday night to pass a note through a hospital staff member to his wife and two children. The note read, simply, "I'm fine."

2,300 Sign Air Pollution Initiative

Approximately 2,300 signatures were filed in Marin by Monday's final deadline to qualify a tough air pollution control initiative for a statewide vote.

A similar measure failed to qualify for the 1970 ballot, but then got several thousand more signatures than gathered in Marin in this year's petition campaign.

To get on the ballot this year, 317,000 valid signatures of registered voters will be needed statewide. County elections offices have until May 20 to report their final counts to the secretary of state.

Of 473 signatures filed by the preliminary deadline in March, almost 90 per cent, were verified as matching voter records, reported assistant elections officer Anthony Gullotta. More than one-third of the 1970 signatures were disqualified.

The initiative, pushed by the Los Angeles-based People's Lobby, would phase out leaded gasoline by 1976, set new standards on other gasoline contaminants, shut down polluters until they installed standby control equipment, sharply limit variances, ban new coastal drilling, ban persistent chlorinated hydrocarbons and increase fines.

Girl 5, Hurt In Car Collision

Vickie Ann Kent, 5, of 50 San Benito Way, Novato, suffered a head bump yesterday when she collided with a car while crossing San Ramon Way near San Ramon School.

Novato police reported she was walking eastward when she collided with the right rear of a southbound car driven by Mary Roxann Gray, 34, of 12 Viejo Way, Novato, which had slowed to park. The accident occurred at 11:37 a.m.

Vickie was held at Marin General Hospital for observation and discharged today.

A New Concept In Education Advanced

The Mill Valley School District board has approved in principle an experimental education program for next year but asked the administration for more details on how the system would work.

The concept of the program, called experience in cooperative education, was explained to the board Monday and then referred to district staff for further study.

Supt. James A. Collins said the new program gives students and parents an opportunity to plan educational programs to be applied in the school and to participate in the day-to-day operation of the school.

Collins said about 50 to 60 students would participate next year and that the program could be expanded if successful.

Collins said a parent advisory council would be formed to "increase the involvement of parents and students."

Trustees generally approved of the program, Collins said, provided it does not cost any more than the district ordinarily spends to educate an equal number of students.

If details can be worked out, he said, the program will be housed away from district schools for the first year but ultimately moved back to district facilities.

The Mill Valley School Board Also:

SUMMER SCHOOL — Heard that the Sausalito School District has invited Mill Valley students to take part in Sausalito's summer school program. Mill Valley will hold no summer school this year.

KING — Approved a district holiday on the anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday Jan. 15.

EASTWOOD PROPERTY — Agreed to sell 5.13 acres of land at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue in Tamalpais Valley to the Tamalpais Community Services District for $66,500.

LEAVES — Approved one-year leaves for teachers Richard Ponzio of Strawberry Point School, Janet Visick of Edna Maguire School and Judith Williams of Marin Terrace School.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Katharine Ryan, teacher coordinator at Edna Maguire.

DISMISSALS — Notified seven part-time teachers they would not be rehired next year for budgetary reasons. They are Janet Butcher, Fern Rynechi, Ruth Ragle, Laura Messer, Michael Schoob, Carmelita Crane and Marilyn Carroll.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired two math-science teachers for Edna Maguire: Patrick Harris, who will receive $8,718 per year and Gerald Nuijen, $8,496.

PROMOTION — Named Patrick McDonough, coordinator at Edna Maguire, to be vice principal at Homestead School.

Variety Show Set May 21

An original variety show called "The Second Greatest Show" will be presented at 8 p.m. May. 21 at Sleepy Hollow School by seventh and eighth grade students at Hidden Valley School.

The students will present a chorus, oriental dance, pantomine skits on school rallies, according to publicity chairman Marie Whitermore.

Proceeds from the show will be used for special school projects, extracurricular activities or landscaping the school grounds, Mrs. Whitermore said. Refreshments will be served.

Teen-Agers In Burglary Arrest

Two San Francisco teenagers were booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of burglary after they were arrested in Sausalito by police who had received a report of a burglary in progress.

Barbara Lynn Stephens, 18, and Randy Turner, 19, were apprehended about 1:24 p.m. at the Philip J. Bailey home, 61 Crecienta Drive. Police, acting on a tip, arrived at the house and said they saw Turner coming out the front door and found Miss Stephens inside.

Officers reported a front window had been smashed and said a quantity of stereo equipment was discovered piled by the door of the house.

Miss Stephens was being held in lieu of $1,875 bail to appear today in Marin Muncipal Court and Turner was freed on $1,875 bail to appear tomorrow in court.

E. Petaluma Attack On Billboards

East Petaluma Civic Association directors last night found fault with billboards and fences in Petaluma.

President Marvin Hale said the directors approved a resolution seeking an appeal of a sign variance granted last month by the Sonoma County Planning Commission.

The commission approved the request of Ryan Sign Co. for a billboard to advertise the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery products on Highway 101 at the south edge of Petaluma. Hale said the association would appeal the variance to the county board of supervisors.

Hale said the association also approved a letter to the Petaluma City Council objecting to fences exceeding the six-foot height limitation being constructed in the Boise Cascade subdivision. He said some backyard fences are as high as eight feet and constitute eyesores.

The association directors also agreed to schedule a meeting next week with representatives of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce to discuss current and future Chamber plans.

Freight Trains Hit On Curve, Kill Four

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (UPI) — Two Burlington-Northern freight trains collided head-on on a curve six miles north of here about midnight, killing four men and injuring two others, one critically.

A spokesman for B-N at the Montana division headquarters in Billings said the cause of the accident was not yet known nor was the extent of damage.

'Miss Vickie' Has A Girl

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Tiny Tims have a tiny one.

A six-pound, 10-ounce girl was born Monday at Doctor's Hospital to "Miss Vickie," the wife of entertainer Tiny Tim.

A spokesman said both mother and daughter were doing well. A name has not been chosen for the child.

It was the first child for Tiny Tim, falsetto- voiced singer whose real name is Herbert Khoury. He is 38.

The couple was wed on a national television show in December, 1969.

Budget Strides For Sausalito

A $262,513 public works budget received tentative approval last night from the Sausalito City Council which met with its finance committee in a continuing series of budget study sessions.

The proposed public works spending program for 1971-72 is approximately 27 per cent higher than last year's $190,956 budget. It includes the following expenditures: administration and engineering, $39,099; street improvement, $13,300; street and subdrain maintenance, $113,416; street trees, $28,969; street construction, $22,582 and street lighting and traffic, $33,482.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said the largest public works increases are in street and subdrain maintenance (up from $89,544); street construction (up from $2,367), and street improvements (up from $2,781). He explained the cost rise by saying the city has "been putting off some needed work for years and it must be done."

The council asked Norman Wohlschlaeger, director of public works, to list his department's 20 proposed street improvement projects in order of priority and present the list at its next budget session May 25 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

The council also gave a tentative nod to a $42,758 park budget, down from this year's $74,402 figure because the city plans fewer capital improvements and a $62,673 library budget.

Also approved was a $12,782 recreation budget which includes a new $1,000 expenditure for a recreation program for Sausalito's older residents. St. Cyr said the city will obtain matching funds from the county to set up the program.

Tentative Shoreline Budget Is Adopted

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night approved a tentative budget of $1,196,240 for fiscal 1971-72. It is not expected to change the tax rate.

Trustees also granted teachers and administrators a 4 per cent pay raise, estimated to cost $22,000, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

Although the tentative budget is about $30,000 higher than last year's budget, the tax rate is expected to remain at $3.675 per $100 assessed valuation, according to McCully, because there has been an increase in assessed valuation, due to reassessment from 23 to 25 per cent of market value.

The tentative budget includes establishing a home economics program at Tomales High School and changing the high school counselor from half-time to full-time.

The salary schedule for teachers will range from $7,001 to $13,466; principals will receive $15,912, and Asst. Supt. Anthony Matulich will receive $18,160.

The teachers had been seeking a 10 per cent pay hike, McCully reported.

The Shoreline School Board Also:

ARCHITECT — Hired architects Barnum, Mau and Folsom of Sacramento to plan a new Tomales elementary school, at a fee of 8 per cent if the job is undertaken and $1,500 if it is abandoned.

GRADUATION—Set graduation dates for June 11 at Tomales High School, and June 10 at Tomales and West Marin elementary schools.

CALENDAR—Approved the next school year's calendar of 178 school days, opening Sept. 13 and closing June 16.

NEXT MEETING—Adjourned until 8 p.m. May 20 at the district office in Tomales.

Grand Jury In Three Indictments

A San Francisco man charged with sex perversion and two San Quentin inmates were indicted yesterday by the Marin County Grand Jury.

Carl Leonard Collins, 25, was indicted in connection with a March 27 incident in which a San Francisco man told Tiburon sheriff's deputies that collins had molested his five-year-old son in a public restroom at Paradise park.

Inmate Charges E. Lennon, 28, was indicted on a charge of escape.

Prison officials said Lennon, a convicted rapist-kidnapper from Los Angeles County, fled over the roofs of prison buildings Feb. 28, using a homemade grappling hook and a long rope. He was captured near the Sears Service Center on Highway 101 shortly after getting out of the prison grounds.

Morris Ervin, 24, was charged with possessing a sharp instrument at the prison March 9.

Ervin is serving three sentences, ranging from six months to life imprisonment, for his conviction in San Francisco last year of assault with a deadly weapon, assault with a deadly weapon on a peace officer and first degree robbery.

All three men were ordered to appear Monday in Marin Superior Court for arraignment.

Heart Patient Says 'I'm Fine'

CAPE TOWN (UPI)—Dirk Van Zyl, the world's latest heart transplant recipient, was well enough today to eat a light meal, Groote Schuur Hospital said in a medical bulletin.

PREMIER BALLET — Soloists Jane Thelen and David White present a picture of grace in movement dancing "Turangalila," an original modern ballet created for Marin Civic Ballet by Norbert Visak. Visak came to Marin in January after seeing Marin dancers during the summer session of the Banff School of Fine Arts in Canada.

Showcase Of Ballets Due May 27

A showcase of six ballets will be presented at 8 p.m. May 27 by the Marin Civic Ballet at the College of Marin Theater.

Included in the program are "Turangalila," "Pas de Quatre," "Pas de Deux," "Trois Gymnopedies," "Q.E.D." and "Golden Moments of Ballet."

"Turangalila" is a modern ballet created exclusively for the Marin company by Norbert Visak, choreographer from Vancouver, Canada. It will have its first performance at the Pacific Regional Ballet Festival on May 16 in Pasadena. Jane Thelen of San Rafael and David White of Corte Madera are soloists in the ballet.

The classic ballet "Pas de Quatre", was originally choreographed in 1845 by Perrot. It is a competition among four ballerinas. Martha Feitz of Corte Madera, Carol Brannan and Jane Thelen of San Rafael and Kathi McCormick of Terra Linda will star in it.

"Pas de Deux" from "Gizelle by Burgmuller will be performed by Jane Thelen and David White.

Ron Guidi's "Trois Gymnopedies" will be danced by Cynthia Harvey of Novato, Kathi McCormick and Charles Perrier of Fairfax.

"Q.E.D." was choreographed by Charles Perrier. It is a modern ballet built on geometric lines, set to music by Vivaldi.

This ballet features the company: Kathi McCormick, Jody Marvin, Laura Przetak, Martha Feitz, Carol Brannan, Cynthia Harvey, Doreen Singer, Lori Crichton, Debbie Farb and Nancy Jones.

"Golden Moments of Ballet" is a humorous take-off on ballet of the twenties. It was choreographed by Director Leona Norman. It was presented at the Pacific Regional Ballet Festival last year in Fresno. After that presentation, the Marin Civic Ballet was named an honor company of National Regional Ballet.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lawyers for 27 Death Row inmates have asked the Supreme Court to ward off a possible sudden wave of electrocutions and gassings by agreeing to examine more issues dealing with capital punishment.

In a special brief filed Tuesday, 42 attorneys cited several undecided issues — including the ultimate question of whether the death sentence constitutes the "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the constitution.

On May 3 the Supreme Court ruled a jury may decide both guilt and punishment in death penalty cases in a single sitting. It also refused to set down guidelines for a jury to use in determining whether to impose the death penalty. The decision was interpreted as evidence the court was moving toward upholding capital punishment.

The lawyers who filed the brief Tuesday represent 27 of about 150 condemned men and women whose cases are now in the high courts. They are among the 624 persons now confined to the death row cells in the 41 states which have capital punishment.

"One constitutional question presented in the pending petitions ... is whether the states must appoint counsel for such men," the brief said. "We respectfully suggest that that issue, and the other substantial issues ... should be heard ... before the United States — which has not conducted a legal execution since June of 1967 — resumes killing these men, and in unprecedented numbers."

Eighteen of the 27 cases raised the "cruel and unusual punishment" issue.

MUSIC REVIEW

Superstar Falls Flat In Light Opera Opener

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — According to program notes the "San Francisco Civic Light Opera Association is a civic nonprofit corporation underwritten against loss by 489 public-spirited citizens and business organizations of this community."

The goose egg that was laid last night at the Curran Theater was not golden and just might make the guarantors reevaluate those pledges.

What took place was a travesty of musical theater and another one of CLO director Edwin Lester's big sells with a super-star drawing card. Who wouldn't want to see Burt Lancaster, one of filmland's most respected veterans — but who wants to see him fall on his face or, in this instance, on his peg leg?

Oh yes, the event in question was the company's opening production of the season — the 1938 musical, "Knickerbocker Holiday," from the pen of the late stalwarts, Maxwell Anderson and Kurt Weill.

Everything started out kind of pretty. The dressy first night crowd settled back in record time, the house lights dimmed, the maestro struck up the pit orchestra, the curtain raised properly and David Holliday as Washington Irving, the storyteller [illegible] set the scene for the story of Pieter Stuyvesant, the arrogant governor-general of New Amsterdam.

But what followed was one of the sloppiest attempts at musical theater that I have seen. There was more merit in even CLO's stinker of several seasons ago — Meredith Willson's "1491."

What then possesses an actor of Lancaster's stature to let himself be carried away in such a miserable offering? Perhaps Lancaster forgot that there is no cutting room on a live stage.

I felt sorry for Lancaster as he tried to cavort around the stage with one leg hidden by bellowing pantaloons, maintain some kind of arrogance and oh, yes, attempt to talk-sing in the proper microphoned spots on the stage so as to carry over the orchestra. According to pre-show publicity, Lancaster was coached extensively by Frank Sinatra. No wonder Sinatra went into retirement.

The audience managed to halfway contain itself, but when Lancaster missed a few cues and missed the mikes in that beautiful melody, "September Song," there were gasps and outright giggles which continued into Act One's finale in which Lancaster tried vainly to do a few gigs with the dance ensemble.

Intermission found patrons shaking their heads and one well-dressed gentleman remarking to his wife, "It's something different!"

The second act started out no better and when Lancaster — in the jail scene — was swung back and forth on poles and then stepped down to do a little kick or two tango-style, it was time to exit on a disgruntled ticketholder's "whoopee!"

There wasn't even any saving grace from the supporting cast, except Holliday who also took the role of Brom Broeck and Jack Collins as Mayor Tiehoven. Anita Gillette as Tina Tiehoven seemed to suffer Lancaster's plight.

And I have seen better choreography from high school students.

The only notable plus was the settings, if you are a scene watcher.

"Knickerbocker" will be around for seven weeks, then to Los Angeles. It has been reported that Lancaster had dreams of returning to Broadway after an absence of 25 years in this vehicle. What?

Guilty Plea To Drug Misdemeanor Count

A felony charge of possessing dangerous drugs was reduced to a misdemeanor against Stanley Allen Johnson, 22, of Petaluma, yesterday in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Johnson pleaded guilty to the reduced charge and was set for sentencing on June 1 at 1:30 p.m. He was arrested April 27 when Petaluma police said they found benzedrine in his possession.

Bundestag In Attack On Brandt Over Dollar

BONN (UPI) —The dollar crisis eased today, but side-effects for a number of European nations lingered on.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, who decided over the weekend to "float" the mark and let it find its own parity against the U.S. dollar by means of supply and demand, came under fierce attack in a currency debate in the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament.

Opposition speakers charged the government with "unbelievable rashness" with their action and said it threatened to produce "a crisis of instability" in West Germany.

In Brussels, the six-nation Common Market faced the quandry of what to do in light of France's refusal to take part in negotiations for a much-vaunted European currency union until Germany quits "floating" the mark. And the Common Market agricultural ministers were trying to sort out the mess of rejiggering exchange rates within the community since their price system is pegged to the Eurodollar.

The Eurodollar is a huge supply of dollars in Europe over which the United States has no control.

The Dutch and Belgian governments were at loggerheads because Belgium refused to "float" its currency in conformity with the German mark, as its Dutch neighbors did.

With two days of trading out of the way, it was apparent that money marks in the key European capitals all were watching the German market at Frankfurt for a cue to what will happen.

But in Frankfurt, the accent was on caution, with both brokers and dealers acting as if they were on thin ice. The dollar dropped Monday but not so sharply as had been expected. And on Tuesday it bounced back a bit.

Another 'Save The Cable Cars' Drive Shapes Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Another "Save the Cable Cars" campaign is shaping up in San Francisco.

Petitions opposing city plans to reduce service on one of the three cable cars lines were passed out Tuesday to passengers.

"Everybody is signing them," said a gripman. The sponsoring citizens committee said they expected to collect "thousands" of signatures for presentation to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

The Public Utilities Commission, which operates the cable cars, recently recommended reduction of the California Street line to daytime service Monday through Friday, eliminating night and weekend runs, as an economy measure. The cable cars would be replaced by buses.

PREMIER BALLET — Soloists Jane Thelen and David White present a picture of grace in movement dancing "Turangalila," an original modern ballet created for Marin Civic Ballet by Norbert Visak. Visak came to Marin in January after seeing Marin dancers during the summer session of the Banff School of Fine Arts in Canada.

Showcase Of Ballets Due May 27

A showcase of six ballets will be presented at 8 p.m. May 27 by the Marin Civic Ballet at the College of Marin Theater.

Included in the program are "Turangalila," "Pas de Quatre," "Pas de Deux," "Trois Gymnopedies," "Q.E.D." and "Golden Moments of Ballet."

"Turangalila" is a modern ballet created exclusively for the Marin company by Norbert Visak, choreographer from Vancouver, Canada. It will have its first performance at the Pacific Regional Ballet Festival on May 16 in Pasadena. Jane Thelen of San Rafael and David White of Corte Madera are soloists in the ballet.

The classic ballet "Pas de Quatre", was originally choreographed in 1845 by Perrot. It is a competition among four ballerinas. Martha Feitz of Corte Madera, Carol Brannan and Jane Thelen of San Rafael and Kathi McCormick of Terra Linda will star in it.

"Pas de Deux" from "Gizelle by Burgmuller will be performed by Jane Thelen and David White.

Ron Guidi's "Trois Gymnopedies" will be danced by Cynthia Harvey of Novato, Kathi McCormick and Charles Perrier of Fairfax.

"Q.E.D." was choreographed by Charles Perrier. It is a modern ballet built on geometric lines, set to music by Vivaldi.

This ballet features the company: Kathi McCormick, Jody Marvin, Laura Przetak, Martha Feitz, Carol Brannan, Cynthia Harvey, Doreen Singer, Lori Crichton, Debbie Farb and Nancy Jones.

"Golden Moments of Ballet" is a humorous take-off on ballet of the twenties. It was choreographed by Director Leona Norman. It was presented at the Pacific Regional Ballet Festival last year in Fresno. After that presentation, the Marin Civic Ballet was named an honor company of National Regional Ballet.

Bundestag In Attack On Brandt Over Dollar

BONN (UPI) —The dollar crisis eased today, but side-effects for a number of European nations lingered on.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, who decided over the weekend to "float" the mark and let it find its own parity against the U.S. dollar by means of supply and demand, came under fierce attack in a currency debate in the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament.

Opposition speakers charged the government with "unbelievable rashness" with their action and said it threatened to produce "a crisis of instability" in West Germany.

In Brussels, the six-nation Common Market faced the quandry of what to do in light of France's refusal to take part in negotiations for a much-vaunted European currency union until Germany quits "floating" the mark. And the Common Market agricultural ministers were trying to sort out the mess of rejiggering exchange rates within the community since their price system is pegged to the Eurodollar.

The Eurodollar is a huge supply of dollars in Europe over which the United States has no control.

The Dutch and Belgian governments were at loggerheads because Belgium refused to "float" its currency in conformity with the German mark, as its Dutch neighbors did.

With two days of trading out of the way, it was apparent that money marks in the key European capitals all were watching the German market at Frankfurt for a cue to what will happen.

But in Frankfurt, the accent was on caution, with both brokers and dealers acting as if they were on thin ice. The dollar dropped Monday but not so sharply as had been expected. And on Tuesday it bounced back a bit.

Another 'Save The Cable Cars' Drive Shapes Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Another "Save the Cable Cars" campaign is shaping up in San Francisco.

Petitions opposing city plans to reduce service on one of the three cable cars lines were passed out Tuesday to passengers.

"Everybody is signing them," said a gripman. The sponsoring citizens committee said they expected to collect "thousands" of signatures for presentation to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

The Public Utilities Commission, which operates the cable cars, recently recommended reduction of the California Street line to daytime service Monday through Friday, eliminating night and weekend runs, as an economy measure. The cable cars would be replaced by buses.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lawyers for 27 Death Row inmates have asked the Supreme Court to ward off a possible sudden wave of electrocutions and gassings by agreeing to examine more issues dealing with capital punishment.

In a special brief filed Tuesday, 42 attorneys cited several undecided issues — including the ultimate question of whether the death sentence constitutes the "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the constitution.

On May 3 the Supreme Court ruled a jury may decide both guilt and punishment in death penalty cases in a single sitting. It also refused to set down guidelines for a jury to use in determining whether to impose the death penalty. The decision was interpreted as evidence the court was moving toward upholding capital punishment.

The lawyers who filed the brief Tuesday represent 27 of about 150 condemned men and women whose cases are now in the high courts. They are among the 624 persons now confined to the death row cells in the 41 states which have capital punishment.

"One constitutional question presented in the pending petitions ... is whether the states must appoint counsel for such men," the brief said. "We respectfully suggest that that issue, and the other substantial issues ... should be heard ... before the United States — which has not conducted a legal execution since June of 1967 — resumes killing these men, and in unprecedented numbers."

Eighteen of the 27 cases raised the "cruel and unusual punishment" issue.

Superstar Falls Flat In Light Opera Opener

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — According to program notes the "San Francisco Civic Light Opera Association is a civic nonprofit corporation underwritten against loss by 489 public-spirited citizens and business organizations of this community."

The goose egg that was laid last night at the Curran Theater was not golden and just might make the guarantors reevaluate those pledges.

What took place was a travesty of musical theater and another one of CLO director Edwin Lester's big sells with a super-star drawing card. Who wouldn't want to see Burt Lancaster, one of filmland's most respected veterans — but who wants to see him fall on his face or, in this instance, on his peg leg?

Oh yes, the event in question was the company's opening production of the season — the 1938 musical, "Knickerbocker Holiday," from the pen of the late stalwarts, Maxwell Anderson and Kurt Weill.

Everything started out kind of pretty. The dressy first night crowd settled back in record time, the house lights dimmed, the maestro struck up the pit orchestra, the curtain raised properly and David Holliday as Washington Irving, the storyteller [illegible] set the scene for the story of Pieter Stuyvesant, the arrogant governor-general of New Amsterdam.

But what followed was one of the sloppiest attempts at musical theater that I have seen. There was more merit in even CLO's stinker of several seasons ago — Meredith Willson's "1491."

What then possesses an actor of Lancaster's stature to let himself be carried away in such a miserable offering? Perhaps Lancaster forgot that there is no cutting room on a live stage.

I felt sorry for Lancaster as he tried to cavort around the stage with one leg hidden by bellowing pantaloons, maintain some kind of arrogance and oh, yes, attempt to talk-sing in the proper microphoned spots on the stage so as to carry over the orchestra. According to pre-show publicity, Lancaster was coached extensively by Frank Sinatra. No wonder Sinatra went into retirement.

The audience managed to halfway contain itself, but when Lancaster missed a few cues and missed the mikes in that beautiful melody, "September Song," there were gasps and outright giggles which continued into Act One's finale in which Lancaster tried vainly to do a few gigs with the dance ensemble.

Intermission found patrons shaking their heads and one well-dressed gentleman remarking to his wife, "It's something different!"

The second act started out no better and when Lancaster — in the jail scene — was swung back and forth on poles and then stepped down to do a little kick or two tango-style, it was time to exit on a disgruntled ticketholder's "whoopee!"

There wasn't even any saving grace from the supporting cast, except Holliday who also took the role of Brom Broeck and Jack Collins as Mayor Tiehoven. Anita Gillette as Tina Tiehoven seemed to suffer Lancaster's plight.

And I have seen better choreography from high school students.

The only notable plus was the settings, if you are a scene watcher.

"Knickerbocker" will be around for seven weeks, then to Los Angeles. It has been reported that Lancaster had dreams of returning to Broadway after an absence of 25 years in this vehicle. What?

Guilty Plea To Drug Misdemeanor Count

A felony charge of possessing dangerous drugs was reduced to a misdemeanor against Stanley Allen Johnson, 22, of Petaluma, yesterday in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Johnson pleaded guilty to the reduced charge and was set for sentencing on June 1 at 1:30 p.m. He was arrested April 27 when Petaluma police said they found benzedrine in his possession.

$847 Million Plan To Clean Up Bay Is Attacked From All Sides

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

OAKLAND — An $847 million plan to clean up San Francisco Bay in five years must have won an unpopularity award yesterday.

Dozens of spokesmen for sewerage agencies, industry and the Sierra Club criticized the plan before the Regional Water Quality Control Board, scheduled to adopt the plan drafted by its staff.

Of the total price tag, some $600 million would be for piping treated sewage to deep bay waters. The sewage now is discharged in shallow water generally close to shoreline areas where it cannot get needed dilution and removal to the ocean.

Critics centered attacks on these pipes, arguing taxpayers would get more for their dollar by building facilities to reuse wastewater. The plan calls for only 81 million for such reclamation facilities in the next five years, but stresses that large scale reclamation must be the long-range goal.

The board's staff said last week that the deep water pipes and new treatment facilities (about $166 million) would be needed, regardless of future reclamation, to handle wet weather overflows and sewage too poisonous to reclaim.

Director Ercole Caroselli of San Francisco, defending the piping system, said it could be reversible to handle reclaimed water in the future.

The Sierra Club, while it disputed the efficiency of piping sewage instead of upgrading its treatment locally, strongly backed the need for a regional sewerage agency with power to sell bonds. Legislation to create such an agency is pending in Sacramento.

The Association of Bay Area Governments' planning director, Rudolph R. Platzek, said the plan ignored the problems of storm water, which can increase the flow in sewers up to 130 times the dry weather flow.

He also said that unless the plan were backed by regulations on land use it "must remain essentially short-range and corrective."

(The plan, required by the federal government to maintain local sewerage agencies' eligibility for grants, will be followed within two years by a more detailed version which is to consider additional problems such as land use controls.)

Spokesmen for San Francisco objected that financing the plan could "cripple other worthy programs," such as welfare, medical, anti-crime, school, transportation and urban development programs. San Francisco faces a $300 million project to treat its wet weather flows, a project that still would fall short of the regional board standards, they said.

The Bay Area League of Industrial Associations, representing some 2,500 individual businesses, charged that the deep water pipe system was "premature and potentially wasteful of the taxpayers' dollars in that it would tend to eliminate a number of available options and restrict the Bay Area to a master drain line that could prove unnecessary or possibly even illegal."

The league said that "further improvements, particularly in the treatment technology for industrial wastes, are anticipated."

The only uncritical comments came from the Bay Conservation and Development Commission and state Public Health Department.

The only Marin discharger to testify was the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District. Its chairman, Cyril Hansen, objected to the plan for including the district in a new ocean outfall via Tennessee Valley.

He said that the district was unique among Marin dischargers because its outfall already was in deep water. He said connecting to the proposed ocean outfall, to serve all agencies in Marin and Southern Sonoma, would cost the district up to $2 million.

The other Marin and Sonoma dischargers, as reported yesterday by the Independent-Journal, argued in written statements for reclamation instead of facilities proposed in the plan, which estimated their five years' costs at $87 million.

Hansen, however, said there was "no significant need for reclaimed water in Southern Marin."

Yesterday's all-day hearing in the Kaiser Center Auditorium completed testimony on the plan, so a previously scheduled hearing tomorrow in Hayward was canceled. Also canceled was a special board meeting to consider adoption of the plan, previously announced for May 21.

Instead, the board probably will consider its adoption at the regular monthly meeting on May 27 at the Alameda County Public Works Auditorium in Hayward. That meeting originally was set at 1:30 p.m., but will be at 9:30 a.m. if adoption of the plan is set that day.

The plan then must be adopted by the state Water Resources Control Board to meet the federal filing deadline of July 1.

State Awards Road Contract

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state has awarded one contract and called for bids on another highway job in Marin County.

A $27,775 contract was awarded Monday to Rayalco, Inc. of Danville, lowest of five bidders, for putting plain and reflective raised pavement markers along Highway 37 from Atherton Avenue east of Novato to the junction of Highway 121 in Sonoma County. The state Department of Public Works in awarding the contract set 40 working days to complete the project.

The Division of Highways called for bids to repair the Lucas Valley Road from about 4.7 miles to six miles west of Highway 101 near Marinwood. The state had $69,000 available for the Federal Aid project. Bids will be opened June 9 in Sacramento.

The Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina estimates the typical 10-year-old cyclist rides his bike about 300 miles a year.

Sheriff's Group Defends Circus

The Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association yesterday defended as a worthwhile charitable venture their fourth annual circus which has been refused endorsement by San Rafael merchants.

The Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee had issued a circular advising merchants not to support the Miller and Johnson Circus scheduled for June 12 and 13 at Marin Catholic High School.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Richmond, chairman of the circus, said that more than $24,000 has been given to Marin charities during the last three years from proceeds of the circus.

The merchants' committee had reported a Better Business Bureau finding that only 25 per cent of the total receipts go to the sponsoring organization, a volunteer organization of working deputies, and that it was unknown how much of that money actually went to charity.

Richmond said yesterday that Walter Zurcher, chairman of the merchants committee, sent out the circular before he could provide Zurcher with figures that had been requested.

Richmond said that money has been given by the association to such charities as the Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Mentally Retarded Workshop, Cerebral Palsy Association, Big Brothers, Candlelighters and the Southern and Northern Marin Boys Clubs.

He added that about $3,000 from circus proceeds is still in the bank account earmarked "Youth of Marin," which will be used for such projects as sponsoring Boy Scout troops.

He also said that an audit of the books showed that the association received 25.5 per cent of the circus's gross receipts last year with 41.5 per cent going for such overhead expenses as permits and ticket sales and the remaining 33 per cent to the circus.

As to complaints of a "hard sell" technique by telephone callers asking Marin residents to buy tickets, Richmond said that all the callers, who are local high school and college students, are given a written spiel to read over the phone.

The callers are monitored by two wives of deputies, he said. The callers are told to represent themselves as calling for the association but not members, he said.

(The Independent-Journal last week received a call from a Marin resident, who said, "Last night, a man called. He told me he was a deputy sheriff. He said the sheriff would like me to donate $5 to a charity. I don't know. I think, 'the sheriff,' so I say okay.")

He also said that no calls have been made within the San Rafael city limits for the past two weeks since the association was informed it needed a permit from the police department to solicit ticket sales.

Richmond said, further, no calls will be made within San Rafael until a permit is obtained.

The circus is scheduled for performances at 11 a.m. and 2 and 8 p.m. on June 12 and at 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. on June 13, Richmond said.

Marin City Boys' Club Seeks Funds

In an effort to raise the $34,000 needed to maintain the Marin City Boys' Club for the coming year, club president Henry Rosso said that May has been named "Be a Good Neighbor" month.

Bosso said that the club, which serves 350 boys, is entirely financed by contributions since "we receive no support from the United Bay Area Crusade. The club also has no government grants, he said.

Started in 1966 in a modest manner, the club's facilities now include game rooms, study rooms, a library, arts and crafts area, photo laboratory and an auto mechanics shop, Rosso said.

He said that contributions may be sent to the Marin City Boys' Club, 640 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Arraignment Set In Checks Case

Robert Gaillard Harrington, 32, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of passing a bad check.

He is to be arraigned in superior court June 9.

Harrington is accused of giving a worthless $500 check to Bianco Cadillac of Corte Madera in February.

RAP SESSION

Young, Old Must Act To Erase Bitterness, Educator Declares

By PAT ANGLE
(15th in a series of 24 raps)

Both the young and the old must take responsibility for the barriers and hostility which divides the two age groups, Sausalito educator James T. Toliver believes.

The bitter struggle between generations begins, he said, when the young see hypocrisy and corruption and demand sweeping changes and the old cling tenaciously to the status quo.

"Many older persons refuse to agree that we live in a society which is hypocritical and sick, a system which mouths very humanistic spiritual and political philosophies, but does not act on what it purports to believe," he said. "And this angers the young people who are aware of the problems."

But the 37-year-old Toliver feels the views of older persons crystalize and they resist even needed change because of "a real insecurity" which the youth-oriented culture creates.

While in some countries, old people are treated as "persons of great value because they have lived so long and possess a wealth of experience and knowledge," Toliver said the situation is tragically different in America.

"Look what we do to older people here," he said. "We make them feel they are in the way; we toss them into old folks' homes. As a person grows older, he realizes that things are changing down below and that he's not included in what's happening, that young people don't want him included."

The youth who fail to treat their elders compassionately, as human beings, are to blame for much of the bitterness which the old feel and which is reflected in their political and social views which the young, in turn, deplore, according to Toliver.

Also to blame, he feels is the mass media which "for marketing reasons" has influenced American thought "with its constant emphasis on youth."

"This new attitude, this hatred and fear of age and the insistence that everyone must strive to remain young and beautiful is frightening; it messes up people's heads," Toliver said. And the young, he feels, pick up the condescending attitue and use it in their dealings with the old and so the chasm between the two groups continues to widen.

Toliver, whose duties as special assistant for the Sausalito School District include handling displinary problems, feels a genuine affinity for young people. "I really dig the youth or I wouldn't be where I am," he said "I respect their very strong sense of conscience, their great foresight and the hope they have that we can someday live in a better world."

Although he feels violence is no solution to most of the problems facing the country, Toliver can understand why many young people "relate to violence."

"Their violence comes out of a heavy frustration," he said. "They feel they are not getting anywhere; the obstacles are so great. They feel they can't go to the master and tell him they want their freedom. People who have control of others don't give it up easily once they have it and get used to it."

The black educator shares some of youth's frustrations when he looks at this country. People in America, he feels, don't have enough respect for diverse ethnic groups and cultures or for each other. "Our way of life has isolated us from one another, made us less humanistic," he said. "We shut ourselves up in our houses and use things like television to replace real human relationships."

Toliver sees America as "a cold place where we work ourselves to death like mechanized machines. Sometimes," he said, "I feel as though the environment is a huge clock, always ticking . . . ticking . . . "

There are too many inequities, in the country, "too wide a gap between the people who have money and those who don't," he said. "People can say 'This is the American way; this is what made us great.' " But he added: "It's just not right to leave your brother down there, when you've got plenty and he's got none."

Hefinds hope in "the common people the ones we don't always see on the front page," those, both old and young, "who are concerned about what's happening and doing work in their own communities to make things better.

"There's a lot of darkness, but there are a few people walking around with torches; some have great big ones which light up the whole area and many have small torches. These are the people who come up to you and say: 'Let me light your way, where do you want to go?'"

Ex-Mill Valley Schools Chief In Alameda Job

Dr. George Robert McConnell, superintendent of the Mill Valley School District from 1957 to 1966, has been appointed superintendent of the Alameda Unified School District at $30,000 per year.

He was assistant superintendent at Aurora, Colo. before taking the superintendent's position at Alameda.

McConnell, who graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1937, took his bachelor and doctor degrees from the University of California at Berkeley and his master's from San Francisco State College.

He taught in the Mill Valley schools for four years prior to becoming superintendent. He resigned as superintendent in 1966 and worked as administrative intern in the Marin County school superintendent's office.

Rome Begins Big Cleanup Of Trash

ROME (UPI) —The Eternal City today began cleaning the garbage off its streets, burying its dead and taking care of its backlog of paperwork. But officials said it would take several days to undo the smelly mess piled up after six days of a strike by municipal employes.

The 23,850 striking city employes went back to work today with a promise from the government of higher pay and reform of the promotion system.

Also to blame, he feels is the mass media which "for marketing reasons" has influenced American thought "with its constant emphasis on youth."

"This new attitude, this hatred and fear of age and the insistence that everyone must strive to remain young and beautiful is frightening; it messes up people's heads," Toliver said. And the young, he feels, pick up the condescending attitue and use it in their dealings with the old and so the chasm between the two groups continues to widen.

Toliver, whose duties as special assistant for the Sausalito School District include handling displinary problems, feels a genuine affinity for young people. "I really dig the youth or I wouldn't be where I am," he said "I respect their very strong sense of conscience, their great foresight and the hope they have that we can someday live in a better world."

Although he feels violence is no solution to most of the problems facing the country, Toliver can understand why many young people "relate to violence."

"Their violence comes out of a heavy frustration," he said. "They feel they are not getting anywhere; the obstacles are so great. They feel they can't go to the master and tell him they want their freedom. People who have control of others don't give it up easily once they have it and get used to it."

The black educator shares some of youth's frustrations when he looks at this country. People in America, he feels, don't have enough respect for diverse ethnic groups and cultures or for each other. "Our way of life has isolated us from one another, made us less humanistic," he said. "We shut ourselves up in our houses and use things like television to replace real human relationships."

Toliver sees America as "a cold place where we work ourselves to death like mechanized machines. Sometimes," he said, "I feel as though the environment is a huge clock, always ticking . . . ticking . . . "

There are too many inequities, in the country, "too wide a gap between the people who have money and those who don't," he said. "People can say 'This is the American way; this is what made us great.' " But he added: "It's just not right to leave your brother down there, when you've got plenty and he's got none."

Hefinds hope in "the common people the ones we don't always see on the front page," those, both old and young, "who are concerned about what's happening and doing work in their own communities to make things better.

"There's a lot of darkness, but there are a few people walking around with torches; some have great big ones which light up the whole area and many have small torches. These are the people who come up to you and say: 'Let me light your way, where do you want to go?'"

Ex-Mill Valley Schools Chief In Alameda Job

Dr. George Robert McConnell, superintendent of the Mill Valley School District from 1957 to 1966, has been appointed superintendent of the Alameda Unified School District at $30,000 per year.

He was assistant superintendent at Aurora, Colo. before taking the superintendent's position at Alameda.

McConnell, who graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1937, took his bachelor and doctor degrees from the University of California at Berkeley and his master's from San Francisco State College.

He taught in the Mill Valley schools for four years prior to becoming superintendent. He resigned as superintendent in 1966 and worked as administrative intern in the Marin County school superintendent's office.

Rome Begins Big Cleanup Of Trash

ROME (UPI) —The Eternal City today began cleaning the garbage off its streets, burying its dead and taking care of its backlog of paperwork. But officials said it would take several days to undo the smelly mess piled up after six days of a strike by municipal employes.

The 23,850 striking city employes went back to work today with a promise from the government of higher pay and reform of the promotion system.

$847 Million Plan To Clean Up Bay Is Attacked From All Sides

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

OAKLAND — An $847 million plan to clean up San Francisco Bay in five years must have won an unpopularity award yesterday.

Dozens of spokesmen for sewerage agencies, industry and the Sierra Club criticized the plan before the Regional Water Quality Control Board, scheduled to adopt the plan drafted by its staff.

Of the total price tag, some $600 million would be for piping treated sewage to deep bay waters. The sewage now is discharged in shallow water generally close to shoreline areas where it cannot get needed dilution and removal to the ocean.

Critics centered attacks on these pipes, arguing taxpayers would get more for their dollar by building facilities to reuse wastewater. The plan calls for only 81 million for such reclamation facilities in the next five years, but stresses that large scale reclamation must be the long-range goal.

The board's staff said last week that the deep water pipes and new treatment facilities (about $166 million) would be needed, regardless of future reclamation, to handle wet weather overflows and sewage too poisonous to reclaim.

Director Ercole Caroselli of San Francisco, defending the piping system, said it could be reversible to handle reclaimed water in the future.

The Sierra Club, while it disputed the efficiency of piping sewage instead of upgrading its treatment locally, strongly backed the need for a regional sewerage agency with power to sell bonds. Legislation to create such an agency is pending in Sacramento.

The Association of Bay Area Governments' planning director, Rudolph R. Platzek, said the plan ignored the problems of storm water, which can increase the flow in sewers up to 130 times the dry weather flow.

He also said that unless the plan were backed by regulations on land use it "must remain essentially short-range and corrective."

(The plan, required by the federal government to maintain local sewerage agencies' eligibility for grants, will be followed within two years by a more detailed version which is to consider additional problems such as land use controls.)

Spokesmen for San Francisco objected that financing the plan could "cripple other worthy programs," such as welfare, medical, anti-crime, school, transportation and urban development programs. San Francisco faces a $300 million project to treat its wet weather flows, a project that still would fall short of the regional board standards, they said.

The Bay Area League of Industrial Associations, representing some 2,500 individual businesses, charged that the deep water pipe system was "premature and potentially wasteful of the taxpayers' dollars in that it would tend to eliminate a number of available options and restrict the Bay Area to a master drain line that could prove unnecessary or possibly even illegal."

The league said that "further improvements, particularly in the treatment technology for industrial wastes, are anticipated."

The only uncritical comments came from the Bay Conservation and Development Commission and state Public Health Department.

The only Marin discharger to testify was the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District. Its chairman, Cyril Hansen, objected to the plan for including the district in a new ocean outfall via Tennessee Valley.

He said that the district was unique among Marin dischargers because its outfall already was in deep water. He said connecting to the proposed ocean outfall, to serve all agencies in Marin and Southern Sonoma, would cost the district up to $2 million.

The other Marin and Sonoma dischargers, as reported yesterday by the Independent-Journal, argued in written statements for reclamation instead of facilities proposed in the plan, which estimated their five years' costs at $87 million.

Hansen, however, said there was "no significant need for reclaimed water in Southern Marin."

Yesterday's all-day hearing in the Kaiser Center Auditorium completed testimony on the plan, so a previously scheduled hearing tomorrow in Hayward was canceled. Also canceled was a special board meeting to consider adoption of the plan, previously announced for May 21.

Instead, the board probably will consider its adoption at the regular monthly meeting on May 27 at the Alameda County Public Works Auditorium in Hayward. That meeting originally was set at 1:30 p.m., but will be at 9:30 a.m. if adoption of the plan is set that day.

The plan then must be adopted by the state Water Resources Control Board to meet the federal filing deadline of July 1.

State Awards Road Contract

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state has awarded one contract and called for bids on another highway job in Marin County.

A $27,775 contract was awarded Monday to Rayalco, Inc. of Danville, lowest of five bidders, for putting plain and reflective raised pavement markers along Highway 37 from Atherton Avenue east of Novato to the junction of Highway 121 in Sonoma County. The state Department of Public Works in awarding the contract set 40 working days to complete the project.

The Division of Highways called for bids to repair the Lucas Valley Road from about 4.7 miles to six miles west of Highway 101 near Marinwood. The state had $69,000 available for the Federal Aid project. Bids will be opened June 9 in Sacramento.

The Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina estimates the typical 10-year-old cyclist rides his bike about 300 miles a year.

Sheriff's Group Defends Circus

The Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association yesterday defended as a worthwhile charitable venture their fourth annual circus which has been refused endorsement by San Rafael merchants.

The Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee had issued a circular advising merchants not to support the Miller and Johnson Circus scheduled for June 12 and 13 at Marin Catholic High School.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Richmond, chairman of the circus, said that more than $24,000 has been given to Marin charities during the last three years from proceeds of the circus.

The merchants' committee had reported a Better Business Bureau finding that only 25 per cent of the total receipts go to the sponsoring organization, a volunteer organization of working deputies, and that it was unknown how much of that money actually went to charity.

Richmond said yesterday that Walter Zurcher, chairman of the merchants committee, sent out the circular before he could provide Zurcher with figures that had been requested.

Richmond said that money has been given by the association to such charities as the Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Mentally Retarded Workshop, Cerebral Palsy Association, Big Brothers. Candlelighters and the Southern and Northern Marin Boys Clubs.

He added that about $3,000 from circus proceeds is still in the bank account earmarked "Youth of Marin," which will be used for such projects as sponsoring Boy Scout troops.

He also said that an audit of the books showed that the association received 25.5 per cent of the circus's gross receipts last year with 41.5 per cent going for such overhead expenses as permits and ticket sales and the remaining 33 per cent to the circus.

As to complaints of a "hard sell" technique by telephone callers asking Marin residents to buy tickets, Richmond said that all the callers, who are local high school and college students, are given a written spiel to read over the phone.

The callers are monitored by two wives of deputies, he said. The callers are told to represent themselves as calling for the association but not members, he said.

(The Independent-Journal last week received a call from a Marin resident, who said, "Last night, a man called. He told me he was a deputy sheriff. He said the sheriff would like me to donate $5 to a charity. I don't know. I think, 'the sheriff,' so I say okay.")

He also said that no calls have been made within the San Rafael city limits for the past two weeks since the association was informed it needed a permit from the police department to solicit ticket sales.

Richmond said, further, no calls will be made within San Rafael until a permit is obtained.

The circus is scheduled for performances at 11 a.m. and 2 and 8 p.m. on June 12 and at 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. on June 13, Richmond said.

Marin City Boys' Club Seeks Funds

In an effort to raise the $34,000 needed to maintain the Marin City Boys' Club for the coming year, club president Henry Rosso said that May has been named "Be a Good Neighbor" month.

Bosso said that the club, which serves 350 boys, is entirely financed by contributions since "we receive no support from the United Bay Area Crusade. The club also has no government grants, he said.

Started in 1966 in a modest manner, the club's facilities now include game rooms, study rooms, a library, arts and crafts area, photo laboratory and an auto mechanics shop, Rosso said.

He said that contributions may be sent to the Marin City Boys' Club, 640 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Arraignment Set In Checks Case

Robert Gaillard Harrington, 32, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of passing a bad check.

He is to be arraigned in superior court June 9.

Harrington is accused of giving a worthless $500 check to Bianco Cadillac of Corte Madera in February.

On this day in history:

In 1922 the magazine "Radio Broadcast" commented, "The rate of increase in the number who spend at least part of an evening listening to radio is almost incomprehensible."

In 1937 George VI was crowned king of England, succeeding his brother Edward, who abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

In 1949 Soviet authorities in Berlin announced the end of a blockade of that divided German city, 328 days after it began.

In 1963 President John F. Kennedy ordered federal troops into Birmingham, Ala., after an outbreak of civil rights riots.

A thought for today: Scottish essayist Thomas Carlyle said, "Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man. But for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred who will stand adversity."

'Woody Guthrie Day' Sought By Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., has asked Congress to declare July 14 "Woody Guthrie Day" to honor the balladeer and songwriter who was born on that date.

Guthrie wrote hundreds of songs including some such as "This Land Is Your Land" which have become part of the American tradition. He died in 1967.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Good Mask In Game Of Bridge Is The Poker Face

Most people know that it's necessary to wear a poker face when you play poker — to prevent the other players from guessing what you're up to. Even if your game is bridge and even if you think that poker is not quite respectable, you still need a poker face. You must occasionally deceive an opponent, even at bridge, and you can't hope to do so unless you can look prim and proper just when you're most devious and devilish.

LOW DIAMOND

When today's hand was played some years ago, Philadelphia expert Skippy Becker led the six of diamonds from the West hand. Dummy's queen won the first trick, and Becker managed to refrain from wincing.

It was a routine hand at most tables of the tournament. Declarer led the ten of hearts for a finesse, losing to the queen. West might then lead anything he liked: declarer could lead a trump to his hand if the lead put him in dummy. South could then draw the last trump and run his tricks safely.

The hand didn't go that way at Becker's table. Declarer led the ten of hearts from dummy at the second trick, but Becker did not play the queen of hearts from the West hand. Instead, he played the three of hearts, casually and in normal tempo. He was following suit, not refusing the trick.

SUSPICIOUS LOOK

South hadn't been born the day before, so he gave Becker a suspicious look when the ten of hearts won the second trick. Becker looked placid, and South relaxed. After all, finesses have been known to succeed.

So South led the other trump from dummy and repeated the finesse by playing the jack from his own hand. From South's point of view, it was possible that East had started with four trumps; and then the second finesse would be necessary.

DEUCE OF SPADES

Becker took the queen of hearts, still placid, and returned the deuce of spades to dummy's king. South looked for the safest way of getting to his hand to draw the last trump and overlooked the absolutely safe spade ruff. Instead he led a club to the king. Becker ruffed this silly trick, defeating the slam.

This is when a bridge player needs his poker face most — to avoid laughing at an opponent who has made an unbelievably silly play.

British nurse Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, was born May 12, 1820.

On this day in history:

In 1922 the magazine "Radio Broadcast" commented, "The rate of increase in the number who spend at least part of an evening listening to radio is almost incomprehensible."

In 1937 George VI was crowned king of England, succeeding his brother Edward, who abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

In 1949 Soviet authorities in Berlin announced the end of a blockade of that divided German city, 328 days after it began.

In 1963 President John F. Kennedy ordered federal troops into Birmingham, Ala., after an outbreak of civil rights riots.

A thought for today: Scottish essayist Thomas Carlyle said, "Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man. But for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred who will stand adversity."

'Woody Guthrie Day' Sought By Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., has asked Congress to declare July 14 "Woody Guthrie Day" to honor the balladeer and songwriter who was born on that date.

Guthrie wrote hundreds of songs including some such as "This Land Is Your Land" which have become part of the American tradition. He died in 1967.

No. 542 May 12, 1971

ORDINANCE NO. 1017
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL ADDING TITLE 17 WATERS AND WATERWAYS TO THE MUNICIPAL CODE

THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1: Title 17 is hereby added to the City of San Rafael Municipal Code to read as follows:

Title 17
WATERS AND WATERWAYS
Chapter 17.10
DUMPING, DREDGING AND CONSTRUCTION WITHIN TIDAL WATERWAYS

Sections:
17.10.01 Purposes
17.10.02 Applicability and Exceptions
17.10.03 Prohibitions
17.10.04 Procedure
17.10.05 Guarantees
17.10.06 Noncompliance
17.10.07 Appeals

17.10.01 PURPOSES. San Rafael tidelands, shorelines, waterways, canals, beaches, or salt marshes are vital natural resources which can provide great benefits to present and future human generations. They offer scenic views, open space, recreational activities such as fishing, swimming, boating, walking, wildlife habitats, opportunities for water transportation and sites for homes and for water-oriented resorts and industries. They fulfill an indispensable role in preserving the climate and air purity of the city.

These benefits could be destroyed or seriously diminished by uncontrolled filling, excavation or construction. Therefore, it is the purpose of this Title to encourage the fullest development of these potential benefits with a minimum of physical disturbance and to set forth the standards and procedures by which filling, excavation and construction in tideland areas will be controlled.

17.10.02 APPLICABILITY AND EXCEPTIONS. This Title shall apply to all portions of San Pablo Bay and San Rafael Bay, tidelands, shorelines, waterways, canals, beaches or salt marshes within the City of San Rafael which are below an elevation of 7.5 feet Mean Lower Low Water Datum and to contiguous land between that elevation line, and, either, a point 100 feet inland or the nearest publicly maintained road, whichever is closer. The following items shall not be subject to this Title:

1. Any structure, fill or excavation which is not within and which does not enroach on the tidelands and waterways as defined herein.

2. Any emergency work necessary to prevent or to minimize imminent damage to land or improvements from flood waters. Such emergency work shall be reported in writing within ten (10) days after the start of such work to the Department of Public Works.

3. Any structure, fill or excavation which the San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee finds to be minor or incidental.

4. Any structure, fill or excavation which has been approved prior to the adoption of this ordinance as part of any application, action or permit by the Planning Commission or the Planning Director, except that such structure, fill or excavation shall not be deemed to have been approved for a building permit. Where a development is subject to other provisions of the San Rafael Municipal Code, approval of any fill, excavation, or structure within the scope of this Title, which is contained in the development, shall be subject to the findings of Section 17.10.04 (4) of this Title.

5. Any structure, fill or excavation which is behind secure dikes, which existed prior to the effective date of this Title and which is normally not subject to tidal action by virtue of the dike, or which is only temporarily under tidal action due to defective tide gates.

6. Within creeks, estuaries and rivers the applicability of this Title shall extend downstream from certain defined points as follows:

a. San Rafael Canal: The bridge at the northbound off-ramp of Highway 101 eastward (Irwin Street).

b. The North Fork of Las Gallinas Creek: Highway 101 eastward.

c. Any other navigable waters annexed by the City of San Rafael.

17.10.10 PROHIBITIONS. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other ordinance of the City of San Rafael, it is hereby declared unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or public agency to permit, cause to permit, do or cause to do any of the following:

a. Dump, deposit or construct within or fill with materials, dirt, earth, mud, garbage, refuse or any material whatsoever on any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.04.

b. Excavate, dredge or remove any dirt, earth, mud, sand, gravel or any other material from any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.14.

c. Construct, or place any pier, wall, bulkhead, breakwater or other structure on any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.04.

17.10.04 PROCEDURE.

1. Filing and Content of Application for a Tidelands Permit. Application for fill, excavation or structures within tidelands as defined in Section 17.10.02 shall be made to the Department of Public Works in the form of a tidelands permit. The application shall include information showing existing and proposed grades, extent and amount of proposed fill or excavation, location of all existing and proposed structures, a tentative plan for the future development of the area, and sufficient detail to allow a determination of the impact of the proposal on the navigability, appearance and safety of the waterways.

2. Action by San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee. If the application includes only a structure and/or if the proposed fill or excavation covers less than one acre, the San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee, consisting of the Director of Public Works, Chief Building Inspector, Director of Parks and and Recreation, and the Planning Director, shall approve, conditionally approve or deny the application within 45 days after the filing date of the application, unless a later date is agreed to by the applicant. The Fill Committee shall consider, in arriving at its decision applicable regional and state plans for tidal waterways and the criteria, standards, and policies developed by agencies administering such regional and state plans. The San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee shall take the above action in meetings open to the public. Interested parties shall have opportunity to present their views and such views shall be evaluated along with data gathered from other sources. Failure of the Fill Committee to act within the prescribed time shall constitute approval of the application.

3.Action by Planning Commission. If the proposed fill or excavation covers one acre or more, the Fill Committee shall report to the Planning Commission its recommendations. The Planning Commission shall approve, conditionally approve or deny the application within 60 days of the filing date, unless a later date is agreed to by the applicant. The Planning Commission shall consider, in arriving at its decision, applicable regional and state plans for tidal waterways and the criteria, standards, and policies developed by agencies administering such regional and state plans. The Planning Commission shall take the above action in meetings open to the public. Interested parties shall have opportunity to present their views and such views shall be evaluated along with data gathered from other sources. Failure of the Planning Commission to act within the prescribed time shall constitute approval of the application.

4. Findings. The San Rafael Tidelands Fill Committee or the Planning Commission shall approve or conditionally approve applications where it is found that:

a. The encroachment of the tidelands is the minimum necessary to achieve the purpose of the proposed work,

b. the proposed fill, excavation or construction will not unduly and unnecessarily:

(1) Inhibit navigation, or access to publicly owned tidelands;

(2) Cause, or increase the likelihood of, water pollution;

(3) Cause, or increase the likelihood of, flooding of adjoining lands;

(4) Destroy, or accelerate the destruction of habitats essential to species of fish, shellfish and other wildlife of substantial public benefit;

(5) Diminish the scenic beauty of the shoreline in a manner which will impede future construction of parks, boat harbors and recreation facilities;

(6) Create a safety hazard in connection with settlement of fill or earthquakes; or

(7) Diminish natural waterways by siltation, sedimentation or bank erosion.

c. The proposal is in substantial harmony with any adopted City General Plan or Specific Plan.

d. Public benefits will be created to offset some of the detriments which may be caused by the nature of the proposal.

However, this finding is not required:

(1) Where the application covers lands wholly above elevation 7.5 feet Mean Lower Low Water Datum, or

(2) Where the size or potential uses of the parcel are so limited that creation of a public benefit would be unfeasible and where the amount and effect of fill, excavating or structures are minimal.

(3) If the water frontage of any presently existing parcel is less than 250 feet or its area is less than 2-½ acres, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it shall be presumed that there will be no detriments which are required to be offset by public benefits.

These public benefits may be realized, through; development of new recreational opportunities; or provision of new public access to the water; or enhancement of shoreline appearance; or establishment of water transportation; or facilities for land or air transportation where all other alternatives have been exhausted; or construction of water-oriented industry or development of marine food supplies or other benefits considered by the Planning Commission to be of comparable importance.

5. Filing Date. The filing date shall be deemed the date on which the Department of Public Works receives the last submission required as part of the application unless the Director of Public Works or his authorized representative agree in writing to an earlier filing date.

6. Notices. Not later than ten (10) working days prior to an application appearing before the body to which it is initially submitted, notice of the time and place where the matter will be considered and a brief description of the proposal shall be mailed to the owners of record of abutting properties on the adjoining and opposite shoreline within 300 feet of the proposed work, as shown on the latest county tax roll. Failure to mail notice shall not invalidate any proceedings under this Title.

7. Expiration and Extension of Tidelands Permits. A tidelands permit shall expire one year from the effective date of the approval, unless a different expiration date is stipulated at the time of approval. Prior to the expiration of such a permit, the applicant may apply to the Department of Public Works for an extension. The Fill Committee may make minor modifications of the permit at the time of extension if it finds that there had been a substantial change in the circumstances surrounding the original approval. Extensions may be granted for a period of no more than one year from the time of expiration of the original permit. If a building permit or excavation permit was issued during the effective life of a tidelands permit the expiration date of the tidelands permit shall be automatically extended to concur with the expiration date of the building permit or excavation permit.

17.10.05 GUARANTEES. Guarantees, sureties or other evidence of compliance may be required in connection with the approval of a tidelands permit.

17.10.06 NONCOMPLIANCE. Failure to comply in any respect with an approved permit shall constitute grounds for the immediate stoppage of work involved in said noncompliance.

17.10.07 APPEALS. Chapter 14.84 "Appeals" of the San Rafael Municipal Code shall apply to all appeals regarding actions taken under this Title. Appeals from the Fill Committee shall follow the procedure set forth in Section 14.84.020.

DIVISION 2: Constitutionality. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The Council hereby declared that it would have adopted the Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

DIVISION 3: This Ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage, in the INDEPENDENT JOURNAL, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael, and shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after its final passage.

CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL
No. 542 May 12, 1971

ORDINANCE NO. 1017

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL ADDING TITLE 17 WATERS AND WATERWAYS TO THE MUNICIPAL CODE

THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1: Title 17 is hereby added to the City of San Rafael Municipal Code to read as follows:

Title 17
WATERS AND WATERWAYS
Chapter 17.10
DUMPING, DREDGING AND CONSTRUCTION WITHIN TIDAL WATERWAYS

Sections:
17.10.01 Purposes
17.10.02 Applicability and Exceptions
17.10.03 Prohibitions
17.10.04 Procedure
17.10.05 Guarantees
17.10.06 Noncompliance
17.10.07 Appeals

17.10.01 PURPOSES. San Rafael tidelands, shorelines, waterways, canals, beaches, or salt marshes are vital natural resources which can provide great benefits to present and future human generations. They offer scenic views, open space, recreational activities such as fishing, swimming, boating, walking, wildlife habitats, opportunities for water transportation and sites for homes and for water-oriented resorts and industries. They fulfill an indispensable role in preserving the climate and air purity of the city.

These benefits could be destroyed or seriously diminished by uncontrolled filling, excavation or construction. Therefore, it is the purpose of this Title to encourage the fullest development of these potential benefits with a minimum of physical disturbance and to set forth the standards and procedures by which filling, excavation and construction in tideland areas will be controlled.

17.10.02 APPLICABILITY AND EXCEPTIONS. This Title shall apply to all portions of San Pablo Bay and San Rafael Bay, tidelands, shorelines, waterways, canals, beaches or salt marshes within the City of San Rafael which are below an elevation of 7.5 feet Mean Lower Low Water Datum and to contiguous land between that elevation line, and, either, a point 100 feet inland or the nearest publicly maintained road, whichever is closer. The following items shall not be subject to this Title:

1. Any structure, fill or excavation which is not within and which does not enroach on the tidelands and waterways as defined herein.

2. Any emergency work necessary to prevent or to minimize imminent damage to land or improvements from flood waters. Such emergency work shall be reported in writing within ten (10) days after the start of such work to the Department of Public Works.

3. Any structure, fill or excavation which the San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee finds to be minor or incidental.

4. Any structure, fill or excavation which has been approved prior to the adoption of this ordinance as part of any application, action or permit by the Planning Commission or the Planning Director, except that such structure, fill or excavation shall not be deemed to have been approved for a building permit. Where a development is subject to other provisions of the San Rafael Municipal Code, approval of any fill, excavation, or structure within the scope of this Title, which is contained in the development, shall be subject to the findings of Section 17.10.04 (4) of this Title.

5. Any structure, fill or excavation which is behind secure dikes, which existed prior to the effective date of this Title and which is normally not subject to tidal action by virtue of the dike, or which is only temporarily under tidal action due to defective tide gates.

6. Within creeks, estuaries and rivers the applicability of this Title shall extend downstream from certain defined points as follows:

a. San Rafael Canal: The bridge at the northbound off-ramp of Highway 101 eastward (Irwin Street).

b. The North Fork of Las Gallinas Creek: Highway 101 eastward.

c. Any other navigable waters annexed by the City of San Rafael.

17.10.10 PROHIBITIONS. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other ordinance of the City of San Rafael, it is hereby declared unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or public agency to permit, cause to permit, do or cause to do any of the following:

a. Dump, deposit or construct within or fill with materials, dirt, earth, mud, garbage, refuse or any material whatsoever on any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.04.

Legal Notice

b. Excavate, dredge or remove any dirt, earth, mud, sand, gravel or any other material from any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.14.

c. Construct, or place any pier, wall, bulkhead, breakwater or other structure on any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.04.

17.10.04 PROCEDURE.

1. Filing and Content of Application for a Tidelands Permit. Application for fill, excavation or structures within tidelands as defined in Section 17.10.02 shall be made to the Department of Public Works in the form of a tidelands permit. The application shall include information showing existing and proposed grades, extent and amount of proposed fill or excavation, location of all existing and proposed structures, a tentative plan for the future development of the area, and sufficient detail to allow a determination of the impact of the proposal on the navigability, appearance and safety of the waterways.

2. Action by San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee. If the application includes only a structure and/or if the proposed fill or excavation covers less than one acre, the San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee, consisting of the Director of Public Works, Chief Building Inspector, Director of Parks and and Recreation, and the Planning Director, shall approve, conditionally approve or deny the application within 45 days after the filing date of the application, unless a later date is agreed to by the applicant. The Fill Committee shall consider, in arriving at its decision applicable regional and state plans for tidal waterways and the criteria, standards, and policies developed by agencies administering such regional and state plans. The San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee shall take the above action in meetings open to the public. Interested parties shall have opportunity to present their views and such views shall be evaluated along with data gathered from other sources. Failure of the Fill Committee to act within the prescribed time shall constitute approval of the application.

3.Action by Planning Commission. If the proposed fill or excavation covers one acre or more, the Fill Committee shall report to the Planning Commission its recommendations. The Planning Commission shall approve, conditionally approve or deny the application within 60 days of the filing date, unless a later date is agreed to by the applicant. The Planning Commission shall consider, in arriving at its decision, applicable regional and state plans for tidal waterways and the criteria, standards, and policies developed by agencies administering such regional and state plans. The Planning Commission shall take the above action in meetings open to the public. Interested parties shall have opportunity to present their views and such views shall be evaluated along with data gathered from other sources. Failure of the Planning Commission to act within the prescribed time shall constitute approval of the application.

4. Findings. The San Rafael Tidelands Fill Committee or the Planning Commission shall approve or conditionally approve applications where it is found that:

a. The encroachment of the tidelands is the minimum necessary to achieve the purpose of the proposed work,

b. the proposed fill, excavation or construction will not unduly and unnecessarily:

(1) Inhibit navigation, or access to publicly owned tidelands;

(2) Cause, or increase the likelihood of, water pollution;

(3) Cause, or increase the likelihood of, flooding of adjoining lands;

(4) Destroy, or accelerate the destruction of habitats essential to species of fish, shellfish and other wildlife of substantial public benefit;

(5) Diminish the scenic beauty of the shoreline in a manner which will impede future construction of parks, boat harbors and recreation facilities;

(6) Create a safety hazard in connection with settlement of fill or earthquakes; or

(7) Diminish natural waterways by siltation, sedimentation or bank erosion.

c. The proposal is in substantial harmony with any adopted City General Plan or Specific Plan.

d. Public benefits will be created to offset some of the detriments which may be caused by the nature of the proposal.

However, this finding is not required:

(1) Where the application covers lands wholly above elevation 7.5 feet Mean Lower Low Water Datum, or

(2) Where the size or potential uses of the parcel are so limited that creation of a public benefit would be unfeasible and where the amount and effect of fill, excavating or structures are minimal.

(3) If the water frontage of any presently existing parcel is less than 250 feet or its area is less than 2-½ acres, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it shall be presumed that there will be no detriments which are required to be offset by public benefits.

These public benefits may be realized, through; development of new recreational opportunities; or provision of new public access to the water; or enhancement of shoreline appearance; or establishment of water transportation; or facilities for land or air transportation where all other alternatives have been exhausted; or construction of water-oriented industry or development of marine food supplies or other benefits considered by the Planning Commission to be of comparable importance.

5. Filing Date. The filing date shall be deemed the date on which the Department of Public Works receives the last submission required as part of the application unless the Director of Public Works or his authorized representative agree in writing to an earlier filing date.

Legal Notice

6. Notices. Not later than ten (10) working days prior to an application appearing before the body to which it is initially submitted, notice of the time and place where the matter will be considered and a brief description of the proposal shall be mailed to the owners of record of abutting properties on the adjoining and opposite shoreline within 300 feet of the proposed work, as shown on the latest county tax roll. Failure to mail notice shall not invalidate any proceedings under this Title.

7. Expiration and Extension of Tidelands Permits. A tidelands permit shall expire one year from the effective date of the approval, unless a different expiration date is stipulated at the time of approval. Prior to the expiration of such a permit, the applicant may apply to the Department of Public Works for an extension. The Fill Committee may make minor modifications of the permit at the time of extension if it finds that there had been a substantial change in the circumstances surrounding the original approval. Extensions may be granted for a period of no more than one year from the time of expiration of the original permit. If a building permit or excavation permit was issued during the effective life of a tidelands permit the expiration date of the tidelands permit shall be automatically extended to concur with the expiration date of the building permit or excavation permit.

17.10.05 GUARANTEES. Guarantees, sureties or other evidence of compliance may be required in connection with the approval of a tidelands permit.

17.10.06 NONCOMPLIANCE. Failure to comply in any respect with an approved permit shall constitute grounds for the immediate stoppage of work involved in said noncompliance.

17.10.07 APPEALS. Chapter 14.84 "Appeals" of the San Rafael Municipal Code shall apply to all appeals regarding actions taken under this Title. Appeals from the Fill Committee shall follow the procedure set forth in Section 14.84.020.

DIVISION 2: Constitutionality. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The Council hereby declared that it would have adopted the Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

DIVISION 3: This Ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage, in the INDEPENDENT JOURNAL, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael, and shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after its final passage.

WATER DUMPING BOMBER

A CI-215 "water bomber", on loan from the Province of Quebec, takes off (top picture) to show its ability to scoop up water and then maneuvers in the air to dump it. The demonstration was held yesterday on the Anacostia River near Washington D.C. by General Dynamics for congressmen and other government officials. The plane has been used in recent months in Oklahoma, Alabama, Tennessee and Florida with excellent results in combating forest fires.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Rubella Vaccine Is Tricky But Epidemic Shows Its Need

Our new German measles vaccine is welcome. Rubella is not serious unless it occurs to expectant mothers especially during the first three months of pregnancy. The causative virus may lead to congenital defects of the heart, eyes, brain, or ears. The vaccine can also have a bad effect upon the fetus. There it is given only when the woman is not and does not plan to become pregnant during the ensuing few months.

THIS IS THE tricky aspect of the vaccine. One attack of German measles usually confers lifelong immunity but reinfection may occur and all too often without the usual symptons. It is for this reason that a woman who has had rubella may need the vaccine despite the fact that 85 per cent of young adults are definitely immune.

Following an attack of German measles, protective antibodies appear in the blood. (Reexposure does the same.) Tests show that similar antibodies develop in those receiving the vaccine, except that they are not so numerous. There are enough antibodies, however, to protect most people. New evidence shows that antibody levels begin to wane after 4 years and a booster injection may be necessary. Some doctors recommend revaccination after each pregnancy.

ONLY ONE INJECTION of the vaccine is needed. Some persons develop mild fever or local soreness at the site of the injection. Now and then the joints ache. Since the viruses used in making the vaccine are grown in duck eggs and neomycin, those sensitive to neomycin, duck or chicken should not receive the product. The manufacturers also suggest that the vaccine be withheld from anyone receiving cortisone like products or X-ray therapy. Immunization is not recommended for infants under a year old.

We need the vaccine. During the rubella epidemic of 1964, an estimated 20,000 babies with serious defects were born to women who had been infected. The shots can be given to children between 1 year of age and puberty.

PARTY PHOBIA

Miss T. R. writes: How can I overcome my fear of social gatherings?

REPLY

Develop more poise by forcing yourself to attend these functions assuming, of course, that you feel you must go. Many people are ill at ease at large gatherings and the cocktail probably was invented to make the shy person relax. See a psychiatrist if your fear is so acute that you cannot attend parties. The alternative is obvious.

DROOPING LIDS

E. T. writes: Is there any type of exercise that will help drooping lids?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. Neostigmine may help if the drooping is due to myasthenia gravis but it will have no effect on other types. Mechanical props are used occasionally to hold up the lids. In some instances, surgery is recommended.

FIRST DIAGNOSE, THEN TREAT

A. P. writes: Can a diagnostician cure an illness?

REPLY

Yes. All physicians must be diagnosticians before they can treat a disease.

ACROBATIC NAVEL

A reader writes: What causes my navel to move up and down when I breathe?

REPLY

This is not a unique accomplishment.

Vacancies For Two Youths On Juvenile Panel

Two openings exist for youth to serve on the Marin Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission, according to chairman James C. Upshaw who announced today that youths interested should contact L. Charles Smith, youth coordinator, in Room 163 of the Marin Hall of Justice.

The two vacancies were created with the resignations of Douglas W. Scott and Terrence Keenan.

Applicants will be interviewed at the next regular meeting of the commission at 4 p.m. May 27 in Room 332 of the Hall of Justice.

The commission is the group that made an extensive study of delinquency in the county last summer and is now trying to help Santa Venetia set up a community center.

Reagan, Demo Chieftains Hold Summit On Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan and Democrats, agreeing the Legislature probably won't approve an income tax withholding bill unless it's part of a major "reform" package, inched uneasily toward a second honeymoon today.

Republican and Democratic leaders met privately with the governor in a two-and-a-halfhour "summit conference" Tuesday but emerged still split over welfare reform, taxes and balancing Reagan's proposed $6.7 billion state budget.

Reagan termed the meeting "fruitful" while Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti called it an "important first step" but said "nothing major was accomplished."

They decided to meet again—probably next week—when Democrats would return with a specific position on Reagan's welfare reform plan. Democrats outnumber Republicans in both houses.

Reagan and Democrats started the year vowing to work together and communicate with each other. But the honeymoon collapsed over Reagan's budget and his welfare overhaul proposals.

Moretti said he quit meeting with the governor because he felt he didn't receive a "fair" hearing.

Strangely, it is withholding the state income tax through payroll checks that has reversed the roles of Reagan and the Democrats from last year.

Reagan, who until 1970 adamantly fought withholding, now insists it must be approved and shouldn't be attached to a tax reform package. Democrats contend withholding and "reform" must remain inseparable.

Reagan's unsuccessful tax program last year called for withholding. No withholding only bill has ever cleared both houses.

The major Democratic tax program of the current session includes withholding as a key provision. Also pending is a bill supported by Reagan to impose withholding only.

Withholding would assure an even flow of cash into state coffers year around and produce a one-time windfall during its first year totaling what Reagan estimates would be $400 million to $500 million.

Sen. John Harmer, Senate Republican caucus chairman who attended the conference in Reagan's office, told newsmen later that "out of this meeting emerged the realization that there will not be a separate withholding bill."

Democratic chairman Randolph Collier of the Senate Finance Committee left the meeting after only 45 minutes and told reporters he was returning to his budget-writing tasks.

"The Legislature should go ahead and do what it thinks is needed," Collier said. "The governor has the constitutional prerogative to do what he thinks is right."

He said he made clear to Reagan that withholding should be part of an overall tax program, adding "I'm tired of coming here every year and having a fiscal crisis."

Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., Democratic chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, told reporters that "the most hopeful sign was that there was a meeting. Beyond that I'm not sure there's anything to be unusually optimistic about."

Witnesses Endorse Span Transit Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Golden Gate Bridge and Transportation District's development plans for a mass transit system to alleviate traffic congestion were endorsed by witnesses Tuesday at an Assembly transportation subcommittee hearing.

A long list of witnesses urged that the district be retained to carry out its interim and long-range plans and that ferry and bus service be expanded between San Francisco and counties north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Now the subcommittee, chaired by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, will weigh the testimony it has accumulated in three hearings and make recommendations to the Legislature.

Bridge authorities submitted to the Legislature in April plans for development of the Golden Gate Transportation Corridor up until 1980 at a cost of $331.5 million.

The district came in for both praise and criticism during the lengthy hearing.

Much of the testimony dealt with the growing problem of traffic congestion along the Golden Gate corridor and complaints by Marin County residents their "rural atmosphere" and environment were being threatened.

"During the peak traffic hours many Marin County residents can't get out of their driveways," complained William Train, president of the Marina Home and Property Owners Association.

The subcommittee received from Bridge District Chairman Lowell Edington a long list of governmental and civic organizations supporting the transportation development plans.

A proposed cable ferry system for the bay has not been ruled out and its proponents will be given a "full hearing" before a final decision is made, Edington added.

As explained by its developers, the cable ferry system consists of fiberglass vessels designed to be towed across a navigable channel by an underwater cable riding on fixed sheaves 50 feet below the surface of the water.

Dymally Hits Reagan's Income Tax Peek Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Part of Gov. Ronald Reagan's welfare revision program would give the administration "the right to inspect the income tax return of any California citizen," Senate Democratic leader Mervyn M. Dymally said today.

Calling it "bad enough that this bill would permit officials in every county the right to poke into welfare recipients' income tax returns," he added it was worded to allow access to "the income tax return of any individual.'"

"This makes a mockery of the governor's great show of concern about invasion of privacy and his claim that tax records should be private," the Watts lawmaker said.

It was revealed last week that Reagan paid no state income taxes. The governor has said he considers questions about his tax status an "invasion of privacy."

The Franchise Tax Board is opposed to the bill sponsored in the Legislature by Sen. Clair Burgener, R-San Diego, Dymally said.

The bill says the Franchise Tax Board may permit the State Director of .ocial Welfare, or a representative named by the director, "to inspect the income tax return of any individual or individuals designated by the director."

The director can delegate the same authority to county welfare officials, Dymally said.

"It smacks of 1984," he stated, calling it "not difficult to imagine" officials of "any administration" using the power to "peek into the income tax records of citizens ... for a wide range of questionable purposes."

Professor Asks Salary Freeze

STANFORD (UPI) — A professor is suggesting a five-year freeze on faculty salaries and graduate tuitions based on parents' income as a means to help Stanford University avoid developing its lands for revenue.

Richard J. Almond, assistant psychiatry professor, made the recommendation today in a campus radio discussion, doubting that many faculty members would leave because of a pay freeze.

The university owns land on the San Francisco Peninsula and in the past has developed part of it for financial reasons.

Closed Session

The Tamalpais High School District board will meet in closed session tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the district office to discuss teacher evaluations, the hiring of an assistant superintendent at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo and to confer with its negotiating team.

WATER DUMPING BOMBER

A CI-215 "water bomber", on loan from the Province of Quebec, takes off (top picture) to show its ability to scoop up water and then maneuvers in the air to dump it. The demonstration was held yesterday on the Anacostia River near Washington D.C. by General Dynamics for congressmen and other government officials. The plane has been used in recent months in Oklahoma, Alabama, Tennessee and Florida with excellent results in combating forest fires.

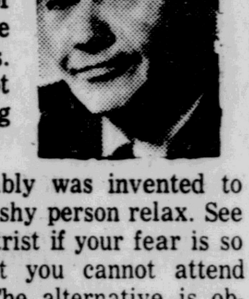
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Rubella Vaccine Is Tricky But Epidemic Shows Its Need



Our new German measles vaccine is welcome. Rubella is not serious unless it occurs to expectant mothers especially during the first three months of pregnancy. The causative virus may lead to congenital defects of the heart, eyes, brain, or ears. The vaccine can also have a bad effect upon the fetus. There it is given only when the woman is not and does not plan to become pregnant during the ensuing few months.

THIS IS THE tricky aspect of the vaccine. One attack of German measles usually confers lifelong immunity but reinfection may occur and all too often without the usual symptons. It is for this reason that a woman who has had rubella may need the vaccine despite the fact that 85 per cent of young adults are definitely immune.

Following an attack of German measles, protective antibodies appear in the blood. (Reexposure does the same.) Tests show that similar antibodies develop in those receiving the vaccine, except that they are not so numerous. There are enough antibodies, however, to protect most people. New evidence shows that antibody levels begin to wane after 4 years and a booster injection may be necessary. Some doctors recommend revaccination after each pregnancy.

ONLY ONE INJECTION of the vaccine is needed. Some persons develop mild fever or local soreness at the site of the injection. Now and then the joints ache. Since the viruses used in making the vaccine are grown in duck eggs and neomycin, those sensitive to neomycin, duck or chicken should not receive the product. The manufacturers also suggest that the vaccine be withheld from anyone receiving cortisone like products or X-ray therapy. Immunization is not recommended for infants under a year old.

We need the vaccine. During the rubella epidemic of 1964, an estimated 20,000 babies with serious defects were born to women who had been infected. The shots can be given to children between 1 year of age and puberty.

PARTY PHOBIA

Miss T. R. writes: How can I overcome my fear of social gatherings?

REPLY

Develop more poise by forcing yourself to attend these functions assuming, of course, that you feel you must go. Many people are ill at ease at large gatherings and the cocktail probably was invented to make the shy person relax. See a psychiatrist if your fear is so acute that you cannot attend parties. The alternative is obvious.

DROOPING LIDS

E. T. writes: Is there any type of exercise that will help drooping lids?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. Neostigmine may help if the drooping is due to myasthenia gravis but it will have no effect on other types. Mechanical props are used occasionally to hold up the lids. In some instances, surgery is recommended.

FIRST DIAGNOSE, THEN TREAT

A. P. writes: Can a diagnostician cure an illness?

REPLY

Yes. All physicians must be diagnosticians before they can treat a disease.

ACROBATIC NAVEL

A reader writes: What causes my navel to move up and down when I breathe?

REPLY

This is not a unique accomplishment.

Vacancies For Two Youths On Juvenile Panel

Two openings exist for youth to serve on the Marin Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission, according to chairman James C. Upshaw who announced today that youths interested should contact L. Charles Smith, youth coordinator, in Room 163 of the Marin Hall of Justice.

The two vacancies were created with the resignations of Douglas W. Scott and Terrence Keenan.

Applicants will be interviewed at the next regular meeting of the commission at 4 p.m. May 27 in Room 332 of the Hall of Justice.

The commission is the group that made an extensive study of delinquency in the county last summer and is now trying to help Santa Venetia set up a community center.

Reagan, Demo Chieftains Hold Summit On Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan and Democrats, agreeing the Legislature probably won't approve an income tax withholding bill unless it's part of a major "reform" package, inched uneasily toward a second honeymoon today.

Republican and Democratic leaders met privately with the governor in a two-and-a-halfhour "summit conference" Tuesday but emerged still split over welfare reform, taxes and balancing Reagan's proposed $6.7 billion state budget.

Reagan termed the meeting "fruitful" while Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti called it an "important first step" but said "nothing major was accomplished."

They decided to meet again—probably next week—when Democrats would return with a specific position on Reagan's welfare reform plan. Democrats outnumber Republicans in both houses.

Reagan and Democrats started the year vowing to work together and communicate with each other. But the honeymoon collapsed over Reagan's budget and his welfare overhaul proposals.

Moretti said he quit meeting with the governor because he felt he didn't receive a "fair" hearing.

Strangely, it is withholding the state income tax through payroll checks that has reversed the roles of Reagan and the Democrats from last year.

Reagan, who until 1970 adamantly fought withholding, now insists it must be approved and shouldn't be attached to a tax reform package. Democrats contend withholding and "reform" must remain inseparable.

Reagan's unsuccessful tax program last year called for withholding. No withholding only bill has ever cleared both houses.

The major Democratic tax program of the current session includes withholding as a key provision. Also pending is a bill supported by Reagan to impose withholding only.

Withholding would assure an even flow of cash into state coffers year around and produce a one-time windfall during its first year totaling what Reagan estimates would be $400 million to $500 million.

Sen. John Harmer, Senate Republican caucus chairman who attended the conference in Reagan's office, told newsmen later that "out of this meeting emerged the realization that there will not be a separate withholding bill."

Democratic chairman Randolph Collier of the Senate Finance Committee left the meeting after only 45 minutes and told reporters he was returning to his budget-writing tasks.

"The Legislature should go ahead and do what it thinks is needed," Collier said. "The governor has the constitutional prerogative to do what he thinks is right."

He said he made clear to Reagan that withholding should be part of an overall tax program, adding "I'm tired of coming here every year and having a fiscal crisis."

Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., Democratic chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, told reporters that "the most hopeful sign was that there was a meeting. Beyond that I'm not sure there's anything to be unusually optimistic about."

Witnesses Endorse Span Transit Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Golden Gate Bridge and Transportation District's development plans for a mass transit system to alleviate traffic congestion were endorsed by witnesses Tuesday at an Assembly transportation subcommittee hearing.

A long list of witnesses urged that the district be retained to carry out its interim and long-range plans and that ferry and bus service be expanded between San Francisco and counties north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Now the subcommittee, chaired by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, will weigh the testimony it has accumulated in three hearings and make recommendations to the Legislature.

Bridge authorities submitted to the Legislature in April plans for development of the Golden Gate Transportation Corridor up until 1980 at a cost of $331.5 million.

The district came in for both praise and criticism during the lengthy hearing.

Much of the testimony dealt with the growing problem of traffic congestion along the Golden Gate corridor and complaints by Marin County residents their "rural atmosphere" and environment were being threatened.

"During the peak traffic hours many Marin County residents can't get out of their driveways," complained William Train, president of the Marina Home and Property Owners Association.

The subcommittee received from Bridge District Chairman Lowell Edington a long list of governmental and civic organizations supporting the transportation development plans.

A proposed cable ferry system for the bay has not been ruled out and its proponents will be given a "full hearing" before a final decision is made, Edington added.

As explained by its developers, the cable ferry system consists of fiberglass vessels designed to be towed across a navigable channel by an underwater cable riding on fixed sheaves 50 feet below the surface of the water.

Dymally Hits Reagan's Income Tax Peek Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Part of Gov. Ronald Reagan's welfare revision program would give the administration "the right to inspect the income tax return of any California citizen," Senate Democratic leader Mervyn M. Dymally said today.

Calling it "bad enough that this bill would permit officials in every county the right to poke into welfare recipients' income tax returns," he added it was worded to allow access to "the income tax return of any individual.'"

"This makes a mockery of the governor's great show of concern about invasion of privacy and his claim that tax records should be private," the Watts lawmaker said.

It was revealed last week that Reagan paid no state income taxes. The governor has said he considers questions about his tax status an "invasion of privacy."

The Franchise Tax Board is opposed to the bill sponsored in the Legislature by Sen. Clair Burgener, R-San Diego, Dymally said.

The bill says the Franchise Tax Board may permit the State Director of .ocial Welfare, or a representative named by the director, "to inspect the income tax return of any individual or individuals designated by the director."

The director can delegate the same authority to county welfare officials, Dymally said.

"It smacks of 1984," he stated, calling it "not difficult to imagine" officials of "any administration" using the power to "peek into the income tax records of citizens ... for a wide range of questionable purposes."

Professor Asks Salary Freeze

STANFORD (UPI) — A professor is suggesting a five-year freeze on faculty salaries and graduate tuitions based on parents' income as a means to help Stanford University avoid developing its lands for revenue.

Richard J. Almond, assistant psychiatry professor, made the recommendation today in a campus radio discussion, doubting that many faculty members would leave because of a pay freeze.

The university owns land on the San Francisco Peninsula and in the past has developed part of it for financial reasons.

Closed Session

The Tamalpais High School District board will meet in closed session tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the district office to discuss teacher evaluations, the hiring of an assistant superintendent at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo and to confer with its negotiating team.

To the Respondent: EDWIN E. SHIPE

The petitioner has filed a petition concerning your marriage. You may file a written response within thirty days of the date that this summons is served on you. If you fail to file a written response within such time, your default may be entered and the court may enter a judgment containing injunctive or other orders concerning division of property, spousal support, child custody, child support, attorneys' fees, costs, and such other relief as may be granted by the court.

If you wish to seek the advice of an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your written response, if any, may be filed on time.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL PROPERTY AT PRIVATE SALE
No. 19546

In the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Marin

In the Matter of the Estate of GIUSEPPINA PINZA aka MRS. GIUSEPPINA PINZA aka MRS. MODESTO PINZA., Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that ANGELINA G. AGIN, special administratrix of the estate of GIUSEPPINA PINZA, alias, the above-named decedent, will sell at private sale to the highest bidder on the terms and conditions stated below and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the State of California In and For the County of Marin on or after 10 a.m. May 26, 1971, at the offices of DOYLE AND CLECAK, 582 Market Street, 714 Hobart Building, San Francisco, California 94194, all right, title interest and estate of said decedent and her estate in and to the real property situated in the City of San Anselmo, County of Marin, State of California, more particularly described as follows, which property is more commonly known as 124 Pine Street, San Anselmo, California:

All that certain real property situated, lying, and being in the County of Marin, State of California, described as:

A portion of Lot 15 of the Linda Vista Tract, as per map thereof filed for record in the office of the County Recorder of said County on August 5th, 1907, in Book 2 of Records of Maps, at page 94, particularly described as follows:

BEGINNING at the most Easterly corner of said Lot 15 in the Northerly line of Pine Street; thence Northwesterly along the Northeasterly line of said Lot 15, 90 feet to a point, thence Southwesterly and parallel to said Northerly line of Pine Street, 25 feet; thence southeasterly and parallel to said Northeasterly line of said Lot 15, 90 feet to said Northerly line of Pine Street and thence Northeasterly along said last mentioned line, 25 feet to the point of beginning.

Bids or offers are invited for said real property which is being sold on an "as is" basis. Bids or offers must be in writing and sealed and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check for ten per cent (10%) of the bid, payable to ANGELINA G. AGIN, as special administratrix. Bids or offers must be received at the office of DOYLE AND CLECAK, 582 Market Street, San Francisco, California, or may be filed with the Clerk of said Superior Court (in which latter case copies shall be delivered to said offices of DOYLE AND CLECAK) at any time after the first publication of this notice and before said sale. The following are the terms and conditions of sale:

Cash in lawful money of the United States, ten per cent (10%) payable on acceptance of bid and balance on confirmation of sale by the Court.

Said sale is subject to all covenants, conditions, restrictions, reservations, rights of way, and easements of record and any zoning and setback ordinances of the City of Anselmo, County of Marin, State of California.

Real estate taxes and insurance acceptable to buyer and operating and maintenance expenses shall be prorated as of the date of the recording of the deed. The cost of examination of title, recording the deed, obtaining title insurance, and escrow charges are to be paid at the expense of the purchaser.

The special administratrix reserves the right to reject any and all bids or offers.

'Black English' Class Attacked

NEW YORK (UPI) — An NAACP magazine Tuesday asked Negro parents to protest a Ford Foundation-sponsored course teaching vernacular "black English" to black students as their native language.

The current issue of the magazine Crisis carried an editorial criticizing the black English course taught by Prof. Carol Reed of Brooklyn College under a $65,000 grant from the foundation.

"What our children need, and other disadvantaged American children as well —Indian, Spanish-speaking, Asian, Appalachian and immigrant Caucasians —is training in basic English which today is as near an international language as any in the world," the editorial said. "To attempt to lock them into a provincial patio is to limit their opportunities in the world at large."

BEST SHOWS FOR TONIGHT

Unusual on television tonight:

KQED (9), 6:30 p.m. — King Hussein is interviewed by Elizabeth Drew on "Thirty Minutes With."

KTVU (2), 7:30 p.m. — "Creedence Clearwater Revival: In Concert" is a one-hour special focusing on the background of the Oakland-based rock group and comments by its members.

KPIX (5), 7:30 p.m. — The magic of Mark Wilson and the performance of rare circus acts highlight "Magic Circus," a one-hour variety special.

KPIX (5), 8 p.m. — The traditions of Hawaii in past and present are captured on Ron Magers' "The Best of Electric Impressions," a special program in the "California Collection" series. Features include a musical satire on "The Concrete Jungle" and an interview with actor Richard Boone.

KRON (4), KCRA (3), 9 p.m. — Impressionists Edie Adams, David Frye, Frank Gorshin, Will Jordan, George Kirby and Rich Little star in a comedy hour spoofing politics and show business when "Kraft Music Hall" presents "The Kopykats." It is a repeat.

KQED (9), 10 p.m. — "At Issue" offers "The California Water Project: What It Is, Who Pays, Who Benefits," a debate over California's water.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), KTXL (40), 10:30 p.m. — premiering is "NFL Action" focusing on highlights of 1970 professional football action at its best. John Facenda narrates the Super Bowl battle between the Baltimore Colts and the Dallas Cowboys.

Atty. Gen. Younger Calls For More Police Spies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger said yesterday he would not hestitate to assign police intelligence agents to pose as newsmen or even ministers in certain cases.

"If I thought somebody was going to blow up the State Building, I'd put an agent in a house of prostitution as a piano player if it would help," he said.

Asked at a news conference if reporters were justified in exposing a police spy posing as one of their number to protect their own credibility, Younger said:

"More power to you. If our agent is that easily exposed, he's not doing a very good job anyway."

Present intelligence, he said, is so inadequate bombings can occur in three counties at the same time and police are helpless in efforts to make an arrest.

Younger, addressing the State Police Officers Association, said the need to expand currently inadequate intelligence operations is so obvious "it is not a negotiable point. It's not even arguable."

However, Younger said his State Department of Justice, which has 300 investigators, is largely limited by its funds in efforts to beef up intelligence to the training of local law enforcement officers.

His remarks were made during a discussion of his "remodeling" of the Department of Justice to attain "more law enforcement for a buck."

Hawaii has imported just about everything from the Caribbean, including such familiar symbols as grass skirts.

Mariner Launch Delayed 2 Days

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— The launch of the second and last Mariner camera craft toward Mars has been delayed two days and maybe more because the precise reason for the first launch failure is still unknown.

The new target date is May 20, but officials emphasized Tuesday that is only a planning date and a firm schedule for the second $77 million mission will not be set until the current investigation is complete.

The 2,200-pound Mariner spacecraft, identical to the one dropped in the sea last Saturday, was mounted on an Atlas-Centaur rocket Tuesday. It must be launched by June 16 or the space agency will have to wait until 1976 before getting another chance to explore the red planet.

'Black English' Class Attacked

NEW YORK (UPI) — An NAACP magazine Tuesday asked Negro parents to protest a Ford Foundation-sponsored course teaching vernacular "black English" to black students as their native language.

The current issue of the magazine Crisis carried an editorial criticizing the black English course taught by Prof. Carol Reed of Brooklyn College under a $65,000 grant from the foundation.

"What our children need, and other disadvantaged American children as well —Indian, Spanish-speaking, Asian, Appalachian and immigrant Caucasians —is training in basic English which today is as near an international language as any in the world," the editorial said. "To attempt to lock them into a provincial patio is to limit their opportunities in the world at large."

Mariner Launch Delayed 2 Days

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The launch of the second and last Mariner camera craft toward Mars has been delayed two days and maybe more because the precise reason for the first launch failure is still unknown.

The new target date is May 20, but officials emphasized Tuesday that is only a planning date and a firm schedule for the second $77 million mission will not be set until the current investigation is complete.

The 2,200-pound Mariner spacecraft, identical to the one dropped in the sea last Saturday, was mounted on an Atlas-Centaur rocket Tuesday. It must be launched by June 16 or the space agency will have to wait until 1976 before getting another chance to explore the red plantet.

Atty. Gen. Younger Calls For More Police Spies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger said yesterday he would not hestitate to assign police intelligence agents to pose as newsmen or even ministers in certain cases.

"If I thought somebody was going to blow up the State Building, I'd put an agent in a house of prostitution as a piano player if it would help," he said.

Asked at a news conference if reporters were justified in exposing a police spy posing as one of their number to protect their own credibility, Younger said:

"More power to you. If our agent is that easily exposed, he's not doing a very good job anyway."

Present intelligence, he said, is so inadequate bombings can occur in three counties at the same time and police are helpless in efforts to make an arrest.

Younger, addressing the State Police Officers Association, said the need to expand currently inadequate intelligence operations is so obvious "it is not a negotiable point. It's not even arguable."

However, Younger said his State Department of Justice, which has 300 investigators, is largely limited by its funds in efforts to beef up intelligence to the training of local law enforcement officers.

His remarks were made during a discussion of his "remodeling" of the Department of Justice to attain "more law enforcement for a buck."

A Strong Objection To Units

A Mill Valley School District official has voiced strong objection before the Corte Madera Planning Commission to a proposed 624-unit residential development south of the Koch Luggage plant.

Commission secretary Elizabeth Long, said the group was warned Monday night that Mill Valley schools could not accept the increase of students expected from the proposed project.

She said Carroll D. Killingsworth, director of business services for the school district, said he doubted that the Reed or Larkspur school districts could accepted the increase either.

The development, to be called Madera Del Presidio, will be built on 73 acres now undergoing annexation to the town. The land is now in the Mill Valley School District, which has complained in the past it was not informed by the developers, E.C. Harter and Odenthal Investment Co., of the proposal.

Killingsworth said his understanding of state law required developers of over 400 units to provide a school site near the development, Mrs. Long said.

The commission, which was to consider the development's master plan, continued the public hearing to May 14, so legal opinions and further study of the site could be made.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission also:

REZONING — Approved an application from Donald A. Beacock of the real estate firm of Earle and Solvason of Corte Madera for rezoning from residential to business and professional office zoning a parcel at 626 Tamalpais Drive. The firm is planning to build at that location.

NORTHRIDGE — Continued to May 14 discussion of proposed acquisition of properties along the North Ridge between Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur.

COMMERCIAL ZONING — Continued to May 14 discussion of amending the zoning code to make all uses in commercial zones subject to use permit proceedings.

MEXICAN FOOD — Denied an application from Pierre Josephs of 125 Locust Avenue, Larkspur, to remodel his Rik's Village Inn at 60 Corte Madera Avenue to an "Enchilada Joe's" take-out food establishment.

FOSTER HOME — Referred to the town attorney, Albert Bianchi,p7a request from Ann C. Baney to increase the number of mentally retarded children living at her home from two to three. A town ordinance says a home with more than gwo foster children requires a use permit. However, the ordinance may be preempted by a state law which says six or less such children must be considered as a family.

Hearing Set On Channel

A 14-member committee to study plans for improving Mill Valley's Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio will hold its first meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at Mill Valley City Hall.

The committee will examine goals and objectives for use by the Army Corps of Engineers in planning the channel improvements, according to committee chairman and Jerome C. Hauke, city councilman.

Hauke said he expects the committee, after several more work sessions, to suggest a number of possible plans to the corps, which will conduct its own studies and work with the committee to select a final plan.

Committee members include representatives of various neighborhood groups, businessmen, club and church groups, city staff and city commissions and committees.

Also attending will be representatives of the corps of engineers and flood control staff in the Marin County Public Works Department. The meeting is open to the public.

POW Coordinator Sets Novato Talk

Julie Butler of San Rafael, Northern California coordinator for .the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, will speak Tuesday to the Novato Republican Women's Club.

Panel Agrees — Draining Best Cascade Solution

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission has agreed with an ad hoc committee that the city's controversial Cascade Reservoir should be drained and the dam preserved until a permanent park plan for the park area can be formulated.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said commissioners voted Monday to accept a portion of a report by the group, the citizens committee for Cascade Reservoir, that the dam not be demolished until alternate plans can be studied.

The commission decided that the long-range goal of the committee, to develop the reservoir into a safe swimming hole, is beyond the capacity of the city at present.

Dimitratos said commissioners also felt use of the reservoir and surrounding park, now off-limits to the public, should continue to be restricted.

Controversy — fed by drownings, fire dangers, illegal camping, nude bathing, drug use and noise and litter — has surrounded the small mountain lake for years.

In other business, the commission voted to take down Little League scoreboards at Boyle Part after each baseball game instead of leaving them up for the season. Dimitratos said the scoreboards have been the targets of vandalism.

Pleads Innocent To Credit Card Forgery

Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to a charge of credit card forgery. A jury trial was set for the week of July 26.

Carrino was arrested March 13 after security agents at Disco department store in San Rafael discovered him attempting to use an allegedly stolen credit card, according to police.

Pleads Innocent To Credit Card Forgery

Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to a charge of credit card forgery. A jury trial was set for the week of July 26.

Carrino was arrested March 13 after security agents at Disco department store in San Rafael discovered him attempting to use an allegedly stolen credit card, according to police.

It's Time To Start Flexing Your Wrist

Robert Birkie of San Rafael has been billed as "The World's Strongest Attorney" in relation to his entry in this weekend's 10th annual World's Championship Wristwrestling Tournament at Petaluma.

"But now," he said yesterday, "I'm afraid I'll have to confine my title to the world's strongest attorney — on Fifth Avenue."

Mr. Birkie thinks he may have to withdraw from the popular tournament because, "I've got tennis elbow."

TENNIS ELBOW!!! On a strongman?? "Well," the 37-year-old, 225-pound Birkie explained quickly, "actually I hurt the arm weighlifting while getting into condition for the tournament. Tennis elbow is just a name for it. I'll check with my physician to see if I can compete."

If he can't make it there should be several other local muscles competing.

My favorite entry happens to be a living doll. Um-hm, I refer to Lynda Iverson of Boyes Hot Springs, who won the title last year as the world's champion female wristwrestler. You should have heard the ooh's and ahhh's from the male segment of the crowd when Mrs. Iverson ankled up to the stage and proceeded to mow down all opposition. Her title gained Mrs. Iverson considerable publicity, including an appearance on a Hollywood television show.

How can anyone so pretty and curvy be so strong? Well, Mrs. Iverson operates a beauty parlor in Boyes Springs and I imagine she developed her strength working on some knuckleheads.

Meanwhile, Petaluma already is buzzing with excitement over this tournament which in recent years has gained worldwide notoriety, including appearance on the American Broadcasting Co.'s "Wide World of Sports" and considerable mention in cartoonist Charles Shulz's "Peanuts" strip. "Snoopy," Shulz' Beagle character, entered the tournament last year but got lost looking for Petaluma. And besides, who ever heard of a Beagle with a wrist?

Started a decade ago by Petaluma columnist Bill Soberanes, barkeep Mike Gilardi and former major league trainer Jack Homel, this unique tournament has grown from the backroom of Gilardi's bar to the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Auditorium. It will be packed again this Friday and Saturday evenings.

Entries include lumberjacks, sumo giants, farmers, truck drivers and anyone with muscles on their muscles. Yes, even including tennis elbowed attorneys and beautiful beauticians.

Included as favorites this year are Homer Keanu, a 350-pounder from Hawaii; Ed White, lineman for the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League; Mervin Lentz, champion of Oregon; Will Parker, selected after eliminations aboard a cruise ship off Tahiti; three entries from Grand Bahama Island; Western Airlines executive Ed Beuerman; and various ladies in an obvious move by the Women's Lib.

And to think, Petaluma once was noted for its chickens and eggs and a green house, not necessarily in that order; now it's the wrist capital of the world.

Strong wrists, that is.

Leach, Hawkin To Help BYU In Defense Of Title

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Former Marin County high school stars Ray Leach and Don Hawkin, who helped Brigham Young win the Western Athletic Conference golf title last year, are back to help in defense at the 1971 WAC meet which begins tomorrow at the Tucson Country Club.

Also back for the Cougars is the player who won individual honors at last year's meet, Chip Garriss. He, along with Novato's Leach, who took second last year, and Hawkin, formerly of San Rafael, who tied for third, make the Provo Utah team the favorite to repeat as champions.

The odds on BYU came down last week, however, when Arizona State, which finished in second place last year at the WAC meet, edged the Cougars by eight strokes in the Arizona Invitational tournament, also in Tucson.

San Marin Pitcher Hurls A No-Hit Game

A CLEAN STEAL — San Rafael High School's Pete Treanor slid safely into second with a stolen base yesterday in the first inning against Redwood, as Giants' second baseman Daryle Edralin awaited the throw and shortstop Scott Barrie backed him up. The Bulldogs scored three times in the first, and went on to win, 6-5.

Terra Linda Turns Back Novato, 4-1

Pitching is the name of the game, and Rick Jensen is the name of the pitcher who yesterday fired the first no-hit, no-run game of the Marin County Athletic League baseball season. The senior righthander faced only three batters over the minimum as he brought the San Marin High School Mustangs a 2-0 victory over Tamalpais High in Novato.

On the other side of Novato, in a game less artful but more important to the league standings, the Terra Linda Trojans revitalized their pennant hopes by knocking off league-leading Novato, 4-1. And in San Anselmo, the Marin Catholic Wildcats took new hope also as they downed Drake, 2-0 to stay tied for second place with Terra Linda.

The other MCAL contest yesterday saw San Rafael score a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat fourth place Redwood, 6-5 at Albert Park.

Jensen, in running his 1971 record to 3-0, needed only 87 pitches to dispose of the Indians of Mill Valley. Mixing a well-controlled fastball with an off speed curve, he kept the ball low constantly, so that only one ball was hit to the outfield off him. Clifford Hall lined to Jim Thompson in the first inning, and it was easy sailing the rest of the way.

Only three walks and an error came between Jensen and perfection, and one base on balls was erased on a double play.

The game's only two runs came in the first inning. Thompson led off with a triple, and after Greg Mazeres walked, scored when Mazeres stole and Indian catcher Bill Rudolph threw the ball into centerfield, Mazeres came home on a single by Rich Burden.

Scott Seefeldt, Terra Linda's ace righthander who lost to Novato the first time he faced them this year, got his revenge in five-hit fashion and in the process boosted the Trojans and indirectly Marin Catholic to within a game and a half of the Hornets. The bulky senior displayed magnificent control, walking only one man, and he blanked the powerful home team over the last six innings.

The victory was especially satisfying since it came at the expense of Mike Lamb, Novato's lefthander who was 5-0 going into the game. It looked as though he might be on the way to No. 6 for five innings, during which he didn't allow a hit. But in the sixth, Terra Linda came up with three runs to sew up the win for Seefeldt. Larry Kerr and Bill Sherbert provided run-producing singles, and Hornet third baseman Randy Jackson committed an error to allow the other run to score.

Olson collared Drake on four hits, and shortstop Steve Sherry knocked in one run and scored the other as Marin Catholic won its seventh game of the campaign. Olson ran his record to 4-1 with the masterful effort, which saw him pitch his way out of a bases-loaded, nobody out jam in the bottom of the sixth.

Sherry was perfect with three hits, including a triple, in three trips to the plate, and Wildcat catcher Paul Riccardi continued his hot hitting with two for two.

Gary Burns walked and moved around to score the win-

REDS CAN DO NO RIGHT

Giants Can Do No Wrong

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

It seems as if the San Francisco Giants can do no wrong and the Cincinnati Reds can do no right.

The Giants continued to rule supreme and the Reds continued to flounder Tuesday night as Willie McCovey, Bobby Bonds and Dick Dietz smashed home runs and Gaylord Perry pitched a six-hitter to lead San Francisco to a 6-1 victory over Cincinnati.

The triumph left the surging Giants eight games ahead of second-place Los Angeles and Atlanta in the National League West. The Reds, who were in the Giants' position last season as they romped virtually uncontested through the NL West, are mired in fifth place, 11 1-2 games behind.

The Giants, now 24-9, have the best mark in baseball despite the fact that slugger McCovey has been bothered by injury and Perry had not won since April 17 after winning 23 games last season.

San Francisco ripped Jim Merritt for six runs within the first three innings. Bonds and Dietz hit bases empty homers in the first and the Giants added two more runs in the inning on singles by rookie Chris Speier, McCovey and Ken Henderson and Buddy Bradford's throwing error. McCovey followed a walk to Willie Mays in the third with his eighth home run.

Merritt, who won 20 games last season, has not won since last Aug. 26 when he injured his left elbow. He is 0-4 this season.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York trounced Houston 8-1, Chicago stopped Philadelphia 62, St. Louis ripped Montreal 104, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 6-1 and Pittsburgh whipped San Diego 10-4.

Two former Giants had key roles in the New York and Chicago victories.

Dave Marshall smashed the second grand slam homer of his career during a five-run sixth inning as the Mets stunned Houston. Nolan Ryan pitched a three-hitter for the Mets to run his record to 4-0 and Larry Dierker absorbed his first defeat of the season after five straight triumphs.

New York led 3-1 in the sixth

Pro Cagers Decide On All-Star Game

NEW YORK (UPI) —The National Basketball Association has agreed to mix with the American Basketball Association —but only on the court and not in one.

The players of both professional leagues Tuesday retaliated against their club owners by announcing they will promote and stage a "Super Game" in the Houston Astrodome on Friday night, May 28. The game, which was initiated without the knowledge of either league commissioner, will mark the first meeting ever of teams from the two rival leagues and will be televised nationally by TVS Television Network,, beginning at 8:30 pm (EDT).

However, Oscar Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks, president of the NBA Players' Association, made it clear that this game in no way was to be interpreted as an effort by the two leagues as a steppingstone toward a peaceful merger.

"We intend to show the public that the ultimate basketball event can be presented within the competitive structure of our free enterprise system," said Robertson. "The Super Game, promoted entirely by the players,p:will show that the gwc professional leagues can play against each other at the highest competitive level without an illegal merger."

Only last Friday the owners of the two leagues agreed in principle to end their costly four-year feud and to begin seeking Congressional legislation enabling the formation of a single league.

Robertson said it was the intention of the players to show that games between teams of the two leagues were possible without the necessity of a merger. He said the idea for the all-star game was conceived a long time ago and that it was only coincidental that the announcement of the game occurred so soon after the two leagues agreed to seek peace.

"The owners refused to present any game $etween the two leagues without such a merger," said Robertson. "By such refusal, the owners' sole motivation becomes clear — money. What should be of interest is the fan and the quality of product he sees. The players have that interest and because of it they will meet the public's desire for a Super Game."

The game will present 10 leading players from the NBA against 10 from the ABA.

Those players representing the NBA are Robertson and Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks, Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier of the New York Knickerbockers, Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics, Elvin Hayes of the San Diego Rockets, Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors, Earl Monroe of the Baltimore Bullets and Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons.

Representing the ABA will be Rick Barry and Bill Melchionni of the New York Nets, Roger Brown and Mel Daniels of the Indiana Pacers, Willie Wise and Zelmo Beaty of the Utah Stars, Dan Issel of the Kentucky Colonels, Charlie Scott of the Virginia Squires, Larry Jones of the Floridians and Jimmy Jones of the Memphis Pros.

"I think this game is necessary o show the public the best ballplayers in both leagues," said Monroe. "A lot of players aren't really show, like those in the ABA where they get little television exposure. This is a chance for them to prove their ability. Players from the NBA will benefit from the game because some of the money goes into the player pool and we're helping out underprivileged kids."

The proceeds of the game will go primarily to charity.

Epstein In Swing Of Things

CLEVELAND (UPI) —Mike Epstein is getting in the swing of things with the Oakland A's but Steve Dunning's swing carried much more weight.

Epstein collected four singles in five at-bats Tuesday night for his first hits since coming to Oakland from Washington in a weekend trade. However,D unning, a former Stanford University pitcher, cracked a grand slam homer off Diego Segui to help Cleveland beat the Athletics 7-5 in the opener of a two-game series.

In tonight's game, Chuck Dobson makes his first start for the A's in nearly a month. He has been bothered by a sore elbow and is without a decision so far this season.

Opposing Dobson will be fastballing lefthander Sam McDowell (1-4) whom the A's covet. But the deal has been hung up because Cleveland wants either Reggie Jackson or Rick Monday included in the trade.

Dunning, who beat the A's 2-1 two weeks ago, wasn't around at the end. He helped stake himself to a 5-0 lead with his first homer in the major leagues but walked across the first Oakland run in the third inning and then was lifted when he couldn't get anybody out in the fifth as the A's erupted for four runs to tie the score.

Big blow for Oakland in the fifth was Monday's three-run homer that sent Dunning to the showers.

Reliever Phil Hennigan took over for Dunning and retired the side in Order. The righthander faced only 14 batters over the final four innings to notch his first decision of 1971.

Also making his initial appearance for Oakland was lefthanded reliever Darold Knowles, obtained with Epstein from the Senators. Knowles

A 'Homer' Series For Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (UPI) —The National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals between Montreal and the Chicago Black Hawks is turning out to be a homer series but Canadiens' coach Al MacNeil intends to change that.

Montreal defeated Chicago 5-2 in the fourth game Tuesday night to square the series at two games apiece. Montreal also won the third game on its own ice but Chicago took the first two contests in the Windy City where the series resumes Thursday night.

"We forechecked them right from the start," said MacNiel. "But they do have the advantage of playing two more games in their own rink. That is if the series goes the full seven games. But I know we can bring this style of hockey back to Chicago with us."

The rookie coach added, "I will admit we played wide open in spots but we have a skating team and we tired them out."

The game was delayed several minutes in the final period when a brawl broke out and eventually seven players were ejected from the contest.

Pete Mahovlich, who opened the scoring for Montreal after only one minute of play said, "They tried to intimidate us but this team doesn't back down from anybody. I know when I get hit I play better."

Montreal also got a two goal effort in the second period from Yvan Cournoyer and single goals by 18-year veteran Jean Beliveau and rookie defenseman Guy LaPointe.

Both teams had 32 shots on goal but Canadiens' rookie goalie Ken Dryden was sensational in the middle session as he kicked aside 16 drives. He gave up a power play goal to Stan Mikita in the first period and Dennis Hull beat him with a slap shot in the second period.

"I was a lot busier tonight than in the third game," said Dryden. "But I'm not tired out yet and I don't think their goalie (Tony Esposito) is either."

Canadiens left winger John Ferguson reinjured his hip, which was originally hurt in the semi-final series against ghe Minnesota North Stars, and was forced to miss most of the game. "I'll be back in there on Thursday night, said Ferguson.

Chicago Coach Billy Reay, who was annoyed at the officiating in the third game which Montreal won 4-2, had no complaints about the calls Tuesday night. "I give the Canadiens full credit for the win, they deserved to win."

TENNIS ELBOW!!! On a strongman?? "Well," the 37-year-old, 225-pound Birkie explained quickly, "actually I hurt the arm weightlifting while getting into condition for the tournament. Tennis elbow is just a name for it. I'll check with my physician to see if I can compete."

If he can't make it there should be several other local muscles competing.

My favorite entry happens to be a living doll. Um-hm, I refer to Lynda Iverson of Boyes Hot Springs, who won the title last year as the world's champion female wristwrestler. You should have heard the ooh's and ahhh's from the male segment of the crowd when Mrs. Iverson ankled up to the stage and proceeded to mow down all opposition. Her title gained Mrs. Iverson considerable publicity, including an appearance on a Hollywood television show.

How can anyone so pretty and curvy be so strong? Well, Mrs. Iverson operates a beauty parlor in Boyes Springs and I imagine she developed her strength working on some knuckleheads.

Meanwhile, Petaluma already is buzzing with excitement over this tournament which in recent years has gained worldwide notoriety, including appearance on the American Broadcasting Co.'s "Wide World of Sports" and considerable mention in cartoonist Charles Shulz's "Peanuts" strip. "Snoopy," Shulz' Beagle character, entered the tournament last year but got lost looking for Petaluma. And besides, who ever heard of a Beagle with a wrist?

Started a decade ago by Petaluma columnist Bill Soberanes, barkeep Mike Gilardi and former major league trainer Jack Homel, this unique tournament has grown from the backroom of Gilardi's bar to the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Auditorium. It will be packed again this Friday and Saturday evenings.

Entries include lumberjacks, sumo giants, farmers, truck drivers and anyone with muscles on their muscles. Yes, even including tennis elbowed attorneys and beautiful beauticians.

Included as favorites this year are Homer Keanu, a 350-pounder from Hawaii; Ed White, lineman for the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League; Mervin Lentz, champion of Oregon; Will Parker, selected after eliminations aboard a cruise ship off Tahiti; three entries from Grand Bahama Island; Western Airlines executive Ed Beuerman; and various ladies in an obvious move by the Women's Lib.

And to think, Petaluma once was noted for its chickens and eggs and a green house, not necessarily in that order; now it's the wrist capital of the world.

Strong wrists, that is.

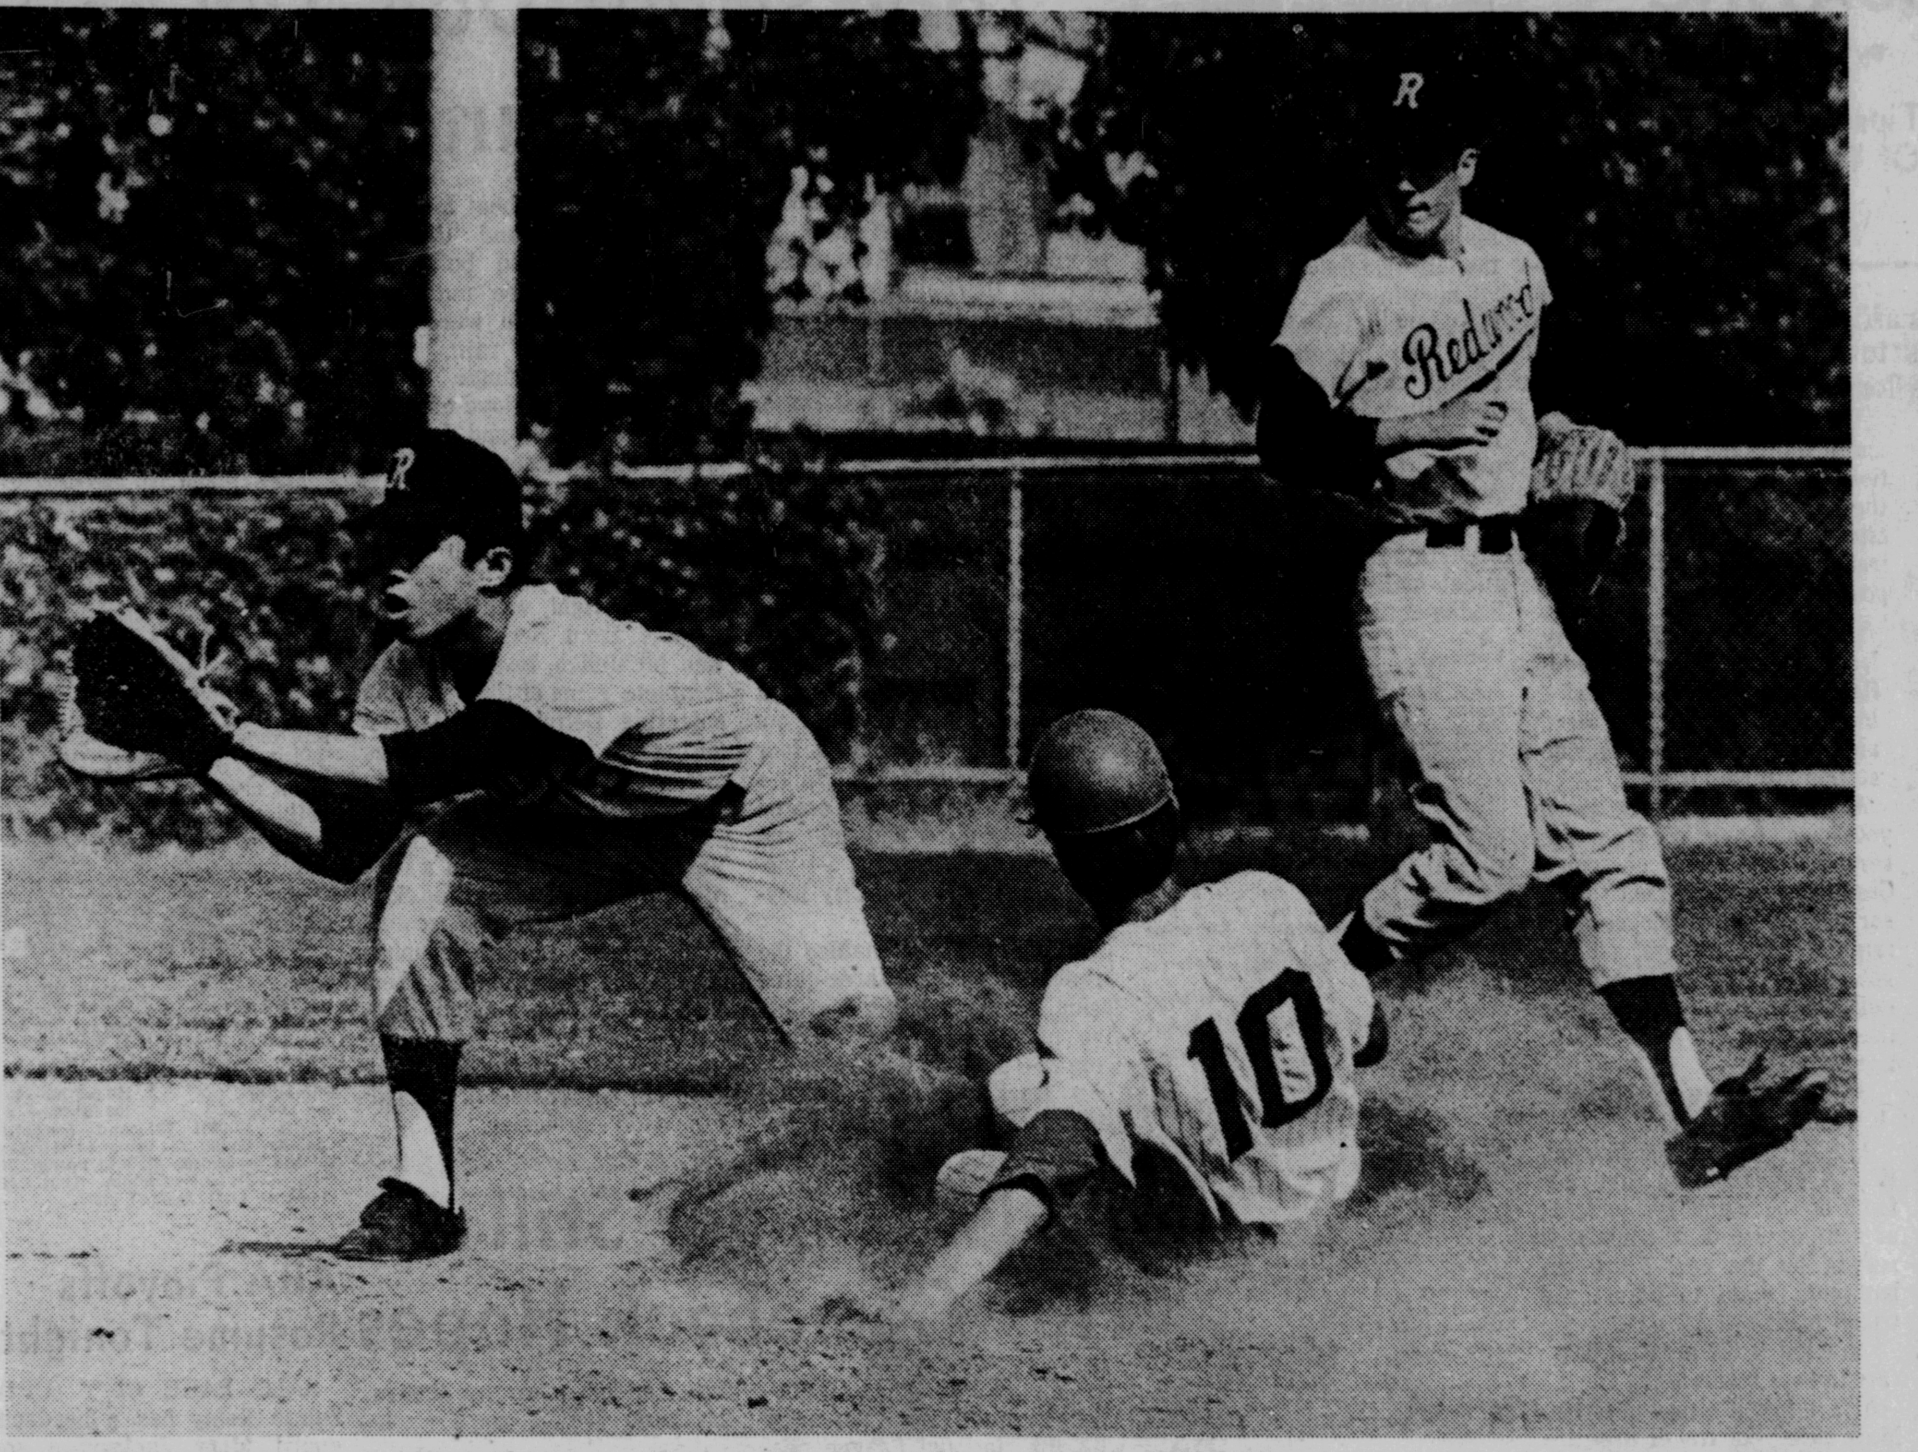
Leach, Hawkin To Help BYU In Defense Of Title

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Former Marin County high school stars Ray Leach and Don Hawkin, who helped Brigham Young win the Western Athletic Conference golf title last year, are back to help in defense at the 1971 WAC meet which begins tomorrow at the Tucson Country Club.

Also back for the Cougars is the player who won individual honors at last year's meet, Chip Garriss. He, along with Novato's Leach, who took second last year, and Hawkin, formerly of San Rafael, who tied for third, make the Provo Utah team the favorite to repeat as champions.

The odds on BYU came down last week, however, when Arizona State, which finished in second place last year at the WAC meet, edged the Cougars by eight strokes in the Arizona Invitational tournament, also in Tucson.

San Marin Pitcher Hurls A No-Hit Game



A CLEAN STEAL — San Rafael High School's Pete Treanor slid safely into second with a stolen base yesterday in the first inning against Redwood, as Giants' second baseman Daryle Edralin awaited the throw and shortstop Scott Barrie backed him up. The Bulldogs scored three times in the first, and went on to win, 6-5.

Terra Linda Turns Back Novato, 4-1

Pitching is the name of the game, and Rick Jensen is the name of the pitcher who yesterday fired the first no-hit, no-run game of the Marin County Athletic League baseball season. The senior righthander faced only three batters over the minimum as he brought the San Marin High School Mustangs a 2-0 victory over Tamalpais High in Novato.

On the other side of Novato, in a game less artful but more important to the league standings, the Terra Linda Trojans revitalized their pennant hopes by knocking off league-leading Novato, 4-1. And in San Anselmo, the Marin Catholic Wildcats took new hope also as they downed Drake, 2-0 to stay tied for second place with Terra Linda.

The other MCAL contest yesterday saw San Rafael score a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat fourth place Redwood, 6-5 at Albert Park.

Jensen, in running his 1971 record to 3-0, needed only 87 pitches to dispose of the Indians of Mill Valley. Mixing a well-controlled fastball with an off speed curve, he kept the ball low constantly, so that only one ball was hit to the outfield off him. Clifford Hall lined to Jim Thompson in the first inning, and it was easy sailing the rest of the way.

Only three walks and an error came between Jensen and perfection, and one base on balls was erased on a double play.

The game's only two runs came in the first inning. Thompson led off with a triple, and after Greg Mazeres walked, scored when Mazeres stole and Indian catcher Bill Rudolph threw the ball into centerfield, Mazeres came home on a single by Rich Burden.

Scott Seefeldt, Terra Linda's ace righthander who lost to Novato the first time he faced them this year, got his revenge in five-hit fashion and in the process boosted the Trojans and indirectly Marin Catholic to within a game and a half of the Hornets. The bulky senior displayed magnificent control, walking only one man, and he blanked the powerful home team over the last six innings.

The victory was especially satisfying since it came at the expense of Mike Lamb, Novato's lefthander who was 5-0 going into the game. It looked as though he might be on the way to No. 6 for five innings, during which he didn't allow a hit. But in the sixth, Terra Linda came up with three runs to sew up the win for Seefeldt. Larry Kerr and Bill Sherbert provided run-producing singles, and Hornet third baseman Randy Jackson committed an error to allow the other run to score.

Olson collared Drake on four hits, and shortstop Steve Sherry knocked in one run and scored the other as Marin Catholic won its seventh game of the campaign. Olson ran his record to 4-1 with the masterful effort, which saw him pitch his way out of a bases-loaded, nobody out jam in the bottom of the sixth.

Sherry was perfect with three hits, including a triple, in three trips to the plate, and Wildcat catcher Paul Riccardi continued his hot hitting with two for two.

Gary Burns walked and moved around to score the win-

REDS CAN DO NO RIGHT

Giants Can Do No Wrong

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

It seems as if the San Francisco Giants can do no wrong and the Cincinnati Reds can do no right.

The Giants continued to rule supreme and the Reds continued to flounder Tuesday night as Willie McCovey, Bobby Bonds and Dick Dietz smashed home runs and Gaylord Perry pitched a six-hitter to lead San Francisco to a 6-1 victory over Cincinnati.

The triumph left the surging Giants eight games ahead of second-place Los Angeles and Atlanta in the National League West. The Reds, who were in the Giants' position last season as they romped virtually uncontested through the NL West, are mired in fifth place, 11 1-2 games behind.

The Giants, now 24-9, have the best mark in baseball despite the fact that slugger McCovey has been bothered by injury and Perry had not won since April 17 after winning 23 games last season.

San Francisco ripped Jim Merritt for six runs within the first three innings. Bonds and Dietz hit bases empty homers in the first and the Giants added two more runs in the inning on singles by rookie Chris Speier, McCovey and Ken Henderson and Buddy Bradford's throwing error. McCovey followed a walk to Willie Mays in the third with his eighth home run.

Merritt, who won 20 games last season, has not won since last Aug. 26 when he injured his left elbow. He is 0-4 this season.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York trounced Houston 8-1, Chicago stopped Philadelphia 62, St. Louis ripped Montreal 104, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 6-1 and Pittsburgh whipped San Diego 10-4.

Two former Giants had key roles in the New York and Chicago victories.

Dave Marshall smashed the second grand slam homer of his career during a five-run sixth inning as the Mets stunned Houston. Nolan Ryan pitched a three-hitter for the Mets to run his record to 4-0 and Larry Dierker absorbed his first defeat of the season after five straight triumphs.

New York led 3-1 in the sixth

Pro Cagers Decide On All-Star Game

NEW YORK (UPI) —The National Basketball Association has agreed to mix with the American Basketball Association —but only on the court and not in one.

The players of both professional leagues Tuesday retaliated against their club owners by announcing they will promote and stage a "Super Game" in the Houston Astrodome on Friday night, May 28. The game, which was initiated without the knowledge of either league commissioner, will mark the first meeting ever of teams from the two rival leagues and will be televised nationally by TVS Television Network,, beginning at 8:30 pm (EDT).

However, Oscar Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks, president of the NBA Players' Association, made it clear that this game in no way was to be interpreted as an effort by the two leagues as a steppingstone toward a peaceful merger.

"We intend to show the public that the ultimate basketball event can be presented within the competitive structure of our free enterprise system," said Robertson. "The Super Game, promoted entirely by the players ,p:will show that the gwc professional leagues can play against each other at the highest competitive level without an illegal merger."

Only last Friday the owners of the two leagues agreed in principle to end their costly four-year feud and to begin seeking Congressional legislation enabling the formation of a single league.

Robertson said it was the intention of the players to show that games between teams of the two leagues were possible without the necessity of a merger. He said the idea for the all-star game was conceived a long time ago and that it was only coincidental that the announcement of the game occurred so soon after the two leagues agreed to seek peace.

"The owners refused to present any game $etween the two leagues without such a merger," said Robertson. "By such refusal, the owners' sole motivation becomes clear — money. What should be of interest is the fan and the quality of product he sees. The players have that interest and because of it they will meet the public's desire for a Super Game."

The game will present 10 leading players from the NBA against 10 from the ABA.

Those players representing the NBA are Robertson and Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks, Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier of the New York Knickerbockers, Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics, Elvin Hayes of the San Diego Rockets, Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors, Earl Monroe of the Baltimore Bullets and Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons.

Representing the ABA will be Rick Barry and Bill Melchionni of the New York Nets, Roger Brown and Mel Daniels of the Indiana Pacers, Willie Wise and Zelmo Beaty of the Utah Stars, Dan Issel of the Kentucky Colonels, Charlie Scott of the Virginia Squires, Larry Jones of the Floridians and Jimmy Jones of the Memphis Pros.

"I think this game is necessary o show the public the best ballplayers in both leagues," said Monroe. "A lot of players aren't really show, like those in the ABA where they get little television exposure. This is a chance for them to prove their ability. Players from the NBA will benefit from the game because some of the money goes into the player pool and we're helping out underprivileged kids."

The proceeds of the game will go primarily to charity.

Epstein In Swing Of Things

CLEVELAND (UPI) —Mike Epstein is getting in the swing of things with the Oakland A's but Steve Dunning's swing carried much more weight.

Epstein collected four singles in five at-bats Tuesday night for his first hits since coming to Oakland from Washington in a weekend trade. However,D unning, a former Stanford University pitcher, cracked a grand slam homer off Diego Segui to help Cleveland beat the Athletics 7-5 in the opener of a two-game series.

In tonight's game, Chuck Dobson makes his first start for the A's in nearly a month. He has been bothered by a sore elbow and is without a decision so far this season.

Opposing Dobson will be fastballing lefthander Sam McDowell (1-4) whom the A's covet. But the deal has been hung up because Cleveland wants either Reggie Jackson or Rick Monday included in the trade.

Dunning, who beat the A's 2-1 two weeks ago, wasn't around at the end. He helped stake himself to a 5-0 lead with his first homer in the major leagues but walked across the first Oakland run in the third inning and then was lifted when he couldn't get anybody out in the fifth as the A's erupted for four runs to tie the score.

Big blow for Oakland in the fifth was Monday's three-run homer that sent Dunning to the showers.

Reliever Phil Hennigan took over for Dunning and retired the side in Order. The righthander faced only 14 batters over the final four innings to notch his first decision of 1971.

Also making his initial appearance for Oakland was lefthanded reliever Darold Knowles, obtained with Epstein from the Senators. Knowles

A 'Homer' Series For Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (UPI) —The National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals between Montreal and the Chicago Black Hawks is turning out to be a homer series but Canadiens' coach Al MacNeil intends to change that.

Montreal defeated Chicago 5-2 in the fourth game Tuesday night to square the series at two games apiece. Montreal also won the third game on its own ice but Chicago took the first two contests in the Windy City where the series resumes Thursday night.

"We forechecked them right from the start," said MacNiel. "But they do have the advantage of playing two more games in their own rink. That is if the series goes the full seven games. But I know we can bring this style of hockey back to Chicago with us."

The rookie coach added, "I will admit we played wide open in spots but we have a skating team and we tired them out."

The game was delayed several minutes in the final period when a brawl broke out and eventually seven players were ejected from the contest.

Pete Mahovlich, who opened the scoring for Montreal after only one minute of play said, "They tried to intimidate us but this team doesn't back down from anybody. I know when I get hit I play better."

Montreal also got a two goal effort in the second period from Yvan Cournoyer and single goals by 18-year veteran Jean Beliveau and rookie defenseman Guy LaPointe.

Both teams had 32 shots on goal but Canadiens' rookie goalie Ken Dryden was sensational in the middle session as he kicked aside 16 drives. He gave up a power play goal to Stan Mikita in the first period and Dennis Hull beat him with a slap shot in the second period.

"I was a lot busier tonight than in the third game," said Dryden. "But I'm not tired out yet and I don't think their goalie (Tony Esposito) is either."

Canadiens left winger John Ferguson reinjured his hip, which was originally hurt in the semi-final series against ghe Minnesota North Stars, and was forced to miss most of the game. "I'll be back in there on Thursday night, said Ferguson.

Chicago Coach Billy Reay, who was annoyed at the officiating in the third game which Montreal won 4-2, had no complaints about the calls Tuesday night. "I give the Canadiens full credit for the win, they deserved to win."

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Tips About Hazards Of Trailering Boats

I had stopped at a traffic light one day last summer while I was towing my empty boat trailer. It's one of those long, low, skeleton type things.

There was a bump on my rear end and I looked in the rear-view mirror and saw that a car had run into the trailer. The trailer wasn't scratched but damage to the other car's chrome was about $40. The driver later admitted that he hadn't seen the trailer.

Since then I've been very conscious of just how difficult it is to notice an empty boat trailer, when you are driving along. A particularly dangerous situation is when one is trying to move out in heavy traffic on to a fast highway from an approach road where incoming cars can merge without stopping.

It's common to come up to speed with the traffic then slip in behind a car in the main stream. If he's towing a trailer that you haven't noticed — disaster!

I now decorate my empty trailer with a couple of "flag poles" made from one inch by two inch lumber. They are fastened by small, inexpensive clamps to the frame and supported by lengths of string run forward from the tops of the poles to the winch stand. I have a couple of flags, burgees and pennants strung along the string.

Anybody who can't see that trailer has to be blind, and it hasn't been hit since last year.

There's a lot of hazard in trailering a boat as many of the questions we are asked indicate.

Q. My trailer and boat start to sway every time a big truck goes by. Some time I have to go half a mile before it stops wiggling from side to side. Can I stop it?

A. The problem called "fishtailing," is usually caused by poor distribution of weight . . . usually too far to the rear. Or it could be due to soft tires on the car. First, bring more weight forward on the trailer tongue.

Q. I tow a 2,800 pound boat — over a bad road. Sometimes the boat pitches so badly the car is hard to steer. Is there a better way?

A. Get the kind of trailer hitch used on travel trailers or heavy camper trailers. It's called a "load equalizer" hitch, and it limits the downward motion of the connection between the car and trailer. Equalizer hitches are a must for boat and trailer combinations over 1,800 pounds.

Q. The pump jockey at my local filling station under-inflated my trailer tires and I had one blow out. Is there any way to educate service station attendants?

A. In this problem you are on your own. Never depend on service station personnel. Check the tires yourself. Many service station employees, unfamiliar with trailers, still do not realize that trailer tires require much greater pressures than car tires . . . some as high as 90 pounds.

Q. How much weight should be on the hitch ball?

A. Adjust the weight distribution in your boat so that one-tenth of the entire trailer load, or a minimum of 50 pounds, is resting on the car. I use the bathroom scale to adjust my trailer load.

Q. What is the greatest hazard in boat trailering?

A. I think it's tire inflation. Make sure your trailer tires are correctly inflated. If they aren't they will become hot, the heat will melt the lubricant in the wheel bearings and the bearings will run dry. After that, it's a toss up which goes first, the tire or the bearing. Either way a serious accident could be the result.

Q. Why such tiny wheels on a boat trailer?

A. This is to allow the boat to overhang the wheels, so as not to exceed maximum vehicle width, yet still keep it low for easy launching.

Q. Any trailering safety checks?

A. Yes — after I get out of the city I stop and check the safety chains, the tension on the boat tie-downs, and the cover, then I feel the tires and wheel hubs. If they are hot I stop at the next service station to see why they are hot. It could be poor inflation or lack of wheel bearing lubricant.

when Ken Boswell and Jerry Grote singled and Bud Harrelson and Tim Foli walked to force in a run. George Culver relieved Dierker and Marshall greeted him with his first homer of the season.

Bill Hands, backed by three early home runs, scattered five hits as the Cubs beat Philadelphia. John Callison hit a tworun homer, his first of the season, in the second and Billy Williams added a two-run shot in the third. Santo added another two-run homer later in the inning to put the game out of reach.

Joe Torre's two-run homer in the fifth inning broke a tie game and sparked St. Louis past Montreal. Torre's homer, his fifth, followed Lou Brock's single and gave the Cardinals a 5-3 lead. They scored four runs in the ninth on Dick Schofield's two-run blast and Torre's second homer of the night.

Gene Clines' two-run triple highlighted a four-run fifth inning that lifted Pittsburgh past the Padres. San Diego led 2-1 in the fifth when the Pirates parlayed four hits and a pair of errors by catcher Bob Barton into four runs.

Roberto Clemente drove in three runs for Pittsburgh and Manny Sanguillen contributed a double and three singles.

Bill Buckner hit a three-run homer and Willie Davis slashed four hits as the Dodgers beat Atlanta. Buckner's homer came after Bill Russell tripled in ghe fourth and winning pitcher Claude Osteen, now 5-2, walked.

Urquhart, the league's leading hitter, had gone hitless in three trips before smashing his double, which bounced over the left field fence.

The win went to John Klingler, and he sweated to earn it. The tall righthander threw enough pitches for two games, and failed to get Redwood out in order in any inning. In the top of the seventh he was in trouble as usual, but a rifle throw from rightfielder Pete Treanor after a single by Ray Judah nailed pinch runner Kirk Radke at the plate.

Portland Signs Seven-Footer

PORTLAND (UPI) —Seven-foot Bill Smith of Syracuse has signed a multi-year contract to play with the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketbal Association.

Smith's. 1,451 points and 903 rebounds were the second highest total in Syracuse history. He set a single season rebound record of 378 and averaged 22.7 points as the Orangemen compiled a 19-7 record.

Smith's signing gives Portland four of its first five draft choices under contract. The others are top choice Sidney Wicks of UCLA, Charles Yelverton of Fordham and Larry Steele of Kentucky.

Blanda Gets Award As Raiders' MVP

RENO, Nev. (UPI) —Quarterback George Blanda was honored Tuesday night as the Oakland Raiders' most valuable player in 1971 according to a vote of his teammates.

He received the Third Down Award, co-sponsored by the Newspaper Enterprise Association and the Seamless Sports Equipment Co.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Very Sweet Day For Rettenmund

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Earl Weaver has kept his promise to Merv Rettenmund, and now the Baltimore Orioles' outfielder is beginning to repay his manager's confidence.

Weaver promised Rettenmund at the end of last season that the 27-year-old outfielder would get to play a lot this year after the youngster hit .322 with 18 home runs in only 106 games in 1970.

This year, Weaver has used Rettenmund quite regularly, but Merv has not really lived up to last season's performance. However, Tuesday night he showed signs of breaking out of his spring slump with four hits in five at bats, including a 10th inning single which scored Brooks Robinson with the run that gave the Orioles a 5-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Rettenmund's hit enabled the Orioles to snap a three-game losing streak and his four-for-five night raised his average from .196 to .245.

In other American League games, California blanked Detroit, 5-0; Boston beat Minnesota, 5-4; Cleveland defeated Oakland, 7-5; and both New York at Milwaukee and Washington at Chicago were postponed because of rain.

Rettenmund's single in the 10th was off the glove of shortstop Fred Patek and followed walks to Robinson and Dave Johnson. The Royals had tied the score at 4-4 in the ninth on a double by Joe Keough and a triple by Amos Otis.

Clyde Wright, with home run support from Ken Berry and Ken McMullen, tossed his first complete game of the season in defeating Detroit. The Angels' lefthander, who won 22 games last season, scattered eight hits in boosting his record to 3-3.

Duane Josephson and Carl Yastrzemski each belted a two-run homer to pace the Red Sox' victory. The Red Sox scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning when Rico Petrocelli singled, advanced to third on two infield outs and scored when third baseman Rick Renick booted Josephson's grounder.

Reds' Skipper Still Has Comeback Hopes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds ran away with the National League pennant last year. But that was last year.

This season, the Reds are 11-12 games out of first place after losing 6-1 Tuesday night to the West Division leading San Francisco Giants.

Haunted by ineffective starting pitching, Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson holds onto the stubborn hope that his club can make a comeback without making personnel changes.

"You know me, I don't act too quickly," Anderson said in the clubhouse after watching his club's won-lost record fall to 11-19.

Anderson's 20-game winner of last season, Jim Merritt, allowed eight hits and ?ix runs in six innings of work against San Francisco to absorb his fourth loss without a victory. Merritt has not won a game since getting win no. 20. last Aug. 26. He's had elbow trouble.

"I'm not that discouraged with Merritt," Anderson said. "He'll be all right once he gets his control. He just hasn't had enough work to be sharp. The guy that worries me is Simpson."

Anderson was referring to Wayne Simpson, the rookie sensation of last season who has pitched poorly this year after hurting his shoulder in 1970. Simpson is 1-1 with a 5.12 earned run average.

"In his last outing he was 50 per cent or more away from his normal fastball," Anderson said. "I wouldn't mind him being wild if he threw smoke, but he's been throwing lollipops."

The decline of Simpson and Merritt this year underscores their importance to the Reds. Cincinnati has gotten only one complete game out of its starting staff, thereby shifting an overdose of work to the bullpen.

"Our bullpen is shot," Anderson lamented. "and it's only May."

The Giants teed off on Merritt for four runs in the first inning and two in the third to back the six-hit pitching of Gaylord Perry. The victory was Gaylord's fourth this season and his first since April 17.

Bobby Bonds and Dick Dietz hit bases empty homers in the opening inning and Willie McCovey added a two-run shot in the third.

McCovey went 3-for-4, raising his average to .311 after batting .172 only 17 games ago. His resurgence has helped the Giants open an eight-game division lead. San Francisco leads the majors in victories with 24.

McCovey's homer, his seventh of 1971, was a tremendously high blast which barely cleared the rightfield fence as it finally came down.

Teammate Rich Robertson joked about the tall homer, telling McCovey: "That's the first time I've seen an infield fly go for a homer."

ABA Playoffs Resume Tonight

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Zelmo Beaty has a headache, guard Merv Jackson a sore knee and Red Robbins the flu, but the Utah Stars are ready tonight for the Kentucky Colonels in their fifth game of the final American Basketball Association playoffs.

So far, each team has won both its games on its home floor to deadlock the best-of-seven series at 2-2.

Utah will wind up with the home-court advantage in the final game if the series is strung to the limit. Game No. 6 will be played Saturday at Louisville.

Veteran Bowlers Draw PBA Fines

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Dick Weber and Nelson Burton Jr. were fined and reprimanded by the Professional Bowlers Association Tuesday for "unusual deliveries" in last month's $100,000 Tournament of Champions here.

The PBA said the two top-ranked pros, who between them have won 29 championships, "rolled the entire game in a manner contrary to their normal delivery." The amount of their fines was not disclosed.

The PBA said neither bowler protested the ruling and "admitted their unusual deliveries in that match game were prompted by a desire to try to emulate the lefthanders who dominated the play, as well as show a mild protest at what they believed to be inequitable lane conditions."

Basketball

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (UPI) —Russia's National Basketball Team opened its tour of the United States Tuesday night with an 83-82 victory over the U.S. All Stars.

Modestas Paulauskis, a 6-foot-5 guard, scored 22 points and 7-2 center Sergei Kovalenko added 18 to lead the Soviet team. Darnell Hillman, a top draft choice of both the San Francisco Warriors and Indiana Pacers who will play with the American Basketball Association Pacers next season, led the U.S. team with 19 points.

Football

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kicker Tom Dempsey, who gained fame in the National Football League although he was born with only half a right foot and a stub of a right arm, will be honored as the "most courageous player" by the professional football writers of America, it was announced Tuesday.

Dempsey set a league record by booting a 63-yard field goal against Detroit last year that gave the New Orleans Saints a last-second 19-17 victory over the lions. In two full seasons with the Saints, Dempsey has kicked four field goals of more than 50 yards.

Baseball

KANSAS CITY (UPI) —Ted Savage, a utility outfielder with the Milwaukee Brewers, was acquired by the Kansas City Royals Tuesday in exchange for minor league infielder Tommy Matchick.

DETROIT (UPI) —The Milwaukee Brewers announced Tuesday the trade of pitcher John Gelnar and utility man Jose Herrera to the Detroit Tigers in return for pitcher Jim Hannan.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —The San Diego Padres announced Tuesday the signing of veteran relief pitcher Bob Miller as a Free agent. Miller was released by the Chicago Cubs earlier this month.

General

OAKLAND (UPI) — Frank Sanchez has resigned as public relations director of the California Golden Seals hockey team to become promotions director of the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association, it was announced Tuesday.

Sanchez, 28, will join Alex Hannum, newly named coach, president and general manager of the Rockets, on June 1.

BOATING

Tips About Hazards Of Trailering Boats

I had stopped at a traffic light one day last summer while I was towing my empty boat trailer. It's one of those long, low, skeleton type things.

There was a bump on my rear end and I looked in the rear-view mirror and saw that a car had run into the trailer. The trailer wasn't scratched but damage to the other car's chrome was about $40. The driver later admitted that he hadn't seen the trailer.

Since then I've been very conscious of just how difficult it is to notice an empty boat trailer, when you are driving along. A particularly dangerous situation is when one is trying to move out in heavy traffic on to a fast highway from an approach road where incoming cars can merge without stopping.

It's common to come up to speed with the traffic then slip in behind a car in the main stream. If he's towing a trailer that you haven't noticed — disaster!

I now decorate my empty trailer with a couple of "flag poles" made from one inch by two inch lumber. They are fastened by small, inexpensive clamps to the frame and supported by lengths of string run forward from the tops of the poles to the winch stand. I have a couple of flags, burgees and pennants strung along the string.

Anybody who can't see that trailer has to be blind, and it hasn't been hit since last year.

There's a lot of hazard in trailering a boat as many of the questions we are asked indicate.

Q. My trailer and boat start to sway every time a big truck goes by. Some time I have to go half a mile before it stops wiggling from side to side. Can I stop it?

A. The problem called "fishtailing," is usually caused by poor distribution of weight . . . usually too far to the rear. Or it could be due to soft tires on the car. First, bring more weight forward on the trailer tongue.

Q. I tow a 2,800 pound boat — over a bad road. Sometimes the boat pitches so badly the car is hard to steer. Is there a better way?

A. Get the kind of trailer hitch used on travel trailers or heavy camper trailers. It's called a "load equalizer" hitch, and it limits the downward motion of the connection between the car and trailer. Equalizer hitches are a must for boat and trailer combinations over 1,800 pounds.

Q. The pump jockey at my local filling station under-inflated my trailer tires and I had one blow out. Is there any way to educate service station attendants?

A. In this problem you are on your own. Never depend on service station personnel. Check the tires yourself. Many service station employees, unfamiliar with trailers, still do not realize that trailer tires require much greater pressures than car tires . . . some as high as 90 pounds.

Q. How much weight should be on the hitch ball?

A. Adjust the weight distribution in your boat so that one-tenth of the entire trailer load, or a minimum of 50 pounds, is resting on the car. I use the bathroom scale to adjust my trailer load.

Q. What is the greatest hazard in boat trailering?

A. I think it's tire inflation. Make sure your trailer tires are correctly inflated. If they aren't they will become hot, the heat will melt the lubricant in the wheel bearings and the bearings will run dry. After that, it's a toss up which goes first, the tire or the bearing. Either way a serious accident could be the result.

Q. Why such tiny wheels on a boat trailer?

A. This is to allow the boat to overhang the wheels, so as not to exceed maximum vehicle width, yet still keep it low for easy launching.

Q. Any trailering safety checks?

A. Yes — after I get out of the city I stop and check the safety chains, the tension on the boat tie-downs, and the cover, then I feel the tires and wheel hubs. If they are hot I stop at the next service station to see why they are hot. It could be poor inflation or lack of wheel bearing lubricant.

when Ken Boswell and Jerry Grote singled and Bud Harrelson and Tim Foli walked to force in a run. George Culver relieved Dierker and Marshall greeted him with his first homer of the season.

Bill Hands, backed by three early home runs, scattered five hits as the Cubs beat Philadelphia. John Callison hit a tworun homer, his first of the season, in the second and Billy Williams added a two-run shot in the third. Santo added another two-run homer later in the inning to put the game out of reach.

Joe Torre's two-run homer in the fifth inning broke a tie game and sparked St. Louis past Montreal. Torre's homer, his fifth, followed Lou Brock's single and gave the Cardinals a 5-3 lead. They scored four runs in the ninth on Dick Schofield's two-run blast and Torre's second homer of the night.

Gene Clines' two-run triple highlighted a four-run fifth inning that lifted Pittsburgh past the Padres. San Diego led 2-1 in the fifth when the Pirates parlayed four hits and a pair of errors by catcher Bob Barton into four runs.

Roberto Clemente drove in three runs for Pittsburgh and Manny Sanguillen contributed a double and three singles.

Bill Buckner hit a three-run homer and Willie Davis slashed four hits as the Dodgers beat Atlanta. Buckner's homer came after Bill Russell tripled in ghe fourth and winning pitcher Claude Osteen, now 5-2, walked.

ning run for San Rafael on a ground rule double by Dave Urquhart and Jim Thorne's single to left. Both hits came after two were out in the bottom of the sixth. Urquhart, the league's leading hitter, had gone hitless in three trips before smashing his double, which bounced over the left field fence.

The win went to John Klingler, and he sweated to earn it. The tall righthander threw enough pitches for two games, and failed to get Redwood out in order in any inning. In the top of the seventh he was in trouble as usual, but a rifle throw from rightfielder Pete Treanor after a single by Ray Judah nailed pinch runner Kirk Radke at the plate.

Portland Signs Seven-Footer

PORTLAND (UPI) —Seven-foot Bill Smith of Syracuse has signed a multi-year contract to play with the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketbal Association.

Smith's 1,451 points and 903 rebounds were the second highest total in Syracuse history. He set a single season rebound record of 378 and averaged 22.7 points as the Orangemen compiled a 19-7 record.

Smith's signing gives Portland four of its first five draft choices under contract. The others are top choice Sidney Wicks of UCLA, Charles Yelverton of Fordham and Larry Steele of Kentucky.

Blanda Gets Award As Raiders' MVP

RENO, Nev. (UPI) —Quarterback George Blanda was honored Tuesday night as the Oakland Raiders' most valuable player in 1971 according to a vote of his teammates.

He received the Third Down Award, co-sponsored by the Newspaper Enterprise Association and the Seamless Sports Equipment Co.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Very Sweet Day For Rettenmund

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Earl Weaver has kept his promise to Merv Rettenmund, and now the Baltimore Orioles' outfielder is beginning to repay his manager's confidence.

Weaver promised Rettenmund at the end of last season that the 27-year-old outfielder would get to play a lot this year after the youngster hit .322 with 18 home runs in only 106 games in 1970.

This year, Weaver has used Rettenmund quite regularly, but Merv has not really lived up to last season's performance. However, Tuesday night he showed signs of breaking out of his spring slump with four hits in five at bats, including a 10th inning single which scored Brooks Robinson with the run that gave the Orioles a 5-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Rettenmund's hit enabled the Orioles to snap a three-game losing streak and his four-for-five night raised his average from .196 to .245.

In other American League games, California blanked Detroit, 5-0; Boston beat Minnesota, 5-4; Cleveland defeated Oakland, 7-5; and both New York at Milwaukee and Washington at Chicago were postponed because of rain.

Rettenmund's single in the 10th was off the glove of shortstop Fred Patek and followed walks to Robinson and Dave Johnson. The Royals had tied the score at 4-4 in the ninth on a double by Joe Keough and a triple by Amos Otis.

Clyde Wright, with home run support from Ken Berry and Ken McMullen, tossed his first complete game of the season in defeating Detroit. The Angels' lefthander, who won 22 games last season, scattered eight hits in boosting his record to 3-3.

Duane Josephson and Carl Yastrzemski each belted a two-run homer to pace the Red Sox' victory. The Red Sox scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning when Rico Petrocelli singled, advanced to third on two infield outs and scored when third baseman Rick Renick booted Josephson's grounder.

ABA Playoffs Resume Tonight

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Zelmo Beaty has a headache, guard Merv Jackson a sore knee and Red Robbins the flu, but the Utah Stars are ready tonight for the Kentucky Colonels in their fifth game of the final American Basketball Association playoffs.

So far, each team has won both its games on its home floor to deadlock the best-of-seven series at 2-2.

Utah will wind up with the home-court advantage in the final game if the series is strung to the limit. Game No. 6 will be played Saturday at Louisville.

Reds' Skipper Still Has Comeback Hopes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds ran away with the National League pennant last year. But that was last year.

This season, the Reds are 11-12 games out of first place after losing 6-1 Tuesday night to the West Division leading San Francisco Giants.

Haunted by ineffective starting pitching, Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson holds onto the stubborn hope that his club can make a comeback without making personnel changes.

"You know me, I don't act too quickly," Anderson said in the clubhouse after watching his club's won-lost record fall to 11-19.

Anderson's 20-game winner of last season, Jim Merritt, allowed eight hits and ?ix runs in six innings of work against San Francisco to absorb his fourth loss without a victory. Merritt has not won a game since getting win no. 20. last Aug. 26. He's had elbow trouble.

"I'm not that discouraged with Merritt," Anderson said. "He'll be all right once he gets his control. He just hasn't had enough work to be sharp. The guy that worries me is Simpson."

Anderson was referring to Wayne Simpson, the rookie sensation of last season who has pitched poorly this year after hurting his shoulder in 1970. Simpson is 1-1 with a 5.12 earned run average.

"In his last outing he was 50 per cent or more away from his normal fastball," Anderson said. "I wouldn't mind him being wild if he threw smoke, but he's been throwing lollipops."

The decline of Simpson and Merritt this year underscores their importance to the Reds. Cincinnati has gotten only one complete game out of its starting staff, thereby shifting an overdose of work to the bullpen.

"Our bullpen is shot," Anderson lamented. "and it's only May."

The Giants teed off on Merritt for four runs in the first inning and two in the third to back the six-hit pitching of Gaylord Perry. The victory was Gaylord's fourth this season and his first since April 17.

Bobby Bonds and Dick Dietz hit bases empty homers in the opening inning and Willie McCovey added a two-run shot in the third.

McCovey went 3-for-4, raising his average to .311 after batting .172 only 17 games ago. His resurgence has helped the Giants open an eight-game division lead. San Francisco leads the majors in victories with 24.

McCovey's homer, his seventh of 1971, was a tremendously high blast which barely cleared the rightfield fence as it finally came down.

Teammate Rich Robertson joked about the tall homer, telling McCovey: "That's the first time I've seen an infield fly go for a homer."

Veteran Bowlers Draw PBA Fines

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Dick Weber and Nelson Burton Jr. were fined and reprimanded by the Professional Bowlers Association Tuesday for "unusual deliveries" in last month's $100,000 Tournament of Champions here.

The PBA said the two top-ranked pros, who between them have won 29 championships, "rolled the entire game in a manner contrary to their normal delivery." The amount of their fines was not disclosed.

The PBA said neither bowler protested the ruling and "admitted their unusual deliveries in that match game were prompted by a desire to try to emulate the lefthanders who dominated the play, as well as show a mild protest at what they believed to be inequitable lane conditions."

Basketball

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (UPI) —Russia's National Basketball Team opened its tour of the United States Tuesday night with an 83-82 victory over the U.S. All Stars.

Modestas Paulauskis, a 6-foot-5 guard, scored 22 points and 7-2 center Sergei Kovalenko added 18 to lead the Soviet team. Darnell Hillman, a top draft choice of both the San Francisco Warriors and Indiana Pacers who will play with the American Basketball Association Pacers next season, led the U.S. team with 19 points.

Football

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kicker Tom Dempsey, who gained fame in the National Football League although he was born with only half a right foot and a stub of a right arm, will be honored as the "most courageous player" by the professional football writers of America, it was announced Tuesday.

Dempsey set a league record by booting a 63-yard field goal against Detroit last year that gave the New Orleans Saints a last-second 19-17 victory over the lions. In two full seasons with the Saints, Dempsey has kicked four field goals of more than 50 yards.

Baseball

KANSAS CITY (UPI) —Ted Savage, a utility outfielder with the Milwaukee Brewers, was acquired by the Kansas City Royals Tuesday in exchange for minor league infielder Tommy Matchick.

DETROIT (UPI) —The Milwaukee Brewers announced Tuesday the trade of pitcher John Gelnar and utility man Jose Herrera to the Detroit Tigers in return for pitcher Jim Hannan.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —The San Diego Padres announced Tuesday the signing of veteran relief pitcher Bob Miller as a Free agent. Miller was released by the Chicago Cubs earlier this month.

General

OAKLAND (UPI) — Frank Sanchez has resigned as public relations director of the California Golden Seals hockey team to become promotions director of the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association, it was announced Tuesday.

Sanchez, 28, will join Alex Hannum, newly named coach, president and general manager of the Rockets, on June 1.

Perry Thrives On Hard Work

Gaylord Perry got off to a flying start this season. The rangy righthander of the Giants won his first three games, completing all of them, one with a tidy three-hit shutout. The 1971 baseball season was just 10 days into its six months schedule when Perry notched No. 3 on April 17.

On April 21 Perry lost a pitching duel to Bob Gibson of the Cardinals. Since then Perry pitched the equivalent of three complete games but wound up with three no-decisions. The three games turned into extra inning affairs, all won by Perry's bullpen teammates.

NATURALLY, Perry is happy the Giants won the ball games but at the same time he also, naturally, was wondering how long the no-decision stuff was going to continue.

"Don't misunderstand me," said Perry, "what's good for the team is good for me, too. But I hate explaining no-decisions. It's much easier to point to wins. You never have to explain a victory."

Perry is a forthright fellow in discussing such matters and is the first to admit that his no-decision game last Friday, instead of his fourth victory, was his own fault. He got a little carelesswith a 1-1 pitch with two out in the ninth and a 3-2 lead turned into a 3-3 tie when Earl Williams of the Braves belted it for a homer.

SUCH HAPPENINGS are trying moments for hard-working pitchers intent on another 20-victory season. However, Perry, having survived many frustrating experiences early in his major league career, knows how to deal with problems, including the present no-decision one.

"There's no secret in how to handle it," said Perry. "All it will take is a string of complete games, finishing what I start."

Perry does usually finish what he starts. Last season he won 23 and completed 23. Yet, last year he got off to a slow start, encountering one early season frustration after another.

IN HIS FIRST seven games a year ago, Perry pitched a total of 58 innings but his record was 3-4 because he was allowing an average of five runs a game.

In his first seven games this year, Perry pitched a total of 59 innings but his record is 3-1 because his earned run average is 3.05.

Thus, his no-decision disappointments this season are minor matters compared to last year's early season headaches.

PERRY ALWASY gets stronger as the season progresses. Hard work agrees with him, makes him tougher. He's always in top physical shape because of the disciplined way he trains. For the past two seasons Perry has led the National League in innings pitched, 325 in 1969, 329 last year.

Literally, he was stronger at the end of last season than when it opened. He streaked through the stretch, winning six-in-a-row, including four consecutive shutouts which tied a Giant club record set in 1950 by Sal Maglie.

Three Shutouts In Marin Prep Tennis Matches

Drake High School's tennis team romped past Marin Catholic 4-1 yesterday, to virtually insure a second place tie for the Pirates in the Marin County Athletic League net race.

Redwood High, off a tough 3-2 win last week, eased by Tamalpais, Terra Linda whipped Novato, and San Rafael smashed San Marin, all by 5-0 shutout scores.

The Drake Pirates got two tough wins from Jerry Suyderhoud and Jim Horen. Suyderhoud defeated archrival Bill Kinser, 6-4, 6-4, and Horen upset John Beritzhoff in three sets.

Once again, the Redwood Giants of Larkspur were led by Gary Walter, who routed Mark Robinson 6-0, 6-1.

Other top performances were from Mark Yuan of Terra Linda, and Dave Bacon of San Rafael.

Petaluma Hurler Triumphs Again

The Petaluma High School Trojans came home from Montgomery High School victorious yesterday, defeating the rival Vikings 5-3 in North Bay League I action in Santa Rosa.

The Trojans, now 6-5, got another strong performance from their righthanded hurler Terry Sutton. Sutton has been on the mound in all Trojan wins this season.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Moments Of Truth For Jim Ryun

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—The moments of truth are at hand for world mile record holder Jim Ryun—or are they?

On May 16 at Philadelphia Ryun runs in the Martin Luther King Freedom Games against the man who put him into retirement two years ago with two defeats—Marty Liquori.

On June 6 Ryun goes up against sensational Oregon sophomore Steve Prefontaine in a local meet.

Later in June the National AAU meet will be held here.

Ryun is aiming for next year's Olympics—and it so happens the U.S. Olympic trials next year algo will be held here.

All of which helps explain why the slim 24-year-old University of Kansas graduate picked Oregon to launch his "comeback."

"I like the climate very well," he said. "It's much milder than the midwest. The rain doesn't trouble me this much.

Ryun, who formerly worked as a photographer for a Topeka newspaper, now is doing the same kind of job for a major lumber company (Bohemia) here.

"I take pictures for the company magazine and do whatever other photo assignments that come up for the company," he said.

He also runs 15 miles a day in two daily workouts. He said he gets his coaching "by correspondence" from Bob Timmons, his coach at Kansas. Ryun runs with University of Oregon coach Bill Bowerman's team in practice when the time factor works out.

"I'm very satisfied with my progress so far," he said.

He should be.

On Feb. 15 in San Diego he matched the indoor mile record of 3:56.4. That was his second race in 20 months. In his first "comeback" race he had run 4:04.4.

Later, in the Kansas Relays, he ran the second fastest mile ever by an American—3:55.8—which also is the fastest in the world so far this year.

His world record of 3:51.1 was set at Bakersfield, Calif., on June 23, 1967—when he was 20 years old.

And Ryun will tell you that distance runners "mature" later on.

Asked about the forthcoming race against Prefontaine, who turned 20 in January, he said of the Oregon sophomore: "I think his best races are ahead of him. It takes time to mature physically and mentally."

Prefontaine has said he hopes, in effect, to run Ryun into the ground by going 2:54 in the first three-quarters of a mile.

Asked about that, Ryun said, "That's fine."

Prefontaine twice has gone under four minutes, once when he finished third last year and this year against UCLA when he ran far ahead of the field in 3:59.1.

About the 1972 Olympics, Ryun repeated earlier statements — "It's too far off to be able to talk about. I'm not even sure that I will be running next year. I have to qualify first of all."

The race against Liquori is being built up as a "mile of the century." But Ryun and his wife, Anne, do not look at it that way. Anne, who accompanies her husband along with their 10-month-old daughter, Heather, on his racing trips, said: "Jim and I put each race in perspective, and he runs one at a time."

If Ryun, who has delayed post graduate work to concentrate on training, loses to Liquori, there's still Prefontaine. And then there's still the AAU.

If he should lose out on all three, there's a chance, as he says, that he might not be running next year. But Ryun has matured—and is at the age when distance runners are at their peak. If he loses he will know whether he is really not good enough—or simply whether it was a bad day.

He finished second in the Olympic 1500 meters in Mexico City's high altitude in 1968, but he also holds the world's 1500 meter record—3:33.1—set at Los Angeles June 8, 1967.

Gymnastics Night At Terra Linda High

The combined boys and girls gymnastics teams at Terra Linda High School will give a demonstration of the sport tomorrow night from 7 o'clock to 9 in the school's gym.

The program will feature various individual and team events on rings, parallel bars, vault, beam high bar and side horse.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Proceeds will go to purchase equipment for the gymnastics teams.

Rancho Cotate Nine Whips Healdsburg, 6-1

The Rancho Cotate High School Cougars continued their relentless drive for the championship of North Bay League II by climbing over the Healdsburg Greyhounds 6-1 yesterday.

Winning pitcher for the Cougars was Dave Christenson who went all the way, allowing only 4 hits while striking out 3.

Perry Thrives On Hard Work

Gaylord Perry got off to a flying start this season. The rangy righthander of the Giants won his first three games, completing all of them, one with a tidy three-hit shutout. The 1971 baseball season was just 10 days into its six months schedule when Perry notched No. 3 on April 17.

On April 21 Perry lost a pitching duel to Bob Gibson of the Cardinals. Since then Perry pitched the equivalent of three complete games but wound up with three no-decisions. The three games turned into extra inning affairs, all won by Perry's bullpen teammates.

NATURALLY, Perry is happy the Giants won the ball games but at the same time he also, naturally, was wondering how long the no-decision stuff was going to continue.

"Don't misunderstand me," said Perry, "what's good for the team is good for me, too. But I hate explaining no-decisions. It's much easier to point to wins. You never have to explain a victory."

Perry is a forthright fellow in discussing such matters and is the first to admit that his no-decision game last Friday, instead of his fourth victory, was his own fault. He got a little carelesswith a 1-1 pitch with two out in the ninth and a 3-2 lead turned into a 3-3 tie when Earl Williams of the Braves belted it for a homer.

SUCH HAPPENINGS are trying moments for hard-working pitchers intent on another 20-victory season. However, Perry, having survived many frustrating experiences early in his major league career, knows how to deal with problems, including the present no-decision one.

"There's no secret in how to handle it," said Perry. "All it will take is a string of complete games, finishing what I start."

Perry does usually finish what he starts. Last season he won 23 and completed 23. Yet, last year he got off to a slow start, encountering one early season frustration after another.

IN HIS FIRST seven games a year ago, Perry pitched a total of 58 innings but his record was 3-4 because he was allowing an average of five runs a game.

In his first seven games this year, Perry pitched a total of 59 innings but his record is 3-1 because his earned run average is 3.05.

Thus, his no-decision disappointments this season are minor matters compared to last year's early season headaches.

PERRY ALWASY gets stronger as the season progresses. Hard work agrees with him, makes him tougher. He's always in top physical shape because of the disciplined way he trains. For the past two seasons Perry has led the National League in innings pitched, 325 in 1969, 329 last year.

Literally, he was stronger at the end of last season than when it opened. He streaked through the stretch, winning six-in-a-row, including four consecutive shutouts which tied a Giant club record set in 1950 by Sal Maglie.

Three Shutouts In Marin Prep Tennis Matches

Drake High School's tennis team romped past Marin Catholic 4-1 yesterday, to virtually insure a second place tie for the Pirates in the Marin County Athletic League net race.

Redwood High, off a tough 3-2 win last week, eased by Tamalpais, Terra Linda whipped Novato, and San Rafael smashed San Marin, all by 5-0 shutout scores.

The Drake Pirates got two tough wins from Jerry Suyderhoud and Jim Horen. Suyderhoud defeated archrival Bill Kinser, 6-4, 6-4, and Horen upset John Beritzhoff in three sets.

Once again, the Redwood Giants of Larkspur were led by Gary Walter, who routed Mark Robinson 6-0, 6-1.

Other top performances were from Mark Yuan of Terra Linda, and Dave Bacon of San Rafael.

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—The moments of truth are at hand for world mile record holder Jim Ryun—or are they?

On May 16 at Philadelphia Ryun runs in the Martin Luther King Freedom Games against the man who put him into retirement two years ago with two defeats—Marty Liquori.

On June 6 Ryun goes up against sensational Oregon sophomore Steve Prefontaine in a local meet.

Later in June the National AAU meet will be held here.

Ryun is aiming for next year's Olympics—and it so happens the U.S. Olympic trials next year algo will be held here.

All of which helps explain why the slim 24-year-old University of Kansas graduate picked Oregon to launch his "comeback."

"I like the climate very well," he said. "It's much milder than the midwest. The rain doesn't trouble me this much.

Ryun, who formerly worked as a photographer for a Topeka newspaper, now is doing the same kind of job for a major lumber company (Bohemia) here.

"I take pictures for the company magazine and do whatever other photo assignments that come up for the company," he said.

He also runs 15 miles a day in two daily workouts. He said he gets his coaching "by correspondence" from Bob Timmons, his coach at Kansas. Ryun runs with University of Oregon coach Bill Bowerman's team in practice when the time factor works out.

"I'm very satisfied with my progress so far," he said.

He should be.

On Feb. 15 in San Diego he matched the indoor mile record of 3:56.4. That was his second race in 20 months. In his first "comeback" race he had run 4:04.4.

Later, in the Kansas Relays, he ran the second fastest mile ever by an American—3:55.8—which also is the fastest in the world so far this year.

His world record of 3:51.1 was set at Bakersfield, Calif., on June 23, 1967—when he was 20 years old.

And Ryun will tell you that distance runners "mature" later on.

Asked about the forthcoming race against Prefontaine, who turned 20 in January, he said of the Oregon sophomore: "I think his best races are ahead of him. It takes time to mature physically and mentally."

Prefontaine has said he hopes, in effect, to run Ryun into the ground by going 2:54 in the first three-quarters of a mile.

Asked about that, Ryun said, "That's fine."

Prefontaine twice has gone under four minutes, once when he finished third last year and this year against UCLA when he ran far ahead of the field in 3:59.1.

About the 1972 Olympics, Ryun repeated earlier statements — "It's too far off to be able to talk about. I'm not even sure that I will be running next year. I have to qualify first of all."

The race against Liquori is being built up as a "mile of the century." But Ryun and his wife, Anne, do not look at it that way. Anne, who accompanies her husband along with their 10-month-old daughter, Heather, on his racing trips, said: "Jim and I put each race in perspective, and he runs one at a time."

If Ryun, who has delayed post graduate work to concentrate on training, loses to Liquori, there's still Prefontaine. And then there's still the AAU.

If he should lose out on all three, there's a chance, as he says, that he might not be running next year. But Ryun has matured—and is at the age when distance runners are at their peak. If he loses he will know whether he is really not good enough—or simply whether it was a bad day.

He finished second in the Olympic 1500 meters in Mexico City's high altitude in 1968, but he also holds the world's 1500 meter record—3:33.1—set at Los Angeles June 8, 1967.

Gymnastics Night At Terra Linda High

The combined boys and girls gymnastics teams at Terra Linda High School will give a demonstration of the sport tomorrow night from 7 o'clock to 9 in the school's gym.

The program will feature various individual and team events on rings, parallel bars, vault, beam high bar and side horse.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Proceeds will go to purchase equipment for the gymnastics teams.

Rancho Cotate Nine Whips Healdsburg, 6-1

The Rancho Cotate High School Cougars continued their relentless drive for the championship of North Bay League II by climbing over the Healdsburg Greyhounds 6-1 yesterday.

Winning pitcher for the Cougars was Dave Christenson who went all the way, allowing only 4 hits while striking out 3.

Generation gap? Jim Beam never heard of it.

Orson Welles and his daughter, Rebecca.

Orson Welles, acclaimed actor. Rebecca Welles Moede, aspiring actress.

Different generations. But very much alike when it comes to their craft. They live for it. And work for it. And love it.

The Beams, too, have a craft—the distilling of Bourbon. And for six generations now, son has followed father at that craft. Living for it. Working for it. Loving it.

It's a proud record.

It's a proud Bourbon—smooth and light and mellow. With a rich aroma full of promise.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

P. R. Cement Firm In Profits Pinch

Q. I bought shares of Puerto Rican Cement in 1965. I received a smaller dividend this year. Is the company in financial trouble? What is its future? — J.P.

A. In January 1971, Puerto Rican Cement directors reduced the quarterly divident to 15 cents from 27½ cents. Company, although financially sound, is experiencing operating problems at present, having reported a 4 cent a-share deficit (versus earnings of $1.46 in 1969) on a 0.4 per cent decline in sales.

The profit squeeze is largely attributable to reduced home building, lower shipments to other Caribbean areas, a 45-day strike by Puerto Rican independent materials carriers and higher costs. Until the company can turn profits around, shares may remain at or near current quotes.

Q. We recently inherited 550 shares of Wometco Enterproses about which we know nothing. We are retired and interested in income. What is your opinion of this as to income and potential? — C.T.

A. Wometco Enterprises is a diversified concern, serving primarily the leisure-time market. Stock currently yields 2 per cent - not a suitable return for investors seeking income. Company's 10-year record of sales and earnings growth was interrupted in the initial quarter of 1971 as sales slipped 1 per cent and per share profits fell 29 per cent to 17 cents. Television and movie operations reportedly were off for the period.

Since November, 1970, shares have appreciated nearly 60 per cent and are quoted about 11 per cent below the all-time high. Retain 200 shares for participation in growth expected for the leisure-time sector with the balance to be invested for income.

Firm Pace On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were firm in moderately active trading through the second hour today on the New York Sock Exchange.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.16 at 102.78, while advances topped declines, 671 to 472.

Prices were steady in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 976 issues on the tape, 361 pointed higher, while 329 retreated.

Among the most active Amex issues were Arkansas Louisiana Gas up a point on over 50,000 shares, United Brands warrants down slightly on a volume of 49,000, and Cinerama fractionally higher on 30,000 shares.

On the Big Board, Bausch & Lomb was ahead by more than 6, while stocks up a point or so were IBM, Control Data, Polaroid, and Walt Disney.

Steels and chemicals generally tacked on fractions, while motors, and oils traded in narrowly mixed fashion.

Rails, airlines, and aircrafts also were mixed.

Bicycle Rental-Repair Service, Seashore Bicycles, Open In Olema

Olema is not especially a site for many new business ventures, but Mrs. Barbara Gunn of Inverness has started one on the Olema Ranch Campground.

This is Seashore Bicycles, a bicycle rental and repair service. She has acquired a fleet of new Schwinns, mostly adult three-speed models, but with several sizes for youngsters. She also carries several accessories and a limited assortment of parts.

There are many scenic bicycle trips to be made in the Point Reyes National Seashore area and Mrs. Gunn is working up package deals with restaurants and developing student group rates for clubs, schools and special interest groups. Hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and holidays, and every day after June 15 through Labor Day. Hours may also be extended later to 6 p.m. and overnight rentals arranged if there is sufficient demand.

MARIN SURPLUS STORE, San Rafael (also known as the Army and Navy Surplus Store) will hold its third annual Camping and Back-Packing Show next Saturday.

The show was previously held in the parking lot, but this year with the addition of 12,000 square feet in the newly expanded store it will be held inside. Representatives from national firms will be on hand again to display specialty items newest propane and gasoline appliances, backpacking equipment, tents, sleeping bags, coolers and jugs and other gear for the outdoorsman.

Oregon Freeze-Dried Food Co. is introducing a new freeze-dried fresh egg, and other freeze-dried products will be prepared and demonstrated. There will be free gifts for the youngsters.

MARIN MAZDA at 575 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael has received a number of the new Mazda cars and these will be available for delivery after Friday.

Roland A. Bacci, president of the company, reports that there has already been a terrific turnout to inspect the RX-2 coupes and the R-100 sport coupe, all powered by the new rotary engine. Several saies have been made, with without even a test drive.

DE WITT READING CLINIC, INC., San Rafal has opened clinics in Napa and Santa Rosa. The organization for the past 15 years has been engaged in assisting children to overcome their learning problems.

This summer, in addition to individual remedial programs, study skills programs including vocabulary, comprehension development, spelling and college preparation will be offered. Full details on summer activities will be announced early in June.

More Revenue Passenger Miles

CHICAGO (BW) — United Air Lines flew an estimated 1,873,784,000 revenue passenger miles during April — an increase of 4.5 per cent over the corresponding month a year ago.

Comapny officials attributed the gain to Easter falling in April this year, rather than March as in 1970, and to the dampening effect the air traffic controllers' slowdown had on April traffic last year.

The passenger load factor averaged 49 per cent, compared with 50.6 per cent in April 1970. Available seat miles increased from 3,545,277,000 to 3,817,540,000, up 7.7 per cent.

Assurance To BART On Train Controls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Westinghouse Electric Corp. told the Bay Area Rapid Transit District on Tuesday it expects to fulfill its $36 million contract for train controls on schedule.

W. E. Jounson, general manager of the firm's transportation division, told the BART's engineering committee that equipment should be installed in the first four stations on a southern Alameda County line by the May 20 deadline.

P. R. Cement Firm In Profits Pinch

Q. I bought shares of Puerto Rican Cement in 1965. I received a smaller dividend this year. Is the company in financial trouble? What is its future? — J.P.

A. In January 1971, Puerto Rican Cement directors reduced the quarterly divident to 15 cents from 27½ cents. Company, although financially sound, is experiencing operating problems at present, having reported a 4 cent a-share deficit (versus earnings of $1.46 in 1969) on a 0.4 per cent decline in sales.

The profit squeeze is largely attributable to reduced home building, lower shipments to other Caribbean areas, a 45-day strike by Puerto Rican independent materials carriers and higher costs. Until the company can turn profits around, shares may remain at or near current quotes.

Q. We recently inherited 550 shares of Wometco Enterproses about which we know nothing. We are retired and interested in income. What is your opinion of this as to income and potential? — C.T.

A. Wometco Enterprises is a diversified concern, serving primarily the leisure-time market. Stock currently yields 2 per cent - not a suitable return for investors seeking income. Company's 10-year record of sales and earnings growth was interrupted in the initial quarter of 1971 as sales slipped 1 per cent and per share profits fell 29 per cent to 17 cents. Television and movie operations reportedly were off for the period.

Since November, 1970, shares have appreciated nearly 60 per cent and are quoted about 11 per cent below the all-time high. Retain 200 shares for participation in growth expected for the leisure-time sector with the balance to be invested for income.

Firm Pace On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were firm in moderately active trading through the second hour today on the New York Sock Exchange.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.16 at 102.78, while advances topped declines, 671 to 472.

Prices were steady in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 976 issues on the tape, 361 pointed higher, while 329 retreated.

Among the most active Amex issues were Arkansas Louisiana Gas up a point on over 50,000 shares, United Brands warrants down slightly on a volume of 49,000, and Cinerama fractionally higher on 30,000 shares.

On the Big Board, Bausch & Lomb was ahead by more than 6, while stocks up a point or so were IBM, Control Data, Polaroid, and Walt Disney.

Steels and chemicals generally tacked on fractions, while motors, and oils traded in narrowly mixed fashion.

Rails, airlines, and aircrafts also were mixed.

NEW MAZDA COMES TO MARIN — This Mazda R-2 from Japan, equipped with the new rotary engine, is now on display at Marin Mazda, 575 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael. The rotary engine has about only one-third as many parts as an average piston engine and runs on low-octane gasoline, delivering 120 horsepower.

NEW MOTOR HOME TO BE SHOWN

This new 18-foot Balboa motor home built by Jensen Marine of Costa Mesa on a Dodge Maxi-Van chassis sleeps four and is self-contained. First north-of-the-Golden Gate showing will be for 10 days starting May 17 at Artie-Vee Associates, 521-A Francisco Boulevard East. After that it will go into the Artie-Vee rental service.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Bicycle Rental-Repair Service, Seashore Bicycles, Open In Olema

Olema is not especially a site for many new business ventures, but Mrs. Barbara Gunn of Inverness has started one on the Olema Ranch Campground.

This is Seashore Bicycles, a bicycle rental and repair service. She has acquired a fleet of new Schwinns, mostly adult three-speed models, but with several sizes for youngsters. She also carries several accessories and a limited assortment of parts.

There are many scenic bicycle trips to be made in the Point Reyes National Seashore area and Mrs. Gunn is working up package deals with restaurants and developing student group rates for clubs, schools and special interest groups. Hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and holidays, and every day after June 15 through Labor Day. Hours may also be extended later to 6 p.m. and overnight rentals arranged if there is sufficient demand.

MARIN SURPLUS STORE, San Rafael (also known as the Army and Navy Surplus Store) will hold its third annual Camping and Back-Packing Show next Saturday.

The show was previously held in the parking lot, but this year with the addition of 12,000 square feet in the newly expanded store it will be held inside. Representatives from national firms will be on hand again to display specialty items newest propane and gasoline appliances, backpacking equipment, tents, sleeping bags, coolers and jugs and other gear for the outdoorsman.

Oregon Freeze-Dried Food Co. is introducing a new freeze-dried fresh egg, and other freeze-dried products will be prepared and demonstrated. There will be free gifts for the youngsters.

MARIN MAZDA at 575 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael has received a number of the new Mazda cars and these will be available for delivery after Friday.

Roland A. Bacci, president of the company, reports that there has already been a terrific turnout to inspect the RX-2 coupes and the R-100 sport coupe, all powered by the new rotary engine. Several sales have been made, with without even a test drive.

DE WITT READING CLINIC, INC., San Rafal has opened clinics in Napa and Santa Rosa. The organization for the past 15 years has been engaged in assisting children to overcome their learning problems.

This summer, in addition to individual remedial programs, study skills programs including vocabulary, comprehension development, spelling and college preparation will be offered. Full details on summer activities will be announced early in June.

FRANK'S AUTO BODY has moved from Bolinas Road in Fairfax to 1542 Fourth Street in San Rafael, where R and R Automatic Transmissions Repair is located.

Owner Frank Whiting of Forest Knolls has been in automobile body work more than 25 years.

More Revenue Passenger Miles

CHICAGO (BW) — United Air Lines flew an estimated 1,873,784,000 revenue passenger miles during April — an increase of 4.5 per cent over the corresponding month a year ago.

Comapny officials attributed the gain to Easter falling in April this year, rather than March as in 1970, and to the dampening effect the air traffic controllers' slowdown had on April traffic last year.

The passenger load factor averaged 49 per cent, compared with 50.6 per cent in April 1970. Available seat miles increased from 3,545,277,000 to 3,817,540,000, up 7.7 per cent.

Increased Income

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Cayman Corp., Palos Verdes, Calif.-based oil exploration-development and real estate company, has announced that net income for the nine months ended Feb. 28 increased to $354,424, or 17 cents per share, compared to a loss of $77,121, or 5 cents per share in the like period last year.

Session On Parks Saturday

A day-long discussion on park needs in Marin and elsewhere in California will be presented starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Olney Hall, College of Marin, sponsored by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission.

Alfred Heller, president of California Tomorrow, will be featured speaker at 10:30 a.m., according to James R. Van de Weg, county park coordinator.

A slide show of parks as they are now and as they are planned will be presented by Lewis Stuart, public relations representative of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. The slides will show mainly Marin County parks but development ideas for other park areas also will be featured, Van deWeg said.

Following a lunch break, four panel discussions will be held. They are: "Recycling People's Awareness," moderated by John Hart, writer for the Pacific Sun; "Regional Park Districts," moderated by George Barnwell, publisher of the Novato Advance; "Who Needs Recreation?" moderated by George Draper of the San Francisco Chronicle; "What Do We Need Now?" moderated by Dean Meyer former mayor of Mill Valley, and "Ciscussion of Needs," moderated by Albert Boro, chairman of county parks and recreation commission.

County Counsel Douglas Maloney then will lead a discussion on ideas presented during the panel discussions.

Registration starts at 9:30 a.m. The symposium is scheduled to end at 4 p.m.

Two $1,000 Scholarships Presented

Two $1,000 scholarships have been awarded to two Marin County high school seniors by the San Rafael Council, Knights of Columbus.

The winners are Vickie Eaglebarger, of Tamalpais High School, and Mary Bullock of Terra Linda High School.

The awards will be made formally at a buffet supper at 8:15 p.m. May 26 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 167 Tunstead Avenue, San Anselmo.

Miss Eaglebarger, 18, is the daughter of Mrs. Carl Goodman of 416 Pine Street, Mill Valley. She plans to attend Sonoma State College to study psychology and sociology.

Miss Bullock, 17, is the daughter of Mrs. Helen M. Bullock of 380 Hickory Lane, San Rafael. She plans to attend the University of California to obtain a teaching credential in psychology.

Nixon Lunches With Top House Leadership

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon attended the annual "seafood gumbo" luncheon given at the Capitol Tuesday by Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., of the House Rules Committee.

Former House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts also attended the luncheon Colmer gave for members of his committee and the House leadership. It was McCormack's first visit to the Capitol since his retirement last January.

The menu included seafood gumbo, shrimp cocktail and red snapper almondine, flown in from the gulf coast.

Guilty Plea To Misdemeanor

Maurice Loveman, 30, of Mill Valley, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing hashish.

He previously had been accused of a felony count of the same charge.

Loveman, who is to be sentenced June 4, was arrested March 15 when Corte Madera police stopped his truck for faulty brake lights. He was being booked at Marin County Jail on outstanding traffic warrants when police found hashish in his pocket.

Furniture Store Plan Will Get More Study

A plan to convert a deserted furniture store in Mill Valley into 15 small shops has run into a delay before the city planning commission.

After discussing a variance Monday to allow W. W. Kirsch to build the shops inside Brown's Furniture Store at 38 Miller Avenue, commissioners continued the matter to May 24 to permit more study.

Kirsch wants to supply 30 off-street parking spaces. The city code requires 118.

Planning Director Tom W. Newton said the delay will enable the commission's parking committee to study parking problems in the downtown area and whether approval of the store would increase demand for spaces greatly.

The postponement also gives Kirsch time to supply further information on what kind of stores would be constructed in the old building. Different types of businesses generate different amounts of traffic, said Newton.

The city council last year rejected plans for a 400-seat restaurant-bar for the old furniture store. Many residents argued the restaurant would increase competition for already scarce parking in the downtown area.

In other business, commissioners voted 4-3 to approve a variance to allow an existing carport at 35 Locke Lane to remain standing.

Humphrey O'Driscoll built the carport to the side property line (a five-foot setback is required) and then applied for a variance when the city building inspector discovered the carport.

Oldest Building

GREENSBURG, Ky. (UPI)—The Green County Courthouse here is the oldest public building in Kentucky still standing. The native stone structure was completed in 1799 and now houses the county library.

Sophia Removes Word 'Jewelry'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sophia Loren has removed the word "jewelry" from her dictionary.

Miss Loren, in this country for the filming of her new picture "Mortadella," lost a half million dollars in jewelry in October in a burglary at her Manhattan apartment.

"Jewelry," Miss Loren told newsmen at Kennedy Airport Monday night, "I canceled it from the dictionary."

She now is wearing fake gems, "Bought at the Dior boutique."

"They look very real," she said.

Session On Parks Saturday

A day-long discussion on park needs in Marin and elsewhere in California will be presented starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Olney Hall, College of Marin, sponsored by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission.

Alfred Heller, president of California Tomorrow, will be featured speaker at 10:30 a.m., according to James R. Van de Weg, county park coordinator.

A slide show of parks as they are now and as they are planned will be presented by Lewis Stuart, public relations representative of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. The slides will show mainly Marin County parks but development ideas for other park areas also will be featured, Van deWeg said.

Following a lunch break, four panel discussions will be held. They are: "Recycling People's Awareness," moderated by John Hart, writer for the Pacific Sun; "Regional Park Districts," moderated by George Barnwell, publisher of the Novato Advance; "Who Needs Recreation?" moderated by George Draper of the San Francisco Chronicle; "What Do We Need Now?" moderated by Dean Meyer former mayor of Mill Valley, and "Ciscussion of Needs," moderated by Albert Boro, chairman of county parks and recreation commission.

County Counsel Douglas Maloney then will lead a discussion on ideas presented during the panel discussions.

Registration starts at 9:30 a.m. The symposium is scheduled to end at 4 p.m.

Two $1,000 Scholarships Presented

Two $1,000 scholarships have been awarded to two Marin County high school seniors by the San Rafael Council, Knights of Columbus.

The winners are Vickie Eaglebarger, of Tamalpais High School, and Mary Bullock of Terra Linda High School.

The awards will be made formally at a buffet supper at 8:15 p.m. May 26 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 167 Tunstead Avenue, San Anselmo.

Miss Eaglebarger, 18, is the daughter of Mrs. Carl Goodman of 416 Pine Street, Mill Valley. She plans to attend Sonoma State College to study psychology and sociology.

Miss Bullock, 17, is the daughter of Mrs. Helen M. Bullock of 380 Hickory Lane, San Rafael. She plans to attend the University of California to obtain a teaching credential in psychology.

Nixon Lunches With Top House Leadership

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon attended the annual "seafood gumbo" luncheon given at the Capitol Tuesday by Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., of the House Rules Committee.

Former House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts also attended the luncheon Colmer gave for members of his committee and the House leadership. It was McCormack's first visit to the Capitol since his retirement last January.

The menu included seafood gumbo, shrimp cocktail and red snapper almondine, flown in from the gulf coast.

Guilty Plea To Misdemeanor

Maurice Loveman, 30, of Mill Valley, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing hashish.

He previously had been accused of a felony count of the same charge.

Loveman, who is to be sentenced June 4, was arrested March 15 when Corte Madera police stopped his truck for faulty brake lights. He was being booked at Marin County Jail on outstanding traffic warrants when police found hashish in his pocket.

Furniture Store Plan Will Get More Study

A plan to convert a deserted furniture store in Mill Valley into 15 small shops has run into a delay before the city planning commission.

After discussing a variance Monday to allow W. W. Kirsch to build the shops inside Brown's Furniture Store at 38 Miller Avenue, commissioners continued the matter to May 24 to permit more study.

Kirsch wants to supply 30 off-street parking spaces. The city code requires 118.

Planning Director Tom W. Newton said the delay will enable the commission's parking committee to study parking problems in the downtown area and whether approval of the store would increase demand for spaces greatly.

The postponement also gives Kirsch time to supply further information on what kind of stores would be constructed in the old building. Different types of businesses generate different amounts of traffic, said Newton.

The city council last year rejected plans for a 400-seat restaurant-bar for the old furniture store. Many residents argued the restaurant would increase competition for already scarce parking in the downtown area.

In other business, commissioners voted 4-3 to approve a variance to allow an existing carport at 35 Locke Lane to remain standing.

Humphrey O'Driscoll built the carport to the side property line (a five-foot setback is required) and then applied for a variance when the city building inspector discovered the carport.

Oldest Building

GREENSBURG, Ky. (UPI)—The Green County Courthouse here is the oldest public building in Kentucky still standing. The native stone structure was completed in 1799 and now houses the county library.

Sophia Removes Word 'Jewelry'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sophia Loren has removed the word "jewelry" from her dictionary.

Miss Loren, in this country for the filming of her new picture "Mortadella," lost a half million dollars in jewelry in October in a burglary at her Manhattan apartment.

"Jewelry," Miss Loren told newsmen at Kennedy Airport Monday night, "I canceled it from the dictionary."

She now is wearing fake gems, "Bought at the Dior boutique."

"They look very real," she said.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Prison Helps Inflate Your County Tax Bill

The Marin County administrator and auditor-controller have estimated that the county tax rate for next fiscal year may climb 65.5 cents to $3.23 per $100 assessed valuation.

This tax rate increase is forecast despite an increase in county revenues of at least 8.6 per cent without changing the tax rate, because of the change of assessment ratio mandated by the state this year.

It therefore means that your county taxes for next fiscal year will be about 34 per cent higher than they were for this year — more than if your property has been reappraised.

BIGGEST SHARE of the increase, according to the auditor-controller's projections, will come from the rapid rise in the cost of welfare and Medi-Cal. These are estimated to add 33.7 cents to the county rate.

There are bills in the California Legislature and in the United States Congress which may — if they pass, and pass in time — reduce this somewhat.

Next highest increase results from costs which result principally from the presence in Marin County of a state prison. These include 5.6 cents for higher insurance cost on county buildings, 7.8 cents for the county's share of the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee court proceedings, and 3.9 cents for additional security measures at the Civic Center.

NOTHING HAS BEEN DONE, as yet, about legislation to put these costs where they belong: on the people of the State of California rather than those of Marin County.

Under a 1961 law, the state pays the cost of expensive murder trials beyond what can be raised by 10 cents on the tax rate of the county where the trial is held. Since 10 cents raises more than the direct cost of the Davis-Magee trial is expected to run, this means nothing to Marin.

A bill (AB 26) by Assemblyman Pauline Davis, D-Portola (who introduced the 1961 law) would have the state pick up the tab when the cost of such a trial exceeds 5 cents on the tax rate. This bill, which already has passed the Assembly, would save Marin 2.8 cents of the estimated tax increase to cover the Davis-Magee trial.

These measures, however, are simply for financial aid to counties saddled with expensive court costs. They have nothing to do with the presence of a prison in the county.

THERE IS NO REASON why additional court, security and other costs attendant on the presence of a prison should be born by the taxpayers of the county where the prison is located. The prison is a state institution. Its inmates are sent to it from throughout the state. The costs connected with it should be borne by the state as a whole. And those costs include additional security measures, court expenses, insurance and anything else that results from the prison's presence.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has not asked our two legislators, state Sen. Peter H. Behr and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, to introduce legislation requiring the state to bear all costs attendant to location of the prison. It is time the board did so.

For that matter, it is time the legislators introduced such measures without being asked. Although the deadline for introducing bills has passed, we're sure Behr and Bagley can find a few "spot bills" around which can be amended for the purpose. We suggest they get busy.

CAPITOL REPORT

State School Control Setup Backwards — Doesn't Work

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Every four years the voters of California elect a state superintendent of public instruction.

Most voters think they are electing the man who will steer the state's public school system. They're not, according to law. The state Board of Education does that. The superintendent answers to it.

The state law makes it clear: The state superintendent of public instruction gets most of his marching orders from the board. The board must approve his programs and must approve the individuals he appoints as his deputies. The superintendent acts as the board's secretary and executive officer. He is supposed to carry out its wishes.

That is the way it is supposed to work, but it doesn't and there's little the board can do about it.

The state board of education is not elected by the people of California. Its 10 members are appointed to four-year terms by the governor — with the advice and consent of at least two-thirds of the members of the state Senate.

It's all upside down. It's backwards.

The 10 members of the state Board of Education should be elected — by the voters, by district, the way the members of the state Board of Equalization are elected now.

The board, in turn, should appoint the superintendent.

If the members do not like the way the superintendent keeps the school house, they can fire him and get a new man, or woman. And, if the citizens don't like the way the board is doing its job, they can turn its members out at election time.

The way it is now is not only backward, and upside down, it doesn't work.

For one thing, the board is usually at odds with the superintendent; any honeymoons are strictly short-lived affairs. It was that way with Max Rafferty and the Brown-appointed board, and it is shaping up that way now with Wilson Riles and the Reagan-appointed board.

It's not necessarily a question of who's right and who's wrong. It's more a matter of an engine not hitting on all cylinders. There are stalemates and foot-dragging.

Furthermore, with politics as the road to the superintendency, the person in that office is usually running for election — sometimes to higher office. Max Rafferty got the fever in 1968. There are those who think that Riles' temperature is already rising; that the Democrats may have an unexpected candidate in the 1974 gubernatorial primary.

But, without getting all riled up, it's time to change the laws. The board of education should be elected, and the superintendent should be appointed by the Board.

Assemblyman James Dent, R-Concord, a past president of the California Association of School Administrators, has introduced a constitutional amendment to do just that.

The Dent amendment proposes that "a superintendent of public instruction shall be appointed by the state board of education and shall serve at the pleasure of the board."

"The state Board of Education shall consist of 10 members and each such member shall be elected from a district composed of four state senatorial districts of contiguous territory, to be established by the Legislature."

Under Dent's proposal, the office of board member would be nonpartisan and would have a four-year term so that half the board membership would be elected every two years, members from the odd-numbered districts would be elected to short (two-year) terms the first time around.

Poor Must Make Up Reagan's Tax Saving

Add this letter to the outraged reactions you have probably gotten as the result of the news that Gov. Ronald Reagan did not pay any state income taxes and as would logically follow, probably did not pay federal income taxes either.

Even though his actions may have been legally permissible; they are not morally acceptable in view of the fact that thousands of people who are economically classified as "poor" paid income taxes. What they and we did pay included a share of what Governor Reagan did not pay. What is the reason that legal responsibility cannot be brought more in line with the moral responsibility of all of us paying our share of the cost of government? We find Governor Reagan's statement that taxes should hurt, while paying none himself, to be the most reprehensible and disgusting kind of hypocrisy.

Granted, it is easy to be the voice of gloom and doom; however, we suggest that here is one more cloud in the gathering storm of rebellion and opposition because of the flagrant and injudicious actions of some of our so-called leaders.

The greater loss is not the money to the state treasury; but the further erosion of confidence in government.

Marin Transit Systems Try Hard

As a frequent MTS bus rider I must write in response to your editorial about the bus systems in Marin County.

I personally have never found a group of people who try harder than Marin Transit Systems, Inc. They "care about people" and this is one of the reasons they may be a few minutes late occasionally. I personally have seen them stop and wait for a passenger who is waving and running across a parking lot and help a woman lift up a stroller and help her to a seat. They also wait until passengers are seated, instead of driving on just to make up for a minute lost.

I agree that the service is incomplete and not as frequent as some of us might like, but this is a factor placed upon the bus company by the Marin Transit District Board, which rejected Marin Transit Systems' 1969 proposal to start an integrated county-wide bus system . . .

Also, the bus is a tremendous bridge in the "Generation Gap," for this is a means by which epople, young and old, can get together.

I hope everyone who reads this will make it a point to ride the bus as often as possible, it really is a great experience.

Teacher Is Credit To School System

Before my daughter, Sherry, graduates from San Rafael High School, I would like to take time to write this letter in recognition of a teacher who is a credit to the San Rafael school system.

Mrs. Sue Joy, a teacher at San Rafael High School, has helped so many students do better than expected and achieve higher scholastics.

When my daughter was an average eighth grade student at Davidson Junior High School, she was enrolled in one of Mrs. Joy's math classes, where she could see Sherry's willingness to work hard to learn. Many hours were spent by Mrs. Joy, after school on her own time, to help Sherry.

During Sherry's high school days Mrs. Joy transferred to San Rafael High School and continued helping Sherry achieve her goals . . .

Mrs. Joy is an outstanding credit to the teaching profession and a credit to the San Rafael school system.

'Post-Natal Abortion' For Mental Health?

In reading Rus Walton's column of May 6 on the abortion law in California I was struck with a thought. If "mental health" can be used by a would-be mother to abort her child I think that it would be much simpler for this type of law to apply to both parents. Therefore, may I propose that a bill be enacted to give a father the right to perform a "post-natal" abortion on his offspring up to the age of 21.

My "mental health" has been affected many times by the behavior of my sons and there were times in the past that such a law would have been welcomed by me.

A recent candidate for mayor, Rick Raznikov, made a lot of rash promises. We will never find out whether or not he intended to keep them.

One promise he made was that after the election, all of his signs would be taken down immediately. It is bad enough to see them plastered all over the telephone poles of our fair city during election time, but to see them withering on the poles several weeks after the election is truly visual pollution. Speech Enlightening On Vietnam Situation

On the assumption that you were not at the Commonwealth Club luncheon last Friday, I am writing to state that never before, in the many years I have been a club member, have I heard such a brilliantly illuminating address as that of Dolf M. Droge, Vietnam specialist of the National Security Council on "Vietnam and the Vietnamese"; and I do not believe I am drawing the long bow in saying that if even a quarter of our adult citizenry had the information Mr. Droge gave us concerning the Vietnamese situation and what this country has done and is doing to help the Vietnamese people help themselves, things would not be as they are in America today.

Must Good News Be Boring? Aquarian Times Proves Otherwise

WASHINGTON — The success of the Aquarian Times, a rising weekly which fairly describes itself as the only "good news" newspaper in the world, reveals something of the public revulsion against the steady diet of violence and doom which dominates so much of the media today.

It is still an amateur effort, written and edited by a small staff of inexperienced volunteers, but the fact that in its first six months this newspaper has won more than 15,000 subscribers in 356 cities in all 50 states and eight foreign countries shows that people are yearning for something they aren't getting.

Publisher Bill T. Bailey, a youngish, former advertising man, has already received over 6,000 letters from his readers and it is evident that he has tapped a public need he believes will make the Aquarian Times the widest read weekly anywhere.

OBVIOUSLY THE Aquarian Times is a distorted newspaper. It boasts of being just that and its circulation is climbing. It prints only "the news that's fun to read." It accentuates the positive, ignores the negative — no war news, no crime, no violence.

"My field of vision," explains Bailey, "is limited to good news and I never have any trouble finding it. We promote the positive side of life. You can't do anything about your liabilities if you don't know something about your assets."

I doubt very much that its subscribers are turning to the Aquarian Times so they can live in a dream world. Most of the media are so vastly overplaying gloom and so persistently neglecting what's going well in the world that these readers must go elsewhere to redress the balance.

WHY IS SO MUCH of the media, particularly television, giving the public such an overbalanced agenda of bad news? One answer comes from Dr. George Gallup in a speech to the American Newspaper Publishers Association:

"TV cameras can present better than words the traumatic happenings of the day — fighting on the battlefields or in the streets, fires, floods, accidents, riots; in fact, almost any kind of news that involves violence.

"But television's greatest strength is, at the same time, its greatest weakness. Where there isn't controversy or action or violence — television is likely to be flat and boring. It isn't possible to photograph an idea or to deal effectively with most of the major interests of the public."

There are dismaying examples of this. I know a student leader at Duke University who organized a mass rally to present students' demands upon the college administration. She set out to show that a nonviolent protest could produce results and she asked one of the networks to cover it. It replied that since there was going to be no violence it wouldn't be worthwhile.

ANOTHER INHERENT weakness of the big nightly news shows is that they can't provide perspectives by subordinating news. It's all front-page, and lesser news gets nearly equal voice with what is most important.

Derick Daniels of the Detroit Free Press does not exempt printed journalism from all responsibility for overplaying the traumatic. He says:

"We operate with outmoded rules, sterile formulas, and definitions of news that don't begin to respond to the wants and needs of individual human beings."

It would be foolish and fatal for the press to minimize crisis and controversy. But one of the definitions which Gallup and Daniels feel may be seriously outmoded is that bad news is preeminently exciting and good news is preeminently boring.

Perhaps the response to the Aquarian Times will be a push in the right direction.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

No Blacks On May Day; They're Too Busy Voting

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — It is possible to bring up the abortive spring antiwar offensive this last time without apology, but only because of something that sticks in the memory: Here in the blackest big city in our country, the blacks observed a nearly total boycott of the marching and disrupting. It was one of those rare news events in American history when most of the black men present were not being arrested but instead were in police uniforms, doing the busting.

This is not merely a negative observation. It ties in directly with the great, good sense these same Washingtonians showed in the last previous mass political action here, less than two months ago, and with what was going on down Interstate 95 in North Carolina while the attempt to shut down Washington was in progress.

People were voting.

BLACK PEOPLE were voting and winning elections, disdaining the "politics of protest" for the politics of reality. Thus they were displaying far more political maturity than the overwhelmingly white demonstrators, and in turn proving anew that political maturity is not necessarily an outgrowth of traditional social caste or formal education.

Yes, there were a few blacks spotted here and there in the demonstrations. After all, one of the principal efforts of the offensive's organizers was to bring in "Third World" groups. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Martin Luther King's old organization, enlisted — but mainly at the top.

Hosea Williams, one of its leaders, got himself arrested when the SCLC mule wagon arrived at HEW. There was gospel-style speechmaking again before the march on Justice. Rep. Donald Dellums of California managed to get into an exchange of unpleasantries with the police outside the Capitol. But the rank-and-file black man was scarce.

IN THE BIGGEST demonstration of the season, the April 24 march, there was only the tiniest sprinkling of black faces. There was a higher percentage among the Vietnam veterans who came — but that still means perhaps one in 20, at the most. By last week when the May Day crowd started the rough stuff, the blacks were having none of it. When the police corralled demonstraters by the thousands at Kennedy Stadium, the crowd was as lily-white as a wedding reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

was as lily-white as a wedding reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

But there was no scarcity of black faces when the polls opened here seven weeks ago for the people to choose their first representative to Congress in 100 years. In an orderly culmination to a spirited but peaceful elimination contest, they picked the Rev. Walter Fauntroy, one of their own.

Nor was there any such scarcity in North Carolina's municipal elections last week. Blacks won city council places in towns like Fayetteville, Roxboro, Laurinburg, Columbia, Dunn, New Bern, Plymouth, Smithfield, Burgaw, Greenville, Tarboro and Cofield — few of them familiar to the outsider because they are not the metropolises of the progressive Piedmont but mostly small towns in rural areas where blacks have been politically impotent until recent years.

IT IS ELECTORAL results in communities like those, made possible by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which underlie a report recently issued by the Joint Center for Political Studies. It surprises even those who have followed black political progress most closely.

Consider, for example, the fact that George Wallace's Alabama has more black elected officials (105) than any other state in the South — more than any states anywhere except Michigan (155) and New York (142). Next in the South comes James Eastland's Mississippi (95); among the border states, Maryland has 44. California has 95; and is the only state where the total went down instead of up in the past year. Nationwide, the total increased 26.6 per cent in that one election year.

In haste, it must be added that Frank D. Reeves, who made this statistical study, reports that black officeholders still represent only three-tenths of one per cent of all the 522,000 elected officials in the country.

That speaks to the size of the remaining need and the opportunity. The election results and the annual leap in the number of black officials testify how susceptible this long-standing unfairness now is to hard work and organization. Together, these facts should make black voter registration and election campaigning a natural outlet for the social consciousness of young Americans devoted to justice.

Prison Helps Inflate Your County Tax Bill

The Marin County administrator and auditor-controller have estimated that the county tax rate for next fiscal year may climb 65.5 cents to $3.23 per $100 assessed valuation.

This tax rate increase is forecast despite an increase in county revenues of at least 8.6 per cent without changing the tax rate, because of the change of assessment ratio mandated by the state this year.

It therefore means that your county taxes for next fiscal year will be about 34 per cent higher than they were for this year — more than if your property has been reappraised.

BIGGEST SHARE of the increase, according to the auditor-controller's projections, will come from the rapid rise in the cost of welfare and Medi-Cal. These are estimated to add 33.7 cents to the county rate.

There are bills in the California Legislature and in the United States Congress which may — if they pass, and pass in time — reduce this somewhat.

Next highest increase results from costs which result principally from the presence in Marin County of a state prison. These include 5.6 cents for higher insurance cost on county buildings, 7.8 cents for the county's share of the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee court proceedings, and 3.9 cents for additional security measures at the Civic Center.

NOTHING HAS BEEN DONE, as yet, about legislation to put these costs where they belong: on the people of the State of California rather than those of Marin County.

Under a 1961 law, the state pays the cost of expensive murder trials beyond what can be raised by 10 cents on the tax rate of the county where the trial is held. Since 10 cents raises more than the direct cost of the Davis-Magee trial is expected to run, this means nothing to Marin.

A bill (AB 26) by Assemblyman Pauline Davis, D-Portola (who introduced the 1961 law) would have the state pick up the tab when the cost of such a trial exceeds 5 cents on the tax rate. This bill, which already has passed the Assembly, would save Marin 2.8 cents of the estimated tax increase to cover the Davis-Magee trial.

These measures, however, are simply for financial aid to counties saddled with expensive court costs. They have nothing to do with the presence of a prison in the county.

THERE IS NO REASON why additional court, security and other costs attendant on the presence of a prison should be born by the taxpayers of the county where the prison is located. The prison is a state institution. Its inmates are sent to it from throughout the state. The costs connected with it should be borne by the state as a whole. And those costs include additional security measures, court expenses, insurance and anything else that results from the prison's presence.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has not asked our two legislators, state Sen. Peter H. Behr and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, to introduce legislation requiring the state to bear all costs attendant to location of the prison. It is time the board did so.

For that matter, it is time the legislators introduced such measures without being asked. Although the deadline for introducing bills has passed, we're sure Behr and Bagley can find a few "spot bills" around which can be amended for the purpose. We suggest they get busy.

State School Control Setup Backwards — Doesn't Work

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Every four years the voters of California elect a state superintendent of public instruction.

Most voters think they are electing the man who will steer the state's public school system. They're not, according to law. The state Board of Education does that. The superintendent answers to it.

The state law makes it clear: The state superintendent of public instruction gets most of his marching orders from the board. If the members do not like the way the superintendent keeps the school house, they can fire him and get a new man, or woman. And, if the citizens don't like the way the board is doing its job, they can turn its members out at election time.

The way it is now is not only backward, and upside down, it doesn't work.

For one thing, the board is usually at odds with the superintendent; any honeymoons are strictly short-lived affairs. It was that way with Max Rafferty and the Brown-appointed board, and it is shaping up that way now with Wilson Riles and the Reagan-appointed board.

But, without getting all riled up, it's time to change the laws. The board of education should be elected, and the superintendent should be appointed by the Board.

Assemblyman James Dent, R-Concord, a past president of the California Association of School Administrators, has introduced a constitutional amendment to do just that.

The Dent amendment proposes that "a superintendent of public instruction shall be appointed by the state board of education and shall serve at the pleasure of the board."

"The state Board of Education shall consist of 10 members and each such member shall be elected from a district composed of four state senatorial districts of contiguous territory, to be established by the Legislature."

Under Dent's proposal, the office of board member would be nonpartisan and would have a four-year term so that half the board membership would be elected every two years, members from the odd-numbered districts would be elected to short (two-year) terms the first time around.

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — It is possible to bring up the abortive spring antiwar offensive this last time without apology, but only because of something that sticks in the memory: Here in the blackest big city in our country, the blacks observed a nearly total boycott of the marching and disrupting. It was one of those rare news events in American history when most of the black men present were not being arrested but instead were in police uniforms, doing the busting.

This is not merely a negative observation. It ties in directly with the great, good sense these same Washingtonians showed in the last previous mass political action here, less than two months ago, and with what was going on down Interstate 95 in North Carolina while the attempt to shut down Washington was in progress.

People were voting.

BLACK PEOPLE were voting and winning elections, disdaining the "politics of protest" for the politics of reality. Thus they were displaying far more political maturity than the overwhelmingly white demonstrators, and in turn proving anew that political maturity is not necessarily an outgrowth of traditional social caste or formal education.

Yes, there were a few blacks spotted here and there in the demonstrations. After all, one of the principal efforts of the offensive's organizers was to bring in "Third World" groups. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Martin Luther King's old organization, enlisted — but mainly at the top.

Hosea Williams, one of its leaders, got himself arrested when the SCLC mule wagon arrived at HEW. There was gospel-style speechmaking again before the march on Justice. Rep. Donald Dellums of California managed to get into an exchange of unpleasantries with the police outside the Capitol. But the rank-and-file black man was scarce.

IN THE BIGGEST demonstration of the season, the April 24 march, there was only the tiniest sprinkling of black faces. There was a higher percentage among the Vietnam veterans who came — but that still means perhaps one in 20, at the most. By last week when the May Day crowd started the rough stuff, the blacks were having none of it. When the police corralled demonstraters by the thousands at Kennedy Stadium, the crowd was as lily-white as a wedding reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

was as lily-white as a wedding reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

But there was no scarcity of black faces when the polls opened here seven weeks ago for the people to choose their first representative to Congress in 100 years. In an orderly culmination to a spirited but peaceful elimination contest, they picked the Rev. Walter Fauntroy, one of their own.

Nor was there any such scarcity in North Carolina's municipal elections last week. Blacks won city council places in towns like Fayetteville, Roxboro, Laurinburg, Columbia, Dunn, New Bern, Plymouth, Smithfield, Burgaw, Greenville, Tarboro and Cofield — few of them familiar to the outsider because they are not the metropolises of the progressive Piedmont but mostly small towns in rural areas where blacks have been politically impotent until recent years.

IT IS ELECTORAL results in communities like those, made possible by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which underlie a report recently issued by the Joint Center for Political Studies. It surprises even those who have followed black political progress most closely.

Consider, for example, the fact that George Wallace's Alabama has more black elected officials (105) than any other state in the South — more than any states anywhere except Michigan (155) and New York (142). Next in the South comes James Eastland's Mississippi (95); among the border states, Maryland has 44. California has 95; and is the only state where the total went down instead of up in the past year. Nationwide, the total increased 26.6 per cent in that one election year.

In haste, it must be added that Frank D. Reeves, who made this statistical study, reports that black officeholders still represent only three-tenths of one per cent of all the 522,000 elected officials in the country.

That speaks to the size of the remaining need and the opportunity. The election results and the annual leap in the number of black officials testify how susceptible this long-standing unfairness now is to hard work and organization. Together, these facts should make black voter registration and election campaigning a natural outlet for the social consciousness of young Americans devoted to justice.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

High School Principal Lays It On The Line

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Adolphus McGee is principal of Sacramento High School. He is "with it", a mod dresser who goes in for fancy shirts and flowing ties. He wears long sideburns, and closely trimmed beard and mustache grow together around his full lips. And Adolphus McGee is a black man.

Sacramento High School has had its share of discipline troubles. A third or more of its students are Negroes and Mexicans, so racial tensions add to the school's problems. Last month there was a series of campus brawls, and one assault on a teacher.

In these things, Sacramento High is no different from many other high schools in California. Campus brawls have become common place in recent years. At many schools they have escalated much farther than at Sacramento High, resulting in major property damage and injury to many people. Even attacks on teachers are much more common than is generally known.

IT IS IN WHAT followed the series of incidents that Sacramento High School differs.

After a week of unrest that included the assault on the teacher, Principal McGee called a convocation of all students, faculty members, and other employees. He invited the press. He wanted everybody to know what he had to say.

He joked with his audience and bragged of good things the school has done, to establish rapport. And then he laid it on the line.

Not more than 150 students, the principal told the gathering, were responsible for the school's troubles.

"WHAT AM I supposed to do about the other 1,600?" he demanded. "They want an education. But they never get my attention because I am on the corner talking to the 40 or 50 or 80 or 150."

He challenged the dissidents:

"When you have a problem, take it to where it can be solved. Don't take it to the hallway. Don't take it to the corner. Don't take it to your parents . . . Come to see me. But if you do, you had better ask yourself first, 'What have I done to solve the problem?' Because that is what I am going to ask you."

AT SACRAMENTO High, as at many other schools, much of the trouble has been caused by people from off campus. Principal McGee didn't ignore that; neither did he pretend that it absolved students of blame.

"Do you know there are professional revolutionaries who will tell you things to do?" he asked. "They say, 'Get the nigger.' Or, 'Get the honkey.' . . You don't even think, you rush onto campus to do it."

Then he looked around at his audience — at the students, at the teachers, at the other employees, so that all would know that what he said was meant for them. And he let them have it:

"ONCE I HAVE identified those who don't want to work, those who don't want to go to school here, I'm going to give you a vacation — permanently."

Nobody — students, faculty, other employees, or the reporters who had been invited especially to relay his words to the community — failed to get the message.

And the students applauded. They had heard a man talking.

California high schools could use a lot more principals like Adolphus McGee.

Black Gives Himself Up At Stanford

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The former co-chairman of Stanford's Black Student Union surrendered Tuesday on charges of beating a woman employe of the University Medical Center.

Leo Bazile, 27, was immediately freed on $12,500 bail raised by Stanford President Richard Lyman, Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, Board Chairman Edward Ginzton of Varian Associations and other local notables.

Bazile and Christopher Laury, 21, were charged with beating Mary Jane Schmidt, 41, a white medical center employe, at her East Palo Alto apartment last week. Her assailants slugged, kicked and burned her, allegedly for crossing a picket line protesting the firing of a black janitor and other allegedly racist acts.

Laury pleaded innocent Monday and was freed on $6,250 bail.

Before surrendering on the beating charge, Bazile appeared in Palo Alto Municipal Court to plead innocent to a charge of failure to disperse at an April 9 Medical Center sit-in that resulted in $100,000 damage.

Lyman said he helped raise $1,250 so a bondsman would post Bazile's bail because, "From what I know of Leo, it seems extremely unlikely he would be involved in such a thing."

Irate Dump Truckers Stage Protests Throughout State

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Two days of statewide protest demonstrations by several thousand independent dump truck owner-operators officially ended yesterday afternoon.

Spokesman for California's "for hire" dump truck industry termed the demonstrations "highly effective" in focusing attention on the threat to the survival of independent owner-operators posed by proposed changes in construction industry master labor contracts.

The demonstrations, held in more than two dozen cities form Eureka to San Diego, were called to show the unified opposition of the 6,500 state licensed dump truck operators to provisions in agreements between the Teamsters Union and contractor association groups covering employment terms of owner-operator truckers.

In addition to picketing of Teamsters Union locals throughout the state, the demonstrations involved truck and foot pickets at contractor association offices in San Diego, Los Angeles, Sacramento and in the San Francisco area. The protests also involved dump truck caravans circling key construction sites and governmental centers in major cities.

As the demonstrations ended, a spokesman for the statewide coordinating committee announced progress in legal actions undertaken to protect the rights of the independent owner-operators.

E. O. Blackman, general manager of the California Dump Truck Owners Assn., one of two industry associations coordinating the statewide demonstration, announced the National Labor Relations Board's Washington headquarters and authroized its Los Angeles Region 21 office to proceed with action on a decertification petition filed last February.

The petition, filed by two owner operators of trucking equipment in the building and construction industry, requested a secret ballot election to determine whether the Teamsters Union should continue to represent truckers and similar workers in the Southern California construction industry. Blackman said the National Labor Relations Board regional officials indicated a formal hearing date would be set soon on the petition, with the expected outcome that an election date would be set.

Demonstration points included the state Capitol Mall in Sacramento and civic centers in San Francisco, Fresno and Los Angeles. In Los Angeles, the two-day protest wound up with a noon-hour demonstration on the city hall steps with long caravans of dump trucks passing by.

Ralph Grago, business manager of the Associated Independent Owner Operators Inc., the other industry group involved, called the demonstrations "highly effective" throughout the state. He said the demonstrations showed the unified determination of owner-operators to protect their rights as independent self-employed businessmen.

Abigail Adams, wife of the second President, was the daughter of William Smith, a New England minister.

Another Idea For U.S. Technology

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A prominent educator and engineer said yesterday the United States should not redeploy military technology into environmental concerns, but into international trade.

Dr. Donald E. Marlowe, vice president of Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., said technology in international trade could avoid another world war.

Marlowe spoke before a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' First National Congress on Pressures Vessels and Piping.

"In economics, I am a disciple of Mike Boretsky who argues with great persuasiveness that the U.S.A. is rapidly losing its position in international trade as a result of losing its pre-eminence in high technology items of trade," Marlow said.

"The great need is not for redeployment of military technology into environmental concerns, but into international trade."

Asks To Defend Himself In Novatan Slaying Case

BERKELEY (UPI) —Christopher Cowsar, 21, said yesterday he wants to act as his own attorney in fighting murder charges filed against him in the stabbing death of an Air Force recruiting sergeant from Novato.

Cowsar, appearing before Municipal Judge George Brunn, said if the court appointed a lawyer for him "the prosecution has appointed my defense."

The judge did not rule on the matter but noted that he wanted the defendant to be represented by an attorney at all the proceedings because "this is a capital offense."

Another hearing was set for next Monday.

Cowsar complained to the judge that he could not make the three calls which Brunn had told him he could have in seeking legal advice. Cowsar said he was allowed to make only one call.

Air Force Sgt. Rogers Mobley, 32, of Novato, was attacked in the Berkeley recruiting office April 30. He suffered fatal stab wounds, and Cowsar was seized with a knife in his hand by several persons in the building.

105 Streptococcus Infections Reported

One hundred and eight cases of streptococcus infection were reported in Marin County last week, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, has reported.

Also reported were 45 cases of gonorrhea, 18 cases of rubella, 10 cases of infectious hepatitis and one case of salmonella.

CORTE MADERA CREEK WORK IN PROGRESS

A workman cuts a new flood control channel along Corte Madera Creek leaving the natural stream bed untouched as requested by Ross officials. This bulldozer, working its way downstream today near Center Medical Hospital in Kentfield, was starting on the 33-foot-wide channel, expected to be complete in October. Work on this phase of the controversial flood control project began two weeks ago immediately after the Elmer J. Freethy Co. of El Cerrito was signed to construct the reinforced concrete channel. It will continue this construction season from the point work stopped last year (1,800 feet upstream of the College Avenue Bridge) to a point 200 feet downstream of the Ross Post Office.

U.N. Flag Vote Reaffirmed Over Bitter Protests

'Mundialization' Subversive, Claim Federalists' Opponents

By C.P. McCARTHY

San Anselmo has gone and done it now.

Because of the action of its city council: The United States will not be a free country in 18 months; a world flag will fly above the Stars and Stripes; America's national sovereignty will be surrendered and its Constitution rescinded.

All this, according to Dolores J. Sill of 19 Roger Avenue, because the San Anselmo City Council last night refused to reverse its April 27 decision to "mundialize," thereby declaring HUB residents to be citizens of the world and ordering the United Nations flag to be flown at city hall with the American flag. (Other San Anselmo City Council stories, page 8.)

That decision, proposed by World Federalist Youth-USA and its executive director, Norman E. Leach of San Anselmo, passed by a 3-2 vote. The two dissenters, councilmen Woodrow V. Capurro and Warren R. Perry; reaffirmed their opposition to mundialization again last night.

"The flag I want to see flying in front of this city hall is the American flag and the California flag," said Capurro, warning that what happened in San Anselmo last night "might lead the way for all the cities in California."

Councilman Warren R. Perry said he would vote against the mundialization proposal again, but backed away from aligning himself with protestors who last night attacked the United Nations, World Federalist Youth and Saturday's San Anselmo Town Meeting as subversive.

Perry said the United Nations was "at least a body whereby we have been able to communicate," but he said he thought the mundialization action was not properly within the scope of the city council, whose function, he said, was not to be involved in foreign affairs.

A crowd of about 130 persons — more than half, opponents of mundialization — overflowed out the door of city hall for last night's discussion.

They heard Mrs. Sill, a retired school teacher, warn that the "United Nations flag is a foot in the door . . . that rag must come down. . . Eighteen months from now, if that rag hangs in San Anselmo, it will hang in every city in the United States."

She presented the council a petition with 167 signatures protesting mundialization and said she would have had more signatures except for the town hall meeting Saturday, which she described as "another branch of the United World Federalists," a subversive group, she said, affiliated with Leach's organization.

The mundialization action was also attacked by Susan Tennler, of 122 Bretano Way, Greenbrae, who is lietenant governor of the United Republicans of California.

She said that if she can get a San Anselmo resident to start a recall of Mayor Kenneth L. Anderson and councilmen James F. Reed and Lewis W. Stewart, she'll provide the volunteers to work on it.

After tracing what she said were parallel points in the United Nations charter and the Constitution of the Soviet Union, and remarking that "nowhere in the United Nations charter is there any mention of God," Mrs. Tennler said that if the council did not rescind its mundialization action, "then you are in effect contributing to the abolishment of the United States as a nation."

Other speakers defended and attacked mundialization, the United Nations, United World Federalists, the Soviet Union and Norman Leach.

Sarah Nome of 77 Alder Avenue wanted to know why Leach doesn't salute the American flag. Mayor Anderson told her she could ask Leach in private.

Turkish Quake Kills 65, Mostly Women, Children

ANTALYA, Turkey (UPI)— An earthquake rolled across southwest Turkey with a thunderous roar today, cuasing destruction and death over a wide area.

Officials at Burdur, near the epicenter, said at least 65 persons died, 25 of them in that town of 30,000. The men had already gone to the fields and most of the victims were women and children caught in their homes.

The quake, which measured eight on the open-ended Richter scale, struck at 8:26 a.m. (2:36 a.m. EDT) around the farming region of Burdur, 60 miles northwest of the Mediterranean seaside resort of Antalya.

It heavily damaged the town's main post office, knocking out all communications until noon when telephone contact was again established. Damage estimates ran as high as 85 per cent.

"We have already counted 40 dead in the two villages around Burdur alone," the town's governor, Esref Ayhan, said by telephone. "We have to fear the worst—that the death toll will rise even more when reports from other villages come in,"

He said 25 had died in Burdur. The neighboring villages of Yazi and Yari were levelled.

The shock was felt throughout Anatolia, the province occupying most of western Turkey, and as far away as Antalya, Denizli, Mugla, Isparta, and Aydin.

Military and civilian rescue teams were dispatched by air and land to the scene, 220 miles southwest of Ankara.

The shock followed an ancient faultline which has made western Turkey historically vulnerable to earthquakes.

Today's epicenter was less than 100 miles from Manisa, where a tremor in March 1969 left more than 40 dead and 500 injured.

A giant quake in 1966 killed more than 2,000. Another 2,200 died over the next year in a series of tremors.

Reports from Burdur said the government offices, two schools, a state hospital and two apartment buildings were among the structures hit.

A high population concentration in the rugged, mountainous country —about 210,000 live in the Burdur region alone—has accounted for traditionally high death tolls in earthquakes, floods and blizzards.

An official said it was "fortunate the quake hit in the morning, when the peasants were already in the fields. Most of the casualties seem to be women and children."

He said more than 100 persons in the outlying village areas were hospitalized with various injuries.

A policeman reached at Burdur by telephone when the lines were restored said up to 85 per cent of the buildings there appeared damaged.

"I fear the death toll may keep rising," Ahmet Balkan, governor of Antalya, told UPI.

An Irate Taxpayer Arrested On Robbery Attempt At Hub Bank

A 25-year-old Corte Madera man — dressed as an Indian — was arrested yesterday on suspicion of attempting to rob a San Anselmo bank after becoming enraged that the Internal Revenue Service had attached his account for $2.98.

Arrested was Franklin Jack Burr Jr., of 122 Willow Avenue, whose Indian garb was part of his job at Indian Joe's clothing store on Center Boulevard.

According to Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani, Burr entered the Wells Fargo Bank at 3 p.m. and handed a teller a note reading: "Don't make me brandish a weapon and upset everybody. Just hand me $10.48."

Buchignani said Burr apparently had not paid his federal exise tax on his phone bill in protest to the war in Vietnam. The other amount ($7.50) was levied by the bank as a service charge.

Burr, prior to the attempted robbery, had gone to the bank at 1:30 p.m. for an explanation of his account statement which showed the deductions, Buchignani said.

Becoming irate at the explanation, Burr allegedly told one bank employee "Do you value your life ... is it worth $10.48?" and stormed out.

Returning after the bank had closed, Burr was allowed to enter.

Burr then threw a pile of pamphlets at the teller and followed with a swinging-kicking fight with three male employees.

A silent alarm brought Buchignani and three shotgun-armed officers who halted the melee by arresting Burr for attempted robbery. Additional offenses of assault and battery and disturbing the peace were lodged against Burr by the bank manager.

En route to the police station, Buchignani said, Burr went into convulsions and was moved to Marin General Hospital.

The hospital today declined to disclose Burr's condition.

Velasquez Painting Bought For Millions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Museum has acquired one of the world's greatest paintings, Diego Velasquez's 1650 portrait of his mulatto assistant, which was auctioned in London last November for a record $5,544,000, it was announced today.

Douglas Dillon, president of the museum, said the portrait had been purchased from Wildenstein & Co., New York art dealers who were the auction purchasers, for the exact auction price. He said the bulk of the funds had come from money given the museum nearly 50 years ago and restricted solely for the purchase of great art.

Big Postal Service Plan For Shakeup

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Postmaster General Winton N. Blount announced today a major reorganization of the 750,000-employe U.S. Postal Service, eliminating 10 to 15 regional headquarters offices.

Capitol Hill sources said the reorganization would eliminate 3,500 white collar jobs and wipe out jobs of many political appointees.

Asked about that, a Postal Service spokesman said, "nobody knows. There is no way that anybody could possibly say that 3,000 or so people are going to lose their jobs because no determination has been made."

The "streamlined organization structure" announced by Blount will create five regional headquarters —in San Francisco, Memphis, Chicago, Philadelphia and the New York City metropolitan area. Each will be headed by a regional postmaster general.

Eliminated will be regional headquarters in Denver, Seattle, St. Louis, Wichita, Dallas, Minneapolis, Atlanta, Boston, Cincinnati and Washington. Each now employs between 179 and 311 persons.

"A lot of people who are ready for retirement probably will retire," a postal spokesman said. "It is being announced locally that the Postal Service will abide by Civil Service Commission standards and enable employes to bid for jobs in the new regional headquarters or in the new metropolitan and district offices."

Rock Star Mick Jagger Married

ST. TROPEZ, France (UPI)-- British rock star Mick Jagger married a pretty Nicaraguan, Bianca Perez Moreno de Macias, today in the town hall while noisy rock fans crowded on the sidewalk outside.

The 28-year-old long haired pop singer and his girl friend of six months left the swimming pool of their plush resort hotel to say their "I do's" before Marius Astezani the mayor of this village wearing his red, white and blue sash of office.

Then the couple threaded their way through news photographers and fans to marry again in a Roman Catholic ceremony at a fishermen's tiny chapel on a hilltop overlooking the sunwashed playground of film stars and millionaires.

MIGs Lure U.S. Planes Into Trap

SAIGON (UPI) —Five U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers swooped into North Vietnam from Laos Monday and bombarded Communist antiaircraft guns that had fired on them, the U.S. command announced today in a delayed report.

The spokesman also reported that a supersonic North Vietnamese Mig21 jet fired on an unarmed U.S. Air Force observation plane over Laos Sunday while a second Mig circled overhead. The American plane, an OH10 Bronco, was not hit in this first incident of its kind in Laos.

American military officials said the North Vietnamese were sending Mig21s over Laos in an attempt to lure American planes within range of SAM missile batteries and said there had been at least four radar sighting of Migs this year.

There was no mention of missiles, however in reports of the F4 strike into North Vietnam.

The planes attacked in two strikes 45 minutes apart for the 36th "protective reaction" this year and the 43rd such attack since the U.S. command began reporting them a year ago. None of the five planes was damaged, spokesmen said.

Two Phantoms were making bombing runs over the Ho Chi Minh supply trail complex through Laos at 6 p.m. Monday when they were fired on by a Communist 85-millimeter gun from within North Vietnam, 80 miles northwest of the Demilitarized Zone, U.S. spokesmen said.

As the F4's zoomed to the attack, they were fired on by nearby 37 and 57-millimeter antiaircraft guns. Both Phantoms sent their seven-ton loads of 750-pound bombs plummeting onto the antiaircraft position, knocking out three 57-millimeter guns.

Forty-five minutes later, three more F4's were diverted from the Ho Chi Minh trail to bomb the same antiaircraft

West Marin Master Plan Nearly Buried

By WAT TAKESHITA

The West Marin Master Plan, which was forged in 1967 after a four-year controversy over density, was all but buried yesterday, with the blessing of a majority of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. (Other Marin Supervisors stories, page 7.)

In contrast with the storm that raged over density (.88 units per acre vs. 1.15 units per acre) in the summer of 1967, the announcement of its demise was accepted with only mild protest yesterday.

During yesterday's joint meeting between the supervisors and the Marin County Planning Commission, County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell announced the planning commissioners will reconsider the West Marin General Plan on June 14.

"The staff recommendation will be to drop the West Marin General Plan, said Von Gundell. "There are so many deficiencies in it that it would be more work to amend it than to give it a decent burial." Von Gundell said he is working on a countywide general plan that will take over the West Marin Plan.

Chairman Louis H. Baar put in a protest. "So much time was spent on the West Marin plan, and now we're going to beat this one to death. For what purpose?" he asked. "My suspicion is that it's make-work, to keep the staff working."

But Baar was outnumbered. "I think the West Marin plan

Bomb Plot Witness Loses Quash Motion

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—A federal judge ruled Wednesday evidence used to subpoena Leslie Bacon before a federal grand jury was legal—even if it included wiretaps — because Miss Bacon has not been charged with a crime.

U.S. District Judge George H. Boldt turned down a motion by the 19-year-old antiwar activist to quash the subpoena under which she has been detained as a "material witness" into radical bombings.

President Proposes $2 An Hour Minimum

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration today endorsed raising the minimum wage to $2 an hour for adults, but proposed a cut-rate youth minimum of $1.60 to help reduce high unemployment among teen-agers.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, in testimony prepared for the House Labor subcommittee, proposed that the present $1.60 minimum wage covering some 46 million teenage and adult workers be raised to $1.80 an hour in January and $2 in January, 1974.

The final step-up is at a later date than provided in other proposals before the subcommittee headed by Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa. Hodgson said going to $2 an hour before 1974 would be inflationary, principally by prompting wage increases for workers already being paid above that figure.

The AFL-CIO has demanded an immediate boost to $2 an hour, Chairman Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee has proposed going to $2 next January, and House Democratic leaders support a bill by Dent for a step-up to $1.80 in January and a second boost to $2 the following January.

But none of these proposals contain any different minimum wage for teen-agers, a proposal that already has been condemned by the AFL-CIO as a move that will allow employers to exploit young workers and reap extra profits by displacing older workers with teen-agers.

Under the administration proposal outlined by Hodgson, the present $1.60 rate would be retained for all workers under 18, or 18 and 19-year-olds who are full-time students and for 18 and 19-year-old workers during the first six months of their first jobs.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Antilitter Plan

NEW YORK (UPI) —In an effort to help clean up the nearly 70 billion metal containers discarded by consumers each year, four big can companies announced plans Tuesday for a national antilitter reclamation program based on civic responsibility more than economic gain.

The program backed by American Can. Co., National Can Corp., Continental Can Co. and Heekin Can. Co. is similar to a collection effort already in operation by the aluminum industry and several bottle companies.

The main difference will be that under the can program the litter collector will not be paid directly. The aluminum program pays cash on the basis of 10 cents a pound, or approximately 20 cans.

The can group plans to have more than 200 collection centers operating around the country by mid-June. They will collect all types of cans and pay selected local government agencies instead of the individual contributor.

Pakistan Talks

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Pakistan President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan has started political talks with an East Pakistani leader in an apparent move to restore some sort of civil administration to the rebellious province.

Yahya Khan met with Nur-ul Amin, president of the East Pakistan National Democratic Party (NDP), in Rawalpindi Tuesday, according to Pakistan radio. They discussed political and economic questions the broadcast heard here said.

In summoning Amin, Yahya Khan ignored the Awami League party, which won 167 of the 169 parliamentary seats sloted to East Pakistan in the December elections. Failure of the National Assembly to meet following the elections touched off the rebellion in East Pakistan and one of the first actions of the government was to ban the Awami League.

Bird Tragedy

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Efforts to rescue birds caught in a San Francisco Bay oil spill may have been in vain, and even cruel, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says.

Of the 7,000 birds plucked from the bay last January, only about 300 still are alive and additional deaths are expected, the society's administrative assistant said in a magazine article released Tuesday.

Eugene Sander, the administrator, wrote in the SPCA's "Our Animals" that "at the present level of ability to treat oil-soaked birds, there might be far less suffering if all such birds were humanely euthanized at once."

His article estimated that no more than 3 per cent of the birds would survive despite large-scale efforts by the society and volunteers.

Destroying Germs

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Army this week began destroying a germ warfare stockpile it never used.

The germs, including cholera and bubonic plague, are housed in three buildings at the Pine Bluff Arsenal in Arkansas. The Army plans to kill them with fire, steam and sterilizers.

The United States began a formal germ warfare program in 1943 out of fear that Germany was developing similar weapons, and $726 million has been spent on the program since then. President Nixon in 1969 ordered an end to the project, saying this country would not use such weapons even in retaliation.

Anti-crop germs stored at other points around the country will be destroyed later. Nerve gas and other chemical weapons, however, will be maintained by the government.

Trudeau Vows Canada Action

Trudeau

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, in a letter released yesterday, said the Canadian government "would not hesitate" to use the War Measures Act again if necessary To control political violence.

"The government is retaining complete freedom of action," Trudeau said in a letter written last week to Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa. "It will be prepared to act at any time."

The War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16 for the first time in Canadian peacetime history. The act gave police extraordinary powers of search, detention and arrest without warrant during Canada's kidnap crisis. The act was replaced by temporary legislation which expired April 30.

Bourassa recently asked for permanent antiterrorist legislation which specifically would outlaw the radical separatist Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ) and provide for use of strong police powers in future emergencies.

A Cairo Blast

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt accused Israel today of rejecting its attempts to move toward peace in the Middle East, but added that it was keeping open its contacts with the United States.

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today President Anwar Sadat, in a meeting with the nation's top military leaders Tuesday, said "we are maintaining our contacts with numerous parties, including the United States."

However, it quoted Sadat as saying, "Israel has rejected the Egyptian initiative."

Sadat's proposals for a partial Israeli withdrawal to allow reopening of the Suez Canal have bogged down over the question of whether Egyptian troops will be allowed to cross the waterway once the Israelis have pulled back.

Pacific Rowers Reported Safe But Radio Out

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rowers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook are "all right" after two weeks in the Pacific, but they aren't making much progress toward Australia.

The British adventurers, spotted 125 miles west of Santa Barbara Tuesday, told a freighter crew they were headed for an unscheduled stop in Los Angeles for "minor repairs" to a broken radio.

Crewmen communicated with the couple by "word of mouth" and radioed the Coast Guard that Fairfax and Miss Cook were "all right" but their radio was malfunctioning and they would pull into Los Angeles for repairs.

OBSERVES MOTHER'S DAY

Dona Estamalda Flores of Calexico, who lists her age at 147, celebrated Mother's Day on Monday, Mexico's official day of remembrance. She says she was born in Pengamo, Guanajuato in 1824. In the United States, Mother's Day is observed the second Sunday in May, which fell last Sunday. (UPI Telephoto)

Youth Barred For Hair Rescues Drowning Man

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) Steven Michaluk, 25, was barred from participating in a gymnastics demonstration Tuesday because of his long hair. Instead, he saved a life.

Michaluk accepted the decision without protest and decided to view the demonstration as a spectator.

He was driving from his home to the site of the demonstration when he saw a truck hit another vehicle and plunge through a guardrail into the White River.

Leaping from his car, Michaluk jumped into the cold water and swam to the sinking truck. He motioned for the driver to roll down his window, then extricated him from the vehicle and towed him to shore.

The driver, Raymond Houng, 75, was listed in satisfactory condition at General Hospital suffering shock.

Michaluk missed the athletic event.

Guatemalan Plane Crashes; Five Die

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI)— A Guatemalan DC3 airliner with 35 persons aboard crashed Tuesday while trying to make an emergency landing, killing five persons and injuring 18 others, aviation authorities said today.

Officials said the injured included an American identified as Charles Childress, hometown unknown. Four other Americans were on the flight. Their identities and conditions were not known.

Cut Smoking Enticement: Less Rent

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The manager of a 260-unit apartment complex is cutting by $10 a month the rent of tenants who quit smoking. She also has started renting her apartments to non smokers at $10 less a month than the rent charged smokers.

"That's saving $120 a year," Anita Maxfield said. "That's enough to buy something special and that doesn't take into account the money saved not buying cigarettes."

Mrs. Maxfield, the manager of the Sherry Park apartments, said she introduced the special non smoking rates during the weekend and there already have been results.

"We rented three apartments Sunday and had about 10 families come out to visit and had lots of phone call inquiries," she said.

She said the policy is good promotion for her apartments and it will cut maintenance costs.

"Cigarette smokers invariably burn holes in rugs and furniture," she said.

She claims to have received a number of pledges from smoking tenants to kick the habit.

Standards Asked On Boat Wastes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government today proposed marine waste treatment standards that would cost pleasure boat owners an estimated $200 to $300 each.

The standards, published in today's Federal Register by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), would require that human wastes discharged from boats meet the same secondary treatment standards prescribed for municipal wastes.

The EPA said the proposed standards would keep the water clean enough for swimming, even at crowded marinas. New boats would have to meet the standards in two years, and older boats three years later.

The EPA said it would consider any public comments submitted during the next 45 days before issuing final ruling on the standards.

The standards, required under the 1970 Water Quality Improvement Act, already have sparked controversy among pleasure boat owners and marina operators.

The EPA suggested two ways to meet the rule —boat holding tanks coupled with pump-out devices at marinas, or on-board treatment devices.

But the agency acknowledged that no practical on-board device has yet been developed for pleasure craft, and that few marinas are equipped to pump out holding tanks. Even those that could would have difficulty disposing of the accumulated wastes, an EPA spokesman said.

Richard Schwartz, executive director of the Boatowners Association of the United States said boat owners already were caught between the prospect of meeting future federal standards and the reality of existing rules imposed by several states.

"We boatowners are for onboard treatment, not holding tanks," Schwartz said. "Tanks are impractical."

Newly Formed Group Will Meet Tonight

The newly formed Adobe Community for Improvement of Our Neighborhood (ACTION) organization will meet at 8 p.m. today at La Tercera School to discuss problems of East Petaluma.

Group plans to upgrade schools, parks, libraries, medical facilities, police and fire departments will be discussed.

Hearings Set For 9 Draft Protesters

Protesting the war sometimes demands great sacrifice.

Wendi Anne Killins, 19, of Mill Valley, learned that yesterday from Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court who told her she was going to have to miss a class to appear in court next week.

Miss Killins, one of 37 demonstrators arrested last Wednesday at a sit-in at the San Rafael office of the U.S. Selective Service, appeared in Judge Smallman's court yesterday for arraignment, although she was not scheduled to be arraigned until today.

Smallman told her and two other demonstrators — Thomas Louis Oleari, 22, of Fairfax, and Robert Alan Le Blanc, 23, of San Rafael — who also appeared on the wrong day yesterday to return to court for arraignment next Tuesday.

The judge denied a request by Miss Killins's attorney, Robert M. Della Valle, for a court date other than next Tuesday because she had a class on that day.

Upon the judge's denial, Miss Killins left the courtroom and cried.

Nine of the demonstrators were arraigned yesterday on misdemeanor charges of failing to disperse and malicious obstruction of a public place.

Ordered to return to court to enter pleas next Wednesday were:

Steven John Loegerin, 19; James Gordon Digby, 22, and Ronald Keith Nichols, 32, all of Novato; Neil Lionel Edwards, 26, Michael Alan Glass, 18, and Kenneth John Cottrell, 23, all of Mill Valley; Richard Carol Sloan, 35, of Lagunitas; Michael Drew Mendelson, 25, of Berkeley, and Eric Signard Svenson, 20, of San Rafael.

Eleven more persons arrested in the demonstration were to be arraigned today. Seven will be arraigned tomorrow and six more next Tuesday.

Four others arrested were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall.

Tam CSD Takes Title To Acreage

Directors of the Tamalpais Community Services District last night accepted title to 11.5 acres of land formerly owned by the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club and immediately became embroiled in controversy over the property.

About 14 residents of the Marinview subdivision, adjacent to the land, appeared to ask that the land not be developed for recreation, but left as open space, director Ralph P. Kellogg reported. The improvement club donated the property to the services district for use as a park.

The services district board made no decision on the matter last night, but Kellogg noted the land is one of two parcels which the district's master plan designates as high use recreational areas.

The controversy arose, he said, because Allen-Marin, the subdivision's developer, has plans to build two tennis courts on the improvement club property and the residents say the developer had promised them the land would remain undeveloped.

The board also postponed action on the purchase of the 5.13 acre Eastwood property currently owned by the Mill Valley School District and the parcel which the services district plans to use for recreation.

The school district has offered to sell the land, at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue, for $66,500 and the services district had tentatively agreed to that price, Kellogg said.

But, before making a final decision on the purchase, Kellogg reported, the services district plans to apply for a grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development which, he said, can provide a local agency with up to 50 per cent of the cost of land purchased for park use.

stinks!" said Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

"We put priority on the countywide general plan," said John F. McInnis. "What we should emphasize now is the countywide general plan rather than the West Marin plan."

McInnis criticized Baar's "make-work" comment. He said dropping the West Marin plan and concentrating on the overall county general plan would save time and work.

After the meeting, Von Gundell explained to the Independent-Journal the major defects of the West Marin plan:

1. The density of 1.15 dwelling units per acre is far too high when compared with the general purpose of maintaining a rural atmosphere.

2. Too many high density developments such as apartments, shopping centers and schools are planned along the San Andreas fault.

3. Resort commercial and tourist facilities are envisaged in West Marin, but dense residential will hem in such development and stunt their growth.

The West Marin Master Plan was approved by supervisors 5-to-0 on July 11, 1967, after four years of controversy. The approved density was .88 units per acre, with a maximum of 1.15 units per acre attainable as a bonus for good design.

A week later, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen demanded that the density question be re-opened. On Aug. 15, 1967, Kettenhofen, John F. McInnis and William A. Gnoss ordered county planners to open new hearings on the plan, raising the density to 1.15 units per acre. Supervisors Peter H. Behr and Thomas T. Storer fought to retain .88, but were outvoted.

Panel Backs A Bigger Youth Count

The Marin County Youth Commission should have 10 youths and two adults instead of the present seven youths and four adults.

That was the unanimous decision of the youth commission, which met last night at the Boitano restaurant in Corte Madera.

The commissioners, headed by Paul M. Cohen of Mill Valley, will ask the Marin County Board of Supervisors to increase the youth membership on the commission to 10, two from each of the five supervisorial districts. The remaining two adults would come from the county parks and recreation commission and from the juvenile justice commission.

The Marin Youth Commission also:

HUMAN RIGHTS — Decided to ask the human rights commission to name a youth to fill its next vacancy.

JUVENILE NAMES — Invited editors of Marin County newspapers to attend the next meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday in Room 332 of the Marin Civic Center, to discuss the pros and cons of publishing names of juvenile offenders.

MATCHING FUND — Received an application from Marin YMCA for county matching funds to start a job-referral service for teen-agers.

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY — Decided to publicize the two vacancies that exist on the juvenile delinquency prevention commission so that youths will apply for the posts.

Arrest In Coin Burglary Case

A 20-year-old Ross man was arrested yesterday by San Rafael police on suspicion of burglary of a San Rafael home Sunday, police reported.

Ross Sheffield Murphy, of 52 Loma Linda Road, Ross, was released on $1,500 bail. He was scheduled to appear at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported that Murphy attempted to sell 90 silver dollars to a local merchant yesterday. His fingerprints matched prints taken from the Wilbur F. Mathewson home at 47 Bret Harte Lane, San Rafael, where A coin collection was taken, police reported.

Medical Careers Session Friday

Marin high school students interested in medical careers will see first-hand what is involved at a special careers day from noon to 3 p.m. Friday at Ross General Hospital.

In observance of National Hospital Week, students from the county's eight high schools will tour the hospital, talk to nurses, dieticians, physical therapists and others in the medical profession, see medical displays and a movie, according to Marlys Cass, educational coordinator at Ross Hospital.

Last year's careers day introduced 125 students to hospital-related jobs, she said.

Letter Tells Shoot-Out's Alleged Plan

A letter purportedly written by San Quentin inmate Ruchell Magee to his codefendant Angela Davis contends that the August shoot-out at the Civic Center was not an attempt to free the Soledad Brothers.

The purpose of the abortive kidnap-escape attempt, according to the letter, was to allow a group of San Quentin convicts to go to a "radio news station" to talk about a prison "conspiracy" against them.

A copy of the handwritten letter was reportedly smuggled out of the prison to a San Francisco Examiner reporter, who said the handwriting appeared to match that of court documents submitted by Magee.

(He and Miss Davis are charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the shoot-out.)

Magee reportedly said in the letter that he and two convicts killed in the shootout were planning to "expose to the world the conspiracy between the California judicial and prison system murdering and enslaving innocent people . . ."

Miss Davis had nothing to do with the shoot-out, the letter said, but was being railroaded by the state, the courts and her "pig lawyers."

Status Of Toliver Is Clarified

The Sausalito School District has acknowledged special assistant James T. Toliver Jr. is a tenured, permanent employee and has dropped its attempt to fire him for cause as a probationary employee, Toliver's attorney A. Leonard Bjorklund announced today. (Another Toliver story, page 21)

Bjorklund said Toliver's status was clarified in a letter received today from Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, who handles legal matters for the school district.

If the school district still intends to try to remove Toliver for cause, Bjorklund said, the special assistant must be notified of that fact by Saturday, the deadline for notifying permanent employees they will not be rehired for 1971-72 school year.

Toliver was notified by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg in March that he was being dismissed for "incompetence," disruptive behavior" and "failure to accept administrative directives and suggestions." But, because the firing notice listed Toliver as a probationary employee, it is not valid in light of the district's recognition of his permanent status, Bjorklund said.

Toliver was also notified in March that his position was being cut as part of budget reductions and that he would not be reemployed next year. At present, Toliver is next in line to be rehired if any teaching personnel the district plans to keep next year do not return to their jobs or leave the district for any reason.

Lindberg could not be reached to comment on whether the district intends to pursue its plans to dismiss Toliver for cause.

Body Of Bridge Leaper Recovered

The body of a 59-year-old Palo Alto woman who leaped to her death from the Golden Gate Bridge Yesterday was recovered a short time later by the Coast Guard.

The California Highway Patrol said Marian Alyce Clark stopped her car in the southbound lanes of the bridge at 10:10 a.m., ran across the sidewalk and climbed onto the railing.

Officers said two witnesses stopped their cars and slowly approached Mrs. Clark, but she jumped when they got about 10 feet from her.

A note in Mrs. Clark's car asked officers to call her physician so he could notify her husband.

Plea Set On Felony Counts

Robert Carl Maier, 18, of no known address, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to felony charges of car theft and battery against a peace officer, as well as a misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

He is to plead to the charges next Wednesday.

Maier was arrested Sunday when San Rafael police investigated a one-car accident and found that the car was stolen.

ASIA

site. They knocked out five more 57-millimeter guns and five 37-millimeter guns, spokesmen said.

Until recently, when a few MIGs have been spotted over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, North Vietnam's limited supply of jet fighters have stuck close to home.

Before the U.S. strategic bombing halt of Nov. 30, 1968, they were kept busy fighting American aircraft over North Vietnam itself.

Since then they seldom have been seen. The last reported contact between American and North Vietnamese aircraft occurred more than a year ago, on March 28, 1970, when a U.S. Navy F4 Phantom jet shot down a MIG21 in a dogfight over North Vietnam.

MIGs have been spotted over the trail several times this year. On the last such occasion, April 23, U.S. planes chased a MIG over the border into North Vietnam and were fired on by Communist SAM missiles when the MIG flew straight over a SAM site.

This was the fourth such radar sighting of a MIG21 over Laos this year, in an area where North Vietnamese planes had not previously been seen. In each case the MIG21 made no attempt to attack, but turned and fled across the path of a known SAM2 battery in North Vietnam.

While the North Vietnamese have set up at least one SAM battery in Laos, there are at least 20 of them in the North Vietnam Panhandle, military sources say.

A MIG21 can be picked up on the radar scopes of American fighters when it flies within 30 miles of them. By keeping that distance it is well out of their firing range.

The heat-seeking Sidewinder missiles with which some Phantoms are armed have a range of only two miles. The radar-homing Sparrow missiles with which others are armed have a range of about eight miles. The range of the 20 millimeter cannon on the Phantoms is even less.

Mig21's are no match for Phantoms in air combat—the Phantoms can fly 14,000 feet higher and fly faster at ticklish low altitudes where control is more difficult. But the Mig21 has a maximum speed of better than twice the speed of sound, about the same as the Phantoms so Migs can keep their distance when Phantoms chase.

Phantoms or U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers escorting bombers over Laos or unarmed photo reconnaissance planes over North Vietnam normally are equipped with Shrike radar homing missiles, especially designed to suppress antiaircraft gun and missile fire.

But they must be well within Sam2 range before they can fire. Shrikes have a range of up to 15 miles, well short of Sam2 range. When a Navy pilot fired his shrikes at an attacking coastal SAM2 battery near Vinh in North Vietnam last winter, the Shrikes fell short into the sea.

To evade the SAM2s, which are exploded by a radio signal from the ground (command detonated), American pilots put their planes into tight turns which the missiles are unable to follow.

AF Sergeant In Pot Arrest

Sgt. George Milton Elsea, 26, of Barracks 707, Hamilton Air Force Base, was arrested yesterday by Novato police on suspicion of possession of marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia.

Officers said they stopped Elsea's car at Fairway Drive and Pensacola Court at 7:44 p.m. because it lacked a front license plate.

There was a brass water pipe on the floor and Elsea had three small bags of what appeared to be marijuana in his jacket pocket, police said.

Elsea was booked at Marin County Jail and bail was set at $1,000. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Charges Pending In Boat Case

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Leroy John Hooper, 32, and Daniel Dean Seitzinger, 25, both of Union City, who were arrested Sunday in connection with the theft of a boat from Richardson Bay.

The district attorney's office reported that no charge would be filed pending further investigation.

The two were taken into custody near the Alameda Naval Air Station Sunday by the Coast Guard after a Sausalito man discovered his sailboat missing from its mooring near Strawberry Point.

the San Anselmo post of the American Legion, said he spoke for the American Legion in saying "we're disgusted with the resolution you've put into effect.

"We fought for one flag and one flag only, and that's the American flag," he said.

Among flyers and pamphlets distributed last night by opponents of munidalization was one attacking the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) for "constantly choosing artists who have collaborated with Communist causes to design its Christmas cards."

Leach, Reed, Anderson and Stewart all defended mundialization, saying it was a symbolic action.

Stewart told the protesters that "the flag you refer to as a rag has the endorsement of the United States government" and that the U.N. flag is a "symbol of international cooperation."

Anderson said the mundialization action was based on the premise that "talking is better than fighting. We have to get along with the world."

As the discussion ended and the protestors filed out of the building, one woman who had sat muttering, "How stupid can you get?" almost every time she heard the word mundialization, snapped at the council, "We'll get you still."

Annual Catholic Charities Appeal Scheduled Sunday

The annual Catholic Charities appeal, called "Love Enough", will be held Sunday in Marin and other Bay Area counties.

Funds raised in the one-day drive will help support the Catholic Social Services Agency in Marin County, among other agencies. Marin agency, which hopes to obtain $50,000 from the drive, served nearly 10,000 persons last year with direct professional counseling. It's community service division conducted drug education programs and offers counseling services at Marin Catholic High School and College of Marin. It is also working on development of a 65-unit senior citizen residential complex.

Donations or pledges may be made Sunday at any Catholic church or at the center, 179 Los Ranchitos Road, Los Ranchitos.

Member Of Grand Jury Walks Out

A member of the new Marin County grand jury which returned its first indictments yesterday apparently walked out of the session because he doesn't believe in prosecuting convicts for escaping from San Quentin.

Sources said that James D. Kilty of San Anselmo, who is acting director of Marin Catholic Social Services, stayed outside a room in the Hall of Justice while his fellow jurors heard testimony in a San Quentin escape case.

The grand jury then returned an indictment against a prisoner who escaped for a brief time and was recaptured outside the prison earlier this year.

Kilty was not available today to comment on his views.

Marin County Superior Court judges this year attempted to appoint a wider cross-section of the county's population to the grand jury by asking for nominations from a wide variety of local organizations.

Petaluma City Hall Bid Taken

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Rapp Construction Co. of Santa Rosa was the apparent low bidder yesterday for construction of an addition to the Petaluma City Hall.

A base bid of $436,900 was submitted by Rapp Construction. Fostmeier Construction Co. submitted the same base bid, but submitted higher figures on alternate construction work.

The addition, which will be built parallel to the present city hall, had been estimated to cost $446,000. The new offices will provide additional space for the Southern Sonoma Municipal Court and other county offices. The present portion of the city hall now housing county offices will be turned over for use as additional city office space.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors took the bids under advisement and said a contract would be awarded next week.

OBITUARIES

Shugo Hasegawa Dies At 92

Shugo Hasegawa, 92, of 461 Molino Avenue, Mill Valley, died yesterday at his home.

Death was due apparently to natural causes, according to the Marin county coroner.

A native of Japan, he moved to San Francisco, just after the 1906 earthquake. He worked as a cook all of his life, retiring 20 years ago. For the past two years he had made his home with his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Niki Noguchi of Mill Valley.

He is survived also by his wife, Haruno Hasegawa of Mill Valley and three grandchildren.

Private family service will be held tomorrow. Inurnment will be in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

MABEL JOHNSON

Mabel A. Johnson, a Petaluma resident for 45 years, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of Point Reyes, she was reared and educated in Oakland. Mrs. Johnson attended Mills College.

She is survived by her husband, Charles; a daughter, Carol Stafford of Sacramento; a sister, Mrs. J. G. Platner of San Diego; a grandson and a great granddaughter.

Funeral will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel with private inurnment at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

MRS. PIOLI

Amelia Pioli, 84, of 36 Maple Avenue, Fairfax, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness.

She was born in Italy and came to this country 50 years ago. She lived in San Francisco prior to moving to Fairfax 20 years ago.

She was a member of the Italian Catholic Federation Branch No. 1 Immaculate Conception.

She is survived by two daughters, Loretta Pioli of Fairfax and Anne Keegan of San Francisco; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A Requiem Mass will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday at Immaculate Conception Church, 3255 Folsom Street, San Francisco. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Duggan's Serra Mortuary, 500 Westlake Avenue, Daly City. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Cglma.

MRS. MANZONI

Funeral for Mary R. Manzoni, 66, of San Rafael will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Gantner-Felder-Kenny Funeral Home in San Francisco.

Mrs. Manzoni died Monday at a local hospital following a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, she came to San Rafael from Los Angeles last month with her husband, Lt. Col. Christian J. Manzoni, who is stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco. The couple were staying at the home of their son, Christian J. Manzoni Jr., 40 Calafia Court, and planned to buy a home in San Rafael.

Mrs. Manzoni had been employed years ago as a bookkeeper with a San Francisco firm.

Besides her husband and son, she is survived by a daughter, Felicita St. John of Palo Alto; a sister, Dorothy Caletti of Fairfax, and six grandchildren.

Burial will be at Alta Mesa Cemetery.

DEATH NOTICE

PIOLI — In San Rafael, May 11, 1971, Amelia Pioli, beloved wife of the late Nello Pioli; loving mother of Loretta Pioli, Anne Keegan and M. Robert Pioli; loving grandmother of Wilfred Keegan Jr., Judith Baumgartner, Linda and Carol Pioli two great-grandchildren, Elizabeth and Gregory Keegan; a native of Siena, Italy; aged 84 years; a member of the Italian Catholic Federation Branch No. 1 Immaculate Conception.

Friends may call after 7 p.m., Wednesday. Funeral, Friday.

Time announcement later.

Tam District Money Picture Is Bleak

A bleak financial picture has been forecast for the next four years for the Tamalpais High School District.

According to Frank A. Cassou, director of business services, the district's revenues for fiscal 1971-72 will be about $500,000 under expected operating costs of $9,548,805.

His figures, he told the district board Monday, include a 2 per cent increase in assessed valuation and are based on this year's operational tax rate of $1.84 per $100 assessed valuation. (The total tax rate is $2.235.)

If the district hikes its operating tax rate to the statutory maximum of $1.94, he said, the district will cut the deficit by about $100,000.

(The district board in February said it would not increase the tax rate above this year's level and indicated that it would like to drop the rate by 14 cents.)

During fiscal 1971-73, he said, the district can expect operating costs to climb to $10,173,805 but with revenues totaling only $9,890,000 at the maximum $1.94 rate.

Fiscal years 1973-74 and 1974-75 show budgets of $10,798,805 and $11,423,805 respectively and revenues totaling $10,355,000 and $10,830,000.

"The $625,000 increase (in operating costs) could be considered conservative," he said, adding that was the average increase during the last 10 years.

In projecting revenues, Cassou said he used the maximum tax rate and a 6 per cent per year assessed valuation growth rate.

Cassou said, after the meeting, the board will have to either cut school programs or dip into budget reserves to make up the deficit.

Other budget related information presented the board Monday included a comparative study between Tam and other districts of expenditures per student.

According to Cassou's figures, the district last year spent about $1,312 per student to lead the state as it has since 1966.

(The low in the state was $756 and the high — behind the Tamalpais district — was $1,284.)

This year, the Tamalpais district is expected to have a student cost figure of about $1,407.

The lion's share of that amount — $1019 — will go to salaries. Teachers have consistently been the second highest paid in the state. Last year, district administrators were the highest paid in the state.

Flood Fund Plan Studied

The Army Corps of Engineers has taken under study a request it pay for drainage improvement costs in Ross as part of the Corte Madera Creek flood control project.

According to Neil R. Brixon, chairman of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone board, the corps was asked to apply the same reasoning for financing Ross improvements that it used for financing the Tamalpais Creek project.

The flood control board and town officials estimate the cost of improving drainage at the Ross Common and along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about $350,000.

The Tamalpais Creek project, which erupted into controversy in 1969 when conservationists attempted to physically stop the project, was undertaken because the creek is a major drainage into Corte Madera Creek.

According to a corps spokesman, it will probably be another four months before a decision is reached whether to finance part of the Ross drainage improvements.

Families Of Victims Will Run Business

SEOUL (UPI)—The owners of a transportation company whose bus killed nearly 80 persons Monday in a crash decided today to turn over their business to the families of the victims.

The owners of Smail Transportation Co. reached the decision because they do not have enough property or cash to compensate relatives of the victims.

More Fringe Benefits In Novato Teacher Bid

The Novato Teachers Association is seeking comprehensive health and welfare benefits for 1971-72 estimated to cost an additional $160,976.

The fringe benefits included in the association's negotiating platform would boost the health and welfare override tax about 18 cents per $100 assessed valuation, according to John H. Enders, association president.

The teachers proposed that all full-time district employees be provided health and dental insurance, disability insurance and vision service at no cost to the employees.

The association's platform also proposed a series of educational changes including hiring male high school or college students to assist in boys physical education classes in primary grades.

This would provide masculine guidance for boys at the primary level, the association said.

Other educational proposals included that:

Reading specialists be hired for intermediate grades at three intermediate schools as a pilot project.

There be aides at each first grade in the district for three hours a day.

There be pre-testing of all kindergarten children this fall during the week before school opens.

Four additional speech and hearing specialists be hired in the district.

The primary class ratio be held at 25 pupils to one teacher, and counseling loads in the secondary schools be set at 300 students for each full-time counselor.

Regarding negotiations, the association called for hiring a mediator when there is an impasse, a recommendation made by a fact-finding committee hired by the association and the district.

The association also proposed that teachers be involved in interviewing and selecting candidates for district administrative jobs and administrative jobs at schools.

Petaluman Bound Over On Drug Count

Harry R. Cartwright, 22, of Petaluma, was bound over to Sonoma County Superior Court yesterday on charges of possession of marijuana for sale and possession of dangerous drugs.

Southern Sonoma Municipal Court Judge Alexander J. McMahon scheduled Cartwright to be arraigned May 25 in Superior Court. He was arrested April 8 when police entered his home at 808 Keokuk Street with a search warrant.

Picket Struck, Charges Woman

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A petite blonde allegedly socked a picketing embalmer in the jaw outside her husband's funeral parlor Tuesday for "annoying a bereaved family."

The picket, Jim Pickin, immediately filed a battery complaint against Mrs. Diane Brown, wife of manager Ronald Brown of the Comisky-Roche Funeral home, one of two dozen city mortuaries involved in a strike-lockout since April 19.

Mrs. Brown said she hit Pickin with an uppercut because he was "annoying a bereaved family while a funeral service was in progress."

After the incident, the picket line moved to another mortuary under a rotational plan, a spokesman for the Mortuary Employes Union said.

'Hold The Line' Budget Examined

The San Rafael Board of Education last night took a look at what the district superintendent, John F. Plank, called a "hold the line" preliminary budget for 1971-72.

No salary schedule raise for district employees was included in the budget, but increased costs were mainly due to built-in salary increases, added maintenance costs and structural supplies, according to the business manager, Charles Condrotte. (The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting a 3.5 per cent salary schedule hike was included.)

No estimate was made of the tax rate but Plank said that taxpayers will receive higher bills next year if the budget passes.

The board took no action on the budget in which proposed costs for the elementary district would be $5,460,845 as compared to $5,432,834 estimated expenditure for this year. The proposed costs for the high school district would be $5,494,000 as compared to $5,277,545 for this year.

The board will discuss the budget further at a May 25 meeting and is scheduled to adopt a tentative budget in June.

Later in the evening the board heard a proposal from the American Federation of Teachers for which no cost estimate was given.

(The AFT represents a minority of the district's teachers.)

The teachers union, in a proposal described by James Dalrymple, asked that teachers start at a minimum of $7,500 a year with $550 annual increases up to 10 years. The proposal also asked that teachers receive $50 a year for each additional graduate unit.

Trustee Lawrence I. Kramer Jr. said that he was "not interested in handing out green stamps" for graduate units but he and other trustees agreed to study the proposal.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

PREPLACEMENT — Heard a request by Mrs. Jules Becker of the Juvenile Justice Commission that the board recommend to county supervisors that the Preplacement Center at Juvenile Hall be retained.

BOOKLET — Heard described a proposed parents' guide which the citizens' advisory committee has recommended. Willard Hall told the board the booklet would cost approximately $6,000 to produce and distribute to district families.

BIDS — Approved letting bids for a shop at Santa Venetia Middle School and improvements to the science and multiuse rooms there as well as a music room at Davidson School.

GRADUATES — Heard the results of surveys of 1967-68 graduates of Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools.

COMMITTEE — Appointed Marion Cedarblade, John Blecka and William Dunlap to fill vacancies on the citizens' advisory committee.

APPOINTMENTS — Hired Goetz Klopfer and Mark Manion as instructional aides at $2.50 an hour, and Emmaline Williams and Susan Williams as substitute bus drivers at $3.04 an hour.

TEACHERS — Hired Marilyn Shulman and Earl Thomason as teachers for parent effectiveness training courses in the adult education school at Terra Linda High School at $8 an hour.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Andrea Creel, an instructional aide; Alan Finley, driver education instructor; Margaret Moran, instructional aide; Harvey Murdock, Coleman School teacher; Patricia Stegall, substitute English teacher, and Edward Zemla, accounting supervisor.

LEAVES — Granted leaves of absence to Harry Holland, assistant principal at Bahina Vista School, and Joan deLorimer, physical education teacher at Davidson School.

CLOSED — Went into closed session to instruct Dr. Plant about salary negotiations as well as discuss appointment of a San Rafael High School principal.

Jury Acquits Draft Objector In Unusual Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A federal court jury acquitted a 21-year-old university student Tuesday of willful failure to register for the draft--and apparently made Selective Service history.

Court officials said the not guilty verdict was believed to be first ever in a failure to register case and only the 15th acquital in any Selective Service case since World War II.

Jefferey W. Mertens, a student at the University of California at Santa Barbara, was acquitted after 90 minutes deliberation by a U.S. District Court jury.

His attorneys had argued during a two-day trial that Mertens' draft board in Berkeley failed to follow its own regulations, which required it to register Mertens involuntarily. The student had appeared several times both before and after his 18th birthday to inform the board his conscience would keep him from registering.

Novato GI Is Wounded In Vietnam

Army Sp/5 Kevin Lawson, 21, of Novato, was wounded last week while serving in Vietnam, his mother reported yesterday.

Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lawson of 100 San Joaquin Place, was wounded May 3 when a truck in which he was riding was hit by rocket fire, Mrs. Lawson said.

In a telephone call from Japan, Lawson told his mother he was wounded in the right arm and leg by shrapnel, taken to an evacuation hospital and flown to a hospital near Tokyo.

Lawson, who entered the Army in June 1967, had been in Vietnam since September, and was home on leave in January. He is with the 589th Signal Company.

Liquid Natural Gas Bus Plans

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Liquid natural gas will be used in 24 buses in four cities as an experiment designed to eliminate smelly exhaust, it was announced Tuesday.

The 24-month experiment, sponsored by the National Transportation Center in Pittsburgh and the Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio, Tex., will use six buses in each of four cities — Pittsburgh, Seattle, Atlanta and San Antonio.

"Preliminary testing of liquid natural gas as a fuel was indicated the possibility of total elimination of smoke and odor," a spokesman said.

Painting Taken From Dominic's

An oil painting, valued at $700, was taken between 5:30 p.m. Monday and 10 a.m. yesterday from Dominic's Restaurant, 507 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police reported.

The 24-by-36-inch painting of trees and horses was signed by artist Schiefer, manager Mario J. Brenta told police.

Steven Liggett Beauty Salon had a convention at the restaurant the night the painting disappeared, Brenta told police.

Pair Of Feet Leads To Missing Convict

San Quentin guards yesterday spotted a pair of feet in a small crawl space in the prison furniture factory, and a 24-hour escape attempt by a convicted murderer ended.

Franklin S. Bowersox, 26, who was sentenced to life last year, had two oranges with him when guards enlarged the opening to the crawl space to get him out, according to Associate Warden James W. L. Park.

When asked where he had planned to go, Bowersox told guards, "Anywhere," Park said.

Bowersox disappeared Monday while working in the furniture factory and was found about 4 p.m., yesterday.

Park said that the convict, who was "a little stiff," after his stay in the cramped area, "was reacting to facing a life sentence."

"To a man his age, life looks a pretty long time," Park said.

Bowersox was convicted of killing a Santa Barbara police officer in 1970. His brother, Bruce, 33, is on Death Row for the shooting death.

Mrs. Grissom's Suit Tossed Out

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—A $5 million damage suit filed by the widow of astronaut Virgil (Gus) Grissom was dismissed in federal court Tuesday on grounds it was filed after the statute of limitations expired.

The suit by Betty Grissom, filed Feb. 18, charged North American Rockwell Corp. and several of its subsidiaries with negligence in the death of her husband in a launch pad fire at Cape Kennedy.

Grissom and fellow astronauts Edward White and Roger Chaffee were killed Jan. 27, 1967, when a fire flashed through their spacecraft trapping them inside.

Refuses Entry

BERLIN (UPI)—East Germany refused today to open the wall over the Whitsunday holiday weekend to allow family reunions for the first time in five years, the West Berlin city government said. Whitsunday is May 30.

13 Teachers Laid Off In Petaluma

The Petaluma Board of Education last night reluctantly advised 13 teachers they would not be rehired next school year, but expressed the hope that circumstances might change before September.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said the termination of their jobs would be effective June 30. He said lack of funds forced some programs to be curtailed and teachers let go while in other cases the lower seniority teachers will be replaced by teachers returning from sabbatical leaves.

He said enrollment has remained static or has decreased and that the excess teachers cannot be placed in new classroom positions at this time. Meyer said it has not been determined exactly how much money will be saved by the cutbacks.

Board secretary Marion Beltzner said it is hoped that enough vacancies will occur through normal attrition so that the teachers can be reemployed.

The teachers included Dale Nelson, Donald Hanson, Michael Mejia, Mary Buck, Barbara Cochran, Claudia Dopkins, Jameanne Owen, Shirley Collins; Heidi McLaughlin, Jean Nelson, Alyce Woods, Ned Spina and Shirley Spina.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

MOBILITY—Signed an agreement with Marin County Schools, Napa County Schools, Novato School District and Santa Rosa School district to hire jointly a mobility training instructor to assist blind students in learning to walk through their communities without the aid of a dog. The program will be financed by the state.

BIDS—Scheduled bid opening for the new Casa Grande Junior-Senior High School on June 17.

PROPERTY—Agreed to exchange property at the Casa Grande school site with developer Arthur Condiotti so that property lines can be straightened. Less than one acre is involved.

Supervisors Approve Creation Of A Fourth Municipal Court

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the creation of a fourth municipal court in an attempt to cut into the growing backlog of cases.

Supervisors also agreed unanimously to discuss consolidation of the county's central and western judicial districts when budget sessions begin in June.

The fourth court would be opened Jan. 2 without consolidation and perhaps sooner with a merger of the districts, supervisors said.

If the districts are merged, said county Administrator Alan Bruce, the fourth judge would either hold court at the Civic Center in a new courtroom approved yesterday by supervisors or would travel a circuit.

Bruce said that under state law, creation of a fourth court within two years of a merger would require the board to appoint David R. Baty to the municipal bench.

Baty, a San Rafael resident, is an elected part-time judge of the West Marin Justice Court at Point Reyes Station. He is a Democrat.

Bruce said the justice court has a proposed budget of $27,924 for the coming fiscal year and produces revenues estimated at $2,700. He estimated it would cost $180,000 to operate another court in the Hall of Justice.

Supervisors were told of the need for an additional court yesterday by presiding Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith, Public Defender Harold J. Truett, Municipal Court Judge Robert A. Smallman, and Herbert K. Walton Jr., speaking for the Marin County Bar Association. Creation of a fourth court was unanimously approved by the bar at a meeting April 29.

Judge Smith told supervisors the court has "800 cases trailing on the criminal case calendar.'' He said that only one judge at a time can handle the criminal cases because of a heavy caseload of civil and misdemeanor cases.

Smith said the overload "brings on bargaining with attorneys."

William O. Weissich, San Rafael attorney and former district attorney, predicted an "utter collapse" of the court "in a week or two," and said many of the 800 criminal cases will result in dismissals.

Truett cited the case of one man who received a sentence shorter than the 30-days he spent in jail waiting for trial.

Smallman said the court will soon be treating defendants "like numbers."

In 1965 a grand jury special report recommended merger of the two districts with elimination of the West Marin Justice Court, claiming it would save taxpayers $7,000.

About 200 residents appeared at a meeting of supervisors the following April to urge retention of the court and supervisors voted to keep it open.

Marin Assured On Medi-Cal Tab

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and other counties can rest assured that they will not be burdened with bigger Medi-Cal and welfare costs this year.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley and State Sen. Peter H. Behr, both San Rafael Republicans, gave that assurance to Marin County supervisors, who went to Sacramento yesterday to plead for tax relief. (Another Marin supervisors story, page 1)

"This Legislature is not going to stand for any shift of welfare or Medi-Cal cost to counties, even if we have to include a hold harmless clause," declared Bagley. A "hold harmless" clause would insure that state welfare reforms will not increase the cost to counties.

Behr agreed that sentiment in the Senate is to protect counties from any further financial burdens.

The other major concern of the Marin supervisors — the cost of security and the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee trial — did not get a clear-cut answer. But Bagley and Behr promised to approach the problem from various angles, including a survey to see if San Quentin should be moved out of Marin.

"We're dealing with something that is statewide and nationwide, and Marin is paying the tab," complained Louis H. Baar, chairman of the Marin supervisors. "It just doesn't seem equitable that Marin should bear the brunt of the cost."

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella and Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell gave these figures on anticipated extra cost this year:

Cost of the Davis-Magee trial and building securtiy will add about 12 cents to the basic county tax rate. Higher insurance costs will add another six cents. Welfare caseload increases and the expected shift of welfare and Medi-Cal costs will add another 33 cents.

These plus salary raises and other inflationary costs are expected to shoot the basic county tax rate from this year's $2.575 to $3.23 or more.

Assemblyman Bagley and Marin officials discussed these possible countermoves:

1. Assemblywoman Pauline Davis, D-Portola, has introduced a bill that would require the state to pay for any cost of a major trial that exceeds what can be raised by five cents on the tax rate. In Marin, that would mean any major trial that costs over $350,000.

The success of this bill will depend on whether the governor gives it the green light, said Bagley.

2. Section 4700 of the state Penal Code provides for state reimbursement of costs stemming from escapes from state prison. "We believe the Davis-Magee case comes under Section 4700, but the state attorney general has not yet ruled on that," said Marin County Counsel, Douglas J. Maloney. If the case keeps dragging out in legal maneuvers, the cost could run as high as $2 million, said Maloney.

If the attorney general's ruling is unfavorable, Bagley declared he will introduce a special bill to get reimbursement for Marin.

3. Bagley said he has asked the state's legislative analyst, A. Alan Post, to prepare a preliminary report on the desirability of closing San Quentin Prison on the basis of economic inefficiency. "I also want to make sure that no new capital improvements at the prison are included in this year's budget."

After a two-hour meeting in Bagley's office, Marin's five supervisors had dinner with Bagley and representatives from the governor's office, departments of finance and corrections and the California Supervisors Association.

Panel To Narrow Field For Bloom's Successor

A new county fire chief to succeed retiring Chief Louis J. Bloom will be picked by the Marin County Board of Supervisors after a three-man panel has screened the nine men in the department.

Supervisors yesterday appointed the following to the screening panel: Charles Fairbank, deputy state forester; William R. Seeger, general manager of the Marin Municipal Water District; and Boyd Stewart, Olema rancher.

Supervisor chairman Louis H. Baar wanted outgoing Bloom to be a member of the screening panel, but he was outvoted 4 to 1.

The panel will screen the nine in the department who qualify and recommend three to supervisors for appointment.

The nine include two assistant chiefs, Harold S. Rowan and Richard Pedroli; training officer, Jerry Van Soest, and six captains.

Bloom, who reaches mandatory retirement age of 60 June 1, recommended Pedroli as successor.

The Marin County Board Of Supervisors Also:

ROAD MAINTENANCE — Approved a resolution calling for a June 29 election to raise $5,000 a year for maintenance of roads at Paradise Ranch Estates at Inverness.

AIRPORT RESURFACING — Called for bids for the estimated $39,000 resurfacing of runways at Gnoss Field.

SUICIDE SALE — Approved Saturday's white elephant sale to raise funds for the suicide prevention center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of the Old Courthouse in San Rafael.

ROAD ADOPTION — Adopted the official listing of county maintained roads submitted for approval by the Marin Department of Public Works.

LANDSCAPING — Approved a joint powers agreement between the Marin Department of Public Works and San Rafael for maintenance of landscaping on South San Pedro Road for the coming fiscal year at a cost of $5,620.

SUBDIVISION ANNEXATION — Approved an agreement between Novato and the public works department to allow subdivision improvement to begin prior to completion of annexation to the city.

CEASE SUPPLEMENTATION — Voted to cease residual supplementation in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. The state has decided to increase its contributions to the county at an $11,000 annual saving to residents.

WIDENING STRIP — Voted acceptance by Novato of a 15-foot widening strip along Sutro Avenue for public roadway.

HELICOPTER — Referred to the public works department for further review a proposal to increase fees collected from SFO Helicopter Airlines from 25 cents to 33 cents with 10 cents in either case to be retained by the county and balance to heliport land owner Don McCoy Co.

BCDC COMPLAINT — Heard Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo complain that the Bay Conservation and Development Commission had an obligation in rejecting plans — such as Paul J. Broman's 96-unit Strawberry Cove apartments — to provide guidelines on what is acceptable. Supervisors agreed and instructed county staff to meet with BCDC staff to see if better coordination could be achieved.

A FIRST FOR EDNA MAGUIRE

Physical education teacher Steve Buffo (left) shouts commands at neophyte sailors as instructor Jack B. Benjamin watches an El Toro sailboat approach the dock. The men are teaching some 15 Edna Maguire School students the fundamentals of sailing in what Buffo believes to be the first credit sailing course offered by an elementary school in California. The exploratory course is being taught at the Mill Valley Small Craft Harbor and another water-oriented course — canoeing — will be offered when school resumes in September.

Berkeley Council Votes Out Pledge Of Allegiance

BERKELEY (UPI) —The new members of the Berkeley City Council have voted to discontinue the Pledge of Allegiance at their meetings.

The decision to drop the flag pledge came on a 5-3 vote Tuesday night with Mayor Warren Widener and the four new councilmen, including three members of a radical "April Coalition" voting against opening meetings with the flag salute.

At their first council meeting last week, the three radicals refused to give the pledge while the other five stood and recited it. Widener and Edward Kallgren, a moderate elected last month, took the pledge last week but voted for its discontinuance.

The radicals said they wouldn't take the pledge because there was no "justice for all" in the United States.

The mayor and radical councilmen failed later Tuesday night in an effort to have the city adopt a "People's Peace Treaty" with North Vietnam. The vote was four in favor three against and one abstention with five ayes needed for passage.

Kallgren cast the deciding vote after saying he favored city concern over the war, but could not "ignore what this specific treaty says." He favored a weaker antiwar measure which was defeated two to five when Widener and the "April Coalition" councilmen voted no on grounds it wasn't strong enough.

Poster Contest Winners Told

A San Rafael girl and a Petaluma student have won honors in the 1971 fire prevention poster contest sponsored by the Redwood Region Conservation Council.

Cindy MacElroy of Glenwood School, San Rafael, was third in the primary grade competition, and Denise Richardson of Kenilworth Junior High School, Petaluma, placed second in the junior high competition, the council announced.

Second prize was $15 and third prize, $10.

White Elephant Sale At Courthouse

Marin Suicide Prevention Center Inc. announced today it had erred in classified ads placed last week in the Independent-Journal announcing the location of a white elephant sale to be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

The sale will be held in front of the Old Courthouse on Fourth Street in San Rafael not the Marin County Civic Center as advertised.

San Anselmo To Trade Funds With Fairfax In Unusual Deal

A fancy piece of financial footwork is going to have San Anselmo trade $11,250 in state funds for $15,000 in federal funds with Fairfax.

Fairfax, which appears to be losing $3,750 in the deal, will actually gain $11,250, the San Anselmo City Council was told last night.

The council approved the funds exchange, proposed in a letter from Fairfax City Administrator Robert E. Crowe.

In his letter, Crowe said Fairfax has been allotted $15,000 from a federal fund designed specifically for traffic control projects.

Since Fairfax does not have a $15,000 traffic control project, and can't use the money for anything else, it is willing to trade the federal funds for $11,250 of San Anselmo's share of state gas tax funds, whose permitted uses are not so limited.

San Anselmo will use the federal funds toward its signalization project on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The San Anselmo council approved the trade by a 4-1 vote. Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro dissented, angry at Fairfax's refusal to assist San Anselmo with a portion of the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard project.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

LIBRARY—Authorized the San Anselmo Library Board to enter into a one-year reciprocal agreement between the San Anselmo Library and the Marin County Library for an exchange of patron services.

PARK—Set a joint meeting with the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission to discuss fees and permitted uses at Robson-Harrington Park for 8 p.m. May 20.

POLICE—Listened to a proposal for life insurance, salary increase, longevity pay and uniform allowance for San Anselmo police by James Martin MacInnis, an attorney for the San Anselmo Police Officers Association. There was no discussion and Mayor Kenneth L. Anderson said the council would respond through its negotiators.

ORDINANCE—Introduced an ordinance providing for the removal of abandoned or inoperative vehicles from private and public property.

APPOINTMENT—Named Deputy Marin County Dist. Atty. J. Michael Anthony, a San Anselmo resident, to the city's streets and traffic committee.

ANIMALS—Directed City Administrator Alfred C. Kaeppel to form a committee from a list of persons who have expressed interest in a proposed ordinance regulating the keeping of large animals, such as horses, in San Anselmo. The committee is to make recommendations on the ordinance proposal to the council.

MEETING—Adjourned to 8 p.m. next Tuesday for a joint meeting with the Sleepy Hollow Fire Protection District Board to discuss city services to the unincorporated area.

Hub Council Ruffled By Demand It Contribute To Creek Upkeep

That concrete channel called the Corte Madera flood control project was under attack again last night.

The San Anselmo City Council was griping that San Anselmo is being asked to contribute to the maintenance of the channel which, councilmen said, has no effect in San Anselmo and about whose design San Anselmo was allowed to say nothing. (Another San Anselmo City Council story, page 1)

"We've been placed in a position where you're not going to help us, but we have to help you," Councilman James F. Reed told Charles E. Murphy, Marin County Flood Control Engineer.

Murphy said he had been asked to appear before the council by the Ross Valley Flood Control District Advisory Board after the council on April 13 rejected an amendment to a 1965 joint powers agreement with the flood control district.

Fairfax and San Anselmo refused to join the flood control district, although the two cities comprise 20 per cent of the Ross Valley watershed and contribute proportionately to Corte Madera Creek flooding, Murphy said.

He advised the council to retain the joint powers agreement on the grounds that "those who contribute to the problem should contribute to the miantenance."

But, under questioning by Reed, Murphy agreed that the concrete channel downstream from San Anselmo had "little or no" effect on San Anselmo flooding.

And City Atty. John G. Buresh confirmed Reed's contention that downstream properties legally must accept upstream waters, and thus San Anselmo was in no way responsible for what happened to water once it left the city.

Murphy advanced the propouitions that the downstream creek work will benefit San Anselmo when San Anselmo is ready to do its own flood control work and that the whole creek is the responsibility of everyone along it.

Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro said San Anselmo never joined the flood control district because it didn't want the "concrete ditch and chain link fence," but he agreed with Murphy that "the whole creek is everybody's concern."

Some sort of solution may have been found when Murphy agreed to explore the possiblity of working out a maintenance program that would be acceptable to the council. Such a program, Councilman Warren R. Perry suggested, would be one whereby San Anselmo's maintenance money went for work on the San Anselmo portion of the creek.

Santa Cruz Beach Outing Set May 22

A trip to Santa Cruz beach and boardwalk on May 22, for seventh and eighth grade students in the city of San Rafael will be sponsored by the Junior Hi Youth Club of San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department.

Chartered buses will leave the Community Recreation Center, 1011 Fifth Avenue, at 9 a.m. for Davidson Junior High Students and 8:30 a.m. at Vallecito Junior High School for those students. Reservations must be made by Friday at the Parks and Recreation Department.

All sporty cars look pretty much the same, cost pretty much the same, and act pretty much the same.

Except the 1980 looking Javelin.

The original idea of the sporty car was to give you a car with some individuality.

But lately, all the sporty cars are looking pretty much alike.

So, at American Motors, we went all-out to make our Javelin a really different-looking car. Even at the risk of scaring some people off.

The fenders rise and fall in an aerodynamic whoosh around the tires.

The grill and hood slope to a canopy roof with a rear spoiler lip.

And on the inside, the smooth racy feeling of the outside carries through. The "cockpit" instrument panel. The high-back buckets in vinyl or optional fabric or leather.

But not only did we make the Javelin look good, we made it drive good. It's longer, lower, and wider for a smoother ride. The steering ratio is quicker and the suspension is tougher for faster, tighter cornering.

And to make the Javelin really go like it looks, we've got engines from a base 6 all the way up to an optional 401 cubic inch V8. Which are available in all the Javelin models: the Javelin; the luxurious Javelin SST; and the brawny Javelin AMX, the car Trans-Am race driver Mark Donohue helped us design.

All in all, we've achieved one very important thing with the new Javelin:

Before, you were stuck with the choice of, 1) getting a sporty car that looked like all the others, or 2) spending a lot of money for one that looked different.

Now you're not.

LBJ Tells Of Soviet's '67 Threat

NEW YORK (UPI) —Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said Tuesday that near the end of the 1967 six-day Mideast War he received a message from Soviet Premier Alexsei Kosygin threatening military intervention if Israel did not stgp operations.

Johnson said he ordered the U.S. Sixth Fleet moved closer to the Syrian coast, where fighting continued, in case the Russians intervened, but the war ended before the Soviets could get involved.

Johnson made the comments in an interview with Mike Wallace on CBS' "60 Minutes" telecast Tuesday night.

The hotline call from Kosygin came about 8 a.m. June 10, 1967. Johnson said the message said the Soviet Union would take "necessary actions including military" within a few hours unless Israel unconditionally halted military operations.

Israel and Egypt had gone to war June 5 and the Israelis were still fighting Syria at the time.

Johnson said Ambassador-at-large Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr. was asked to make sure the translation included the word "military" and when assured it did, the president ordered the Sixth Fleet to 50 miles off the Syrian coast. The fleet usually stays at least 100 miles away.

"Of course, every man in that room knew, and all the leaders of the Soviet Union knew that every movement of that fleet was being monitored by the Soviet Union," Johnson said.

Good News Singers To Perform Tomorrow

Delay For Lot Plan In Southern Heights

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night postponed until May 25 consideration of a three lot subdivision on Southern Heights Boulevard.

The vote was 4-0 with Commissioners Thomas R. O'Toole, Alan M. Kay and Jorgen V. Lunding absent.

Postponement was requested by several members of the Bret Harte Heights Association becaused a general meeting of the association scheduled for next Wednesday.

Douglas Chambers of 11 Southern Heights objected to the subdivision as requested by Sheldon Brandenburger because it would mean bulldozing trees and cutting through an old rock wall on his property.

James M. Fletcher of 295 Bret Harte Road, Brandenburger's attorney, said he was surprised at Chambers' objection because they had an agreement for a road easement over his property in return for Chambers keeping his septic tank and leaching field on the Brandenburger property.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner said that the staff would like more time to study an alternate proposal to make two lots instead of three in the subdivision.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

WAREHOUSE—Granted a use permit and architectural approval for 16,224 square foot warehouse to W and N Enterprises for 155 Larkspur Street.

MEDICAL ADDITION—Gave architectural approval to a 1,500 square foot addition as a second story office to the Medical Clinic at 1540 Fifth Avenue to San Rafael Physicians Building Corp.

SUBDIVISION—Approved subdividing a lot at 50 Belvedere Street into two 16,000 square foot lots for Christine Ghilotti. The commission also gave a use permit for a 700 square foot showroom, 800 square foot office and 7,000 square foot warehouse in a building on one of the lots.

LANDSCAPING — Approved plans for landscaping around an office trailer at 2031 Francisco Boulevard for Bresnan-Dalecio Inc.

POSTPONED—Postponed indefinitely consideration of a six-car parking lot for an adjacent apartment house at 233 Southern Heights Boulevard for Charles Freeman and until May 25, consideration of plans to remodel a fire damaged building at 1017 D Street for Rolfe Croker.

SIGN—Denied Standard Oil Co. of California a freestanding sign at 871 Francisco Boulevard. This was done with the understanding that new plans would be submitted.

CHICKENS — Overrode the planning director's recommendation that John L. Moller not be permitted to keep two leghorn hens at 1442 Nye Street. This was by a 3-1 vote with Commissioner James Dougan against. T. A. Fraize of 1444 Nye Street objected to the noise and odor so close to his house.

MEETING—Requested that a meeting be held between the city council, planning commission, planning director and city manager to discuss the animal control ordinance.

Quake Session Set In San Francisco

WASHINGTON (UPI) —An international conference on reducing the hazards of earthquakes to people and property will be held in San Francisco May 20-25.

The meeting, with the United States as chief sponsor, is expected to attract about 170 seismologists, scientists, engineers, disaster experts and other specialists from at least 18 nations.

Famous Sculptor Dies In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — All newspapers have reported the death of unspecified causes of Ekaterina F. Belashova, Russia's most famous sculptress. She was 65.

A lengthy obituary was signed by Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist party, and other members of the Politburo and leading Soviet intellectuals.

She was president of the artists' union, and a member of the Academy of Arts.

Mrs. Mellon To Wed Briton

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mrs. Constance Prosser Mellon, widow of financier and civic leader Richard King Mellon, plans to marry an Englishman this summer.

She will be wed to Peter E. Burrell, Newmarket, England. Burrell for more than 30 years has been director of the National Stud of the United Kingdom, an organization devoted to improving the breeding of horses. He plans to retire this year.

The engagement was announced Tuesday by Richard K. Mellon & Sons.

Mount Etna Lava Threatens A Village

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Lava boiled from a new fissure on the slopes of Europe's tallest volcano — Mount Etna — today and flowed to within one mile of a villabe damaged by eruptions in 1950. Officials expressed concern for villagers.

The village, with a population of 2,000 persons, was one of four evacuated and damaged by lava in 1950.

Here's a summer school that won't interfere with vacation plans.

If your child does not show the interest in school that you would like to see or, if your child would like to take a step ahead; enroll him now in the Sullivan Reading Center Summer School. The Center offers accelerated learning programs in math and reading using the highly successful Sullivan programmed teaching methods.

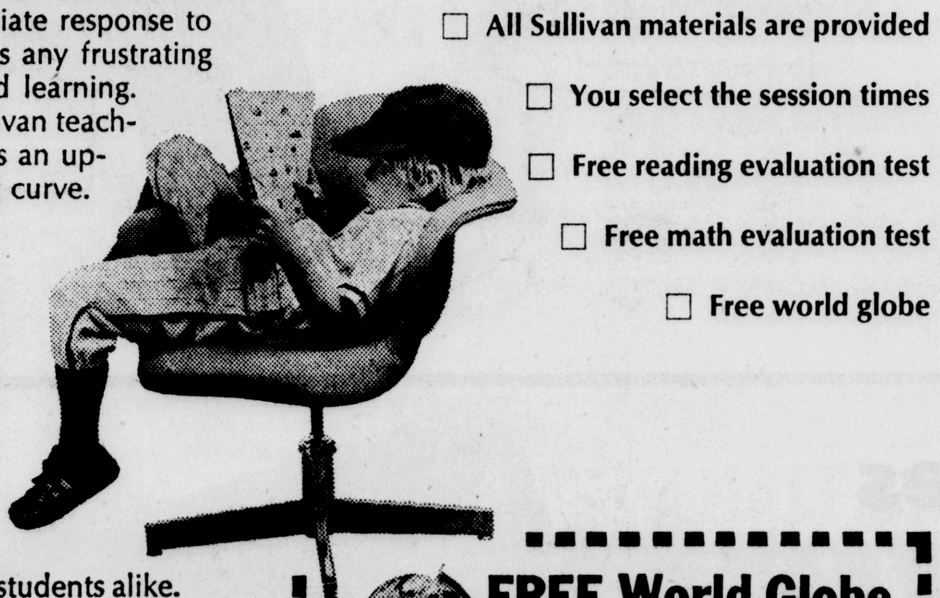
Reading Your child will work at his own personal level of understanding. If he finds a difficult sound, the instructor comes immediately to his aid, and works with him until the material is fully understood. This immediate response to your child's questions eliminates any frustrating mental stumbling blocks toward learning. There is no regression in the Sullivan teaching method. Each page of text is an upward step in the child's learning curve.

Math Math-without-words. The basal mathematics course does not use a single word of English or any other language. The fact that the program does not rely on words means a student is never handicapped by a low reading level or other language problems. Each student progresses at his own pace offering advantages to gifted and slower students alike.

Hours are scheduled for reading, math and if you wish, reading and math together. Your child can attend for one or two hour sessions on days convenient to the family schedule.

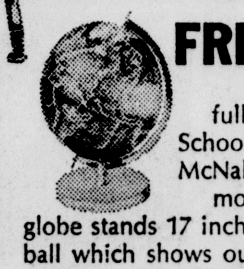
Benefits of the Sullivan Program

☐ Parents receive home evaluation checklist
☐ Individualized programmed instruction
☐ All Sullivan materials are provided
☐ You select the session times
☐ Free reading evaluation test
☐ Free math evaluation test
☐ Free world globe



What Parents say about the Sullivan Program:

Mrs. Joseph Mell, Palo Alto, Ca.: Joe had two and a half sessions and the change is absolutely incredible. He has moved to a top reading group, he always gets 100 in his spelling tests, and can handle his social studies assignments which require reading with ease and confidence. But the best change of all is that he now enjoys reading. He even bought two books with his own money.
Mrs. William Weir, Novato, Ca.: Brad's attitude toward learning has greatly improved as a result of your program. He seems to respond favorably to the individual attention that is your specialty.



FREE World Globe

All children who enroll for one full session in the Sullivan Summer School will receive this $12.95 Rand McNally World Portrait Globe. This modern, up-to-the-minute world globe stands 17 inches high and features a 12 inch ball which shows our earth exactly as the crew of Apollo 11 viewed it on their historic journey to the moon. Nature's colors stand out in three-dimensional raised relief features. This globe is not a toy, but a geographically accurate, precisely correct educational tool.

Red China: Affluent, But Yet Austere

LONDON —One of the most notable features of the Chinese "thaw" which set in last year with a succession of diplomatic moves and has continued in 1971 with a virtuoso display of table tennis has been the revelation—or partial revelation —of what China's economy is worth.

In an interview last year with the veteran American journalist Edgar Snow, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai quoted a series of production figures which were not only the first to be released by any Chinese source for 13 years, but also reassungly close to the guesses of the best informed outside observers.

The Chou interview presumably meant that China's economic planners, after the traumatic experiences of the Great Leap Forward (1958-60) and the Cultural Revolution (1966-69), were once again confident enough to display their achievements to the outside, and the welcome China has subsequently given to a selected band of western journalists and businessmen has underlined this point still further.

But if China is once again showing its face to others, and even encouraging them to come and see for themselves, it does not follow that the expression on the face is easy to read. These doubts apply above all to the state of the Chinese economy.

The paradox which strikes a visitor to China today is that the country is both relatively affluent and at the same time forbiddingly austere.

The city of Canton, the largest in south China and by any standards an important economic center, has the style and appearance which would be natural to a quiet provincial town in any other Asian country.

The plain cotton trousers and jackets of its people make no distinction by sex. The buildings do not seem to have had a coat of paint for many years, and the occasional car hoots continuously as it overtakes flocks of bicycles and pedestrians.

In the countryside around Canton it is still possible to see women pushing heavily loaded hand-carts or peasants working by the thousands on a construction project where the main tools are the pick and the straw basket.

Yet while in matters like these China is far more backward than say, Indonesia, it is in many other ways infinitely more advanced.

The endless green rice paddies of the Pearl River basin have some of the highest yields in Asia outside Japan and are steadily becoming still more productive as the People's Commune year by year add to their irrigation networks and experiment with imported or indigenous verions of the new short-stalked rice (the strains which, elsewhere in Asia, have been hastening the "green revolution").

In Canton itself, shabby buildings may hide well-stocked department stores selling transistors, watches and sewing machines as well as the ubiquitous vacuum flask from which every Chinese family serves an apparently endless succession of cups, of tea.

The counters selling consumer durables at the store I visited were doing even brisker business than the one dealing in the works of Chairman Mao.

Their prices may have been high—even a sewing machine, which is one of the most popular buys in present-day China, costs around $41, or nearly two months' wages for an average factory worker, and wrist watches are apparently only slightly cheaper.

Yet roughly half the 12,000-odd families in a big rice-growing commune I visited outside Canton were equipped with sewing machines, and about as many had bicycles.

In a poorer and remoter mountain commune 80 miles north of the city no fewer than 90 per cent of the families have their own bank accounts.

The explanation for the apparent discrepancy between medieval simplicity and this highly specialized form of affluence is not that some people are significantly richer than others or that income levels are unevenly distributed between countryside and town.

It is quite simply that China is one of the most highly disciplined countries in the world — and the discipline spreads far beyond the enforcement of a particular pattern of consumer spending.

The factory workers of Canton and the commune workers in the neighboring countryside are not only using their money to buy the things their government wishes them to buy, they are exercising an exemplary self-restraint in not demanding many other things which China is capable of producing in quantity.

They are also saving an unprecedented proportion of their modest wages (about 50 per cent in the case of my interpreter, whose own and his wife's savings come to 120 yuan a month, or 30 per cent in the case of a poorer agricultural family).

They are doing so, not because of the modest 3 1-3 per cent interest offered by the state savings bank on time deposits, but because they have been exhorted to save by everyone from Chairman Mao down to the local party official.

Finally—and once again in conformity with the chairman's wishes—every factory, every commune, and even every school in China, appears to be falling over itself to avoid buying from an outside source (even a "fraternal factory") any article that can be made on the spot.

The doctrine of self sufficiency, or, as the Chinese would put it, "solving problems in accordance with the brilliant thought of Chairman Mao Tse-tung," is one of the most remarkable aspects of China's economic system.

Names For Parks To Be Sought

Name suggestions for three parks planned in Rohnert Park are being sought by the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission.

Recreation Director James Pekkain said the commission decided at its meeting Monday to gather suggestions for names and to make a final decision at its June 28 meeting.

The planned parks include the regional park east of the Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course near Snyder Lane and two neighborhood parks, one in the planned Holiday Park subdivision and the other in the El Colegio subdivision.

The commission also scheduled a work session on its preliminary 1971-72 budget for May 19 at 7:45 p.m. at the Benecia Park Recreation building.

Warrant Issued In Auto Theft

A bench warrant was issued yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for William Wesley Hazelton, 20, of Belmont, when he failed to appear for a preliminary hearing.

Judge David Menary Jr. set bail on the warrant at $10,000.

Hazelton is charged with stealing a car owned by a San Bruno man and possessing marijuana when he was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Feb. 8.

Doors To Five Schools Closed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Five public elementary schools were closed Monday because of potential earthquake hazards, giving 3,000 students a two-day holiday until transfer to safer buildings.

The children will be moved to other schools Wednesday under a plan worked out by Superintendent Thomas A. Shaheen.

The main building of Polytechnic High School will be closed Wednesday because of the same danger.

The five closed schools were Argonne, Fairmont, Grant, Monroe, and Webster.

Three Earn Eagle Awards

Three Tamalpais High School students, all members of Boy Scout Troop 34, will receive the Eagle Scout award at a court of honor at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Mill Valley Community Church.

They are Stephen R. Wallace, David Norall and Samuel Cook.

Wallace, 16, is a sophomore at Tam High and a member of the sophomore wrestling team, this year winning the Most Improved Wrestler award. His hobbies include motorcycling, sailing, camping, skiing and bicycling. He plans a bicycle tour of Europe this summer with a youth hostel group.

Wallace's Eagle Scout community service project was rebuilding 15 steps between Cascade Drive and Marion Avenue.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wallace of 165 Marion Avenue, Mill Valley.

Norall, 15, is a sophomore and has belonged to the school's honor society since entering Tam. His hobbies include swimming, water polo, bicycling and tennis.

He was named honor scout at summer camp at Kibby Lake in 1969. His Eagle project was planning and carrying out the troop's display on small craft and water safety in the 1970 Marin Scout-O-Rama.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Norall of 236 Morning Sun Avenue, Mill Valley.

Cook, 18, is a senior at the high school. His hobbies include handball, hiking and camping, gardening and studying edible plants.

He has been a scout for six years. He will be a counselor at Marin Sierra Boy Scout Camp this summer.

His Eagle project was mapping out a trail which runs from Mill Valley to Point Reyes National Seashore.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cook of 2 Del Casa Drive, Mill Valley.

Epilepsy Rate

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Epilepsy occurs in every 20th Danish family, says the Danish Epilepsy Society in a booklet aimed at ending discrimination against victims of the disease and widen public knowledge of it. The society says modern medicines can cure or at least minimize the disease.

Professor Fined For Obstructing Police Officer

REDWOOD CITY (UPI)— Bruce Franklin, the suspended Stanford University English professor, pleaded guilty Tuesday to obstructing an officer in the performance of his duties.

Franklin was fined $675. He paid promptly after the judge said a six-month probationary period would be lifted if the fine was paid within 10 days.

Franklin was arrested Jan. 23 by Sheriff Deputy James Burns, who said the professor attacked him during a Redwood City demonstration.

The judge dismissed an assault charge against Franklin.

Bound Over In Drugs Case

Gary Joel Rosenberg, 24, of no known address, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of possessing mescaline.

He is to be arraigned in superior court June 9.

Rosenberg was arrested Jan. 8 when sheriff's deputies found a bag of suspected drugs when he was being booked for traffic warrants.

A PORK ROAST with a Mexican flavor glazed with a tasty sauce is ideal for those who don't like chili, yet do like a zippy glaze with the meat. It can be served with refried beans, tortillas and guacamole over shredded lettuce.

First Stop On World Cuisine Tour — Mexico

Though all will agree the best policy for exploring new cuisines is to travel, it is not always possible. This being the case, start your family on a world tour by preparing new, tempting foods from around the world. Make your first stop Mexico with spicy roast pork a la Acapulco.

This spicy pork roast is typical of all Mexico. It is baked slowly and glazed with a tasty sauce, as Mexicans generally believe that nothing should be eaten without some type of sauce. This traditional pork entree is ideal for those who do not like chili yet want a zippy glaze.

The fact that there is an abundant supply of pork at present makes this roast a treat indeed for the economy minded. Further, pork is highly nutritious and provides the highest quality protein.

Serve spicy roast pork a la Acapulco with refried beans topped with grated cheese, relish tray, guacamole over shredded lettuce, Mexican cornbread or tortillas, wine or fruit punch and a pudding, custard or cooked fruit dessert with coffee.

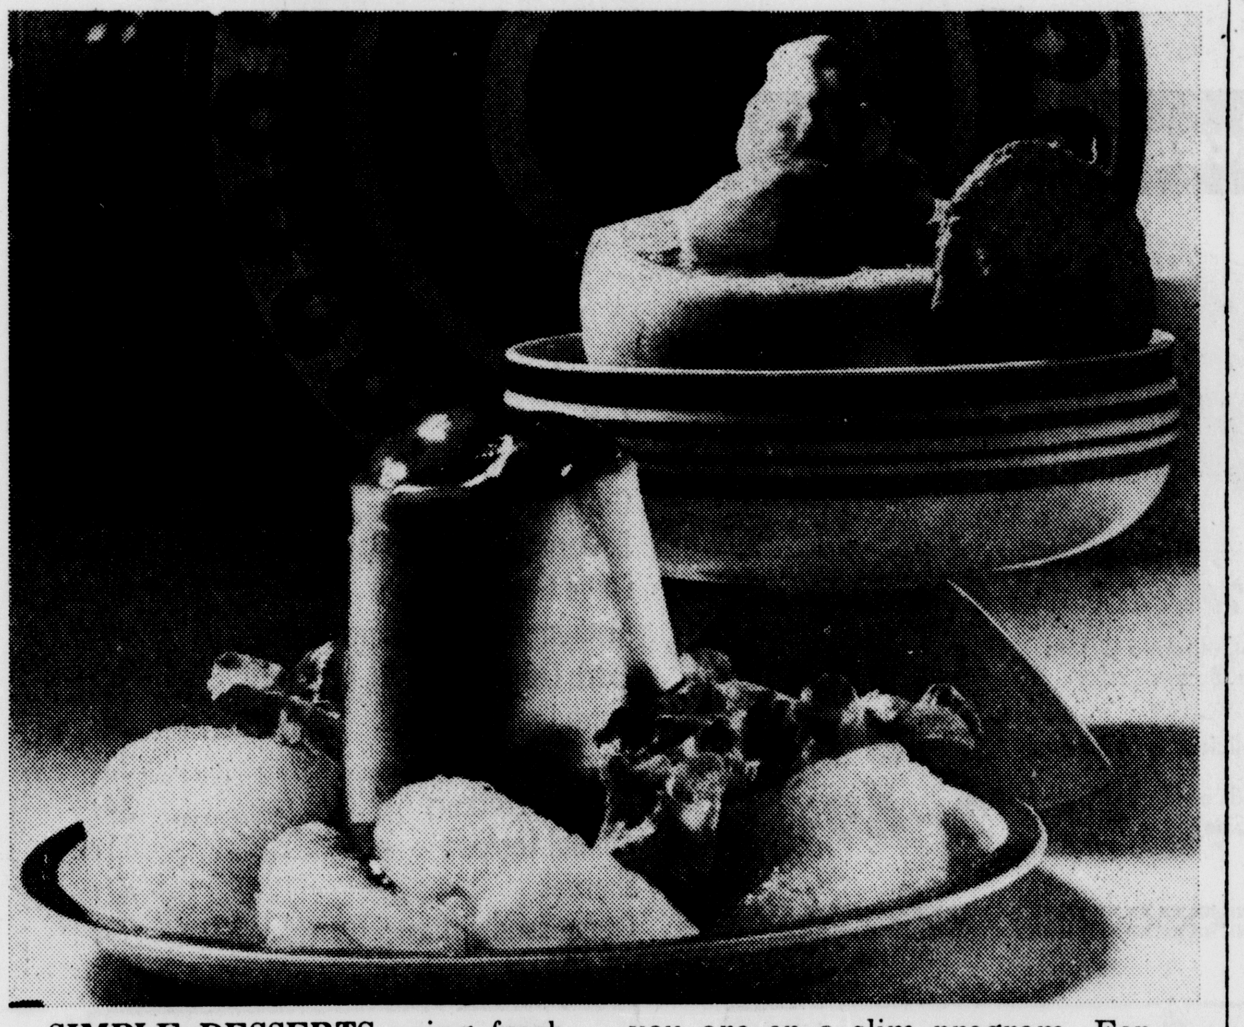
SPICY ROAST PORK A LA ACAPULCO

1 teaspoon ground coriander seed
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic, mashed
4 to 5 pound pork loin roast
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons soy sauce

Combine coriander, salt, pepper and garlic; mix well. Rub over outside of roast. Place meat on rack in shallow uncovered roasting pan. Bake in slow oven 325 degrees until meat is fork tender, two and three quarter to three hours, or until roast reaches an internal temperature of 170 degrees. Prepare glaze.

Combine and mix sugar and cornstarch. Stir in vinegar, water and soy sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Brush roast well with glaze several times during last 30 minutes of roasting. Serve remaining glaze with roast. Makes six to eight servings.



SIMPLE DESSERTS using fresh grapefruit are good for lunch or dinner. In front is the dessert of grapefruit sections combined with frozen fruit-flavored yogurt. It also can serve as lunch itself if you are on a slim program. For dinner dessert is grapefruit raspberry rum — grapefruit halves topped with cream drizzled with raspberry jam and rum sauce.

Frozen Yogurt With Grapefruit Is Quick, Simple, Healthful

Frozen yogurt with grapefruit is a to-your-health-sundae that is quick and simple at lunchtime. Your favorite fruit yogurt, unmolded and served with pale, golden or pink sections of juicy grapefruit.

Or grapefruit raspberry rum, a sophisticated dessert to serve for company. Even when they're unexpected, it can be whipped up quickly.

GRAPEFRUIT AND FROZEN YOGURT

2 cartons (8 oz. each) fruit flavored yogurt
2 grapefruit
Lttuce

At least two and one half hours before serving place yogurt in freezer. At serving time, peel grapefruit, removing all pulp and membrane, and divide into segments. Unmold yogurt from cartons and place in center of lettuce on serving plate. Arrange grapefruit segments around yogurt.

Makes two servings.

Try Watercress Salad Next

1 bunch watercress
2 medium oranges
½ small green pepper, slivered
3 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
½ teaspoon seasoning salt
¼ teaspoon salt

Remove heavy part of stems from watercress; wash in cold water, drain and dry in a towel; there should be five cups loosely packed; chill. Cut, peel away from oranges so they are membrane free; slice medium thick; quarter each round; chill. At serving time toss together the cress, oranges, green pepper, oil, vinegar, seasoning salt and salt.

GRAPEFRUIT RUM RASPBERRY DESSERT

2 cartons (8 oz. each) fruit flavored yogurt
2 grapefruit
Lttuce
Whipped cream

Loosen grapefruit from membrane and chill. In a small saucepan, simmer jam with rum and cinnamon for a few minutes. Strain out seeds. Cool. Top grapefruit with a dab of whipped cream and a spoonful of sauce.

Makes four servings.

A Quick Dressing

Make a quick and unusual dressing for cole slaw or chicken or fish salad by thinning one cup of mayonnaise with 3 tablespoons of frozen grapefruit or orange-grapefruit concentrate.

Stretching A Pound Of Ground Beef

Without a doubt ground beef is the fastest moving cut of beef. This suggestion stretches a pound of lean ground beef into an extra serving or two.

Follow the simple directions for making the beef loaf mixture and for rolling it with an inside stuffing. It's the kind of recipe you can double to make and bake one now and make another to store in the freezer.

ROLLED BEEF LOAF

1 egg
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ pounds ground lean beef
Stuffing

Combine lightly beaten egg with crumbs, milk, mustard, salt and pepper. When milk is absorbed, mix in beef lightly with fork. Turn out onto sheet of wax paper and shape into 8x12-inch rectangle. Spread stuffing evenly over beef. Using paper to lift beef, roll up as for jelly roll, starting from shorter side. Place on shallow pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° degrees) about 1 hour.

Makes six to eight servings.

Stuffing: Combine one quart soft bread crumbs with one-quarter cup melted butter, one tablespoon instant minced onion, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon sage, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and one-half cup chopped celery.

A Baked Potato Is Not Fattening

Diet-conscious people who avoid potatoes as if they were ice cream sundaes don't know what they're missing. A medium-sized spud, boiled, baked or pressure-cooked provides only about 100 calories, or about as many as a large apple or an orange. That same spud contains worthwhile amounts of Vitamin C, two important B-vitamins and the minerals iron, phosphorus and potassium.

Naturally, sauces or gravies or fats used in frying will add calories. But baked or boiled potatoes moistened with a little skim milk and seasoned with salt, pepper, herbs such as parsley and onion make delicious but low-calorie eating.

Dress Up Dinner With Wheat Germ Muffins

The custom of serving a sweet bread with the main course of a meal is typically American and a good one. So dress up dinner with these wheat germ molasses squares, hot from the oven, and pass the butter or margarine.

WHEAT GERM MOLASSES SQUARES

3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugared honey wheat germ
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. soda
2 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
1 cup light molasses
½ cup sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup canned applesauce
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped walnuts

Measure flour, wheat germ, baking powder, soda and spices onto wax paper. Stir well to blend. Combine molasses, sugar and butter in large saucepan. Cook over medium heat until butter melts, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in applesauce and egg. Add blended dry ingredients. Mix well. Stir in raisins and nuts. Spread in greased 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm with butter. Yield: 20 servings.

A Tasty Idea For A Brunch

Here's a good breakfast or brunch special. Combine half cup each of butter and firmly packed brown sugar and one tablespoon of light corn syrup; bring to a boil in saucepan, stirring constantly. Pour into five-and-a-half cup ring mold or a 9 by 5-inch loaf pan and tilt to coat sides and bottom. Sprinkle with half cup of chopped toasted filberts.

Prepare rolled biscuits from a mix, using two and a half cups mix and three-quarters of a cup of milk. Stand biscuits on sides and place around the ring pan or in two rows in loaf pan. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven 30 to 40 minutes, or until biscuits are well browned. Invert onto serving plate, let stand five minutes, then remove pan. Makes six servings.

Four-Inch Heels Presented By Geoffrey Beene For This Fall

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Just when women got comfortable in shoes with sensible heel heights, guess what some of the nation's fashion designers have in store for fall and winter. Four-inch heels!

These heels showed throughout the daytime collection of designer Geoffrey Beene Monday and it may be a sign that fashion is escalating a backlash to women's lib. Beene's was one of the first showings by major designers now previewing fall wear for store buyers.

EVERY WOMAN knows nothing hobbles her worse than really high heels, the kind meant for teetering on. The heels in Beene's collection were by the award-winning husband-wife team of shoe architects, Herbert and Beth Levine.

Another possible women's lib backlash in the Beene collection was the way he cold-shouldered long pants, now a staple of every well-dressed woman's cold weather wardrobe.

He had one novelty pants suit in light blue and black satin — and one black jumpsuit. All the rest were skirts.

Put women back in skirts, balance them on high heels and any dame knows she won't be as liberated as she is currently —especially in her ability to get from here to there swiftly and comfortably.

THE HIGH heels and the ladylike skirts — over the knee but no midi, mind you — are part of the nation's fashion trek back to the 1940s. For daytime the ladylike silhouetes so saturated the Beene collection that hats and gloves were shown throughout.

The hats were crushed pillboxes, worn slouched to the right, covering the ear on that side. The bared ear on the other side always sported one prune-sized, flattened pearl earring.

For evening the hats came off and wigs went on —the chin length hair covering the right side of the face completely. The evening look was most influenced by the headlines. At least the outstanding of the evening collection included mandarin silhouettes and, on occasion, sequins embroidered in the shape of Chinese dragons.

THE DAYTIME look Beene endorsed was mostly wool in muted colors — dark green, black, maroon, accented by orange or red piping. Bodices on dresses clung to the anatomy, sleeves were long and skirts were ladylike via inverted pleats and soft gathers.

Suit jackets were ample, frequently having flat shawl collars that were shoulder-wide, worn flat or standing up.

And the daytime coats?

Mostly wraparounds. The 1940s, you know. Remember?

The 'Liberated' Woman Causes E. German Havoc

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI)—The clashing views of East Germany's liberated women and its conventional men are boosting the nation's divorce rate and even causing a ruckus about advertising for soap flakes.

The "lib" is worrying the government. The Communists are happy that women have turned their backs on the old Nazi slogan of "kinder, kueche, kirche" (children, kitchen, church) to such an extent that 75 per cent of all women are either working or studying. In West Germany, the figure is 37 per cent.

BUT THE Communists call the family "the smallest cell of society", or the "smallest party cell" and they want liberated women to keep on being wives.

Too often, women are deciding that a husband plus a job are too much of a burden and are discarding the husband. Or, their refusal to do all of the household chores alone after a hard day's work causes a quarrel that ends in the divorce court.

Since 1958, the East German divorce rate has increased from 1.3 per 1000 persons to 1.7 per 1000 and Dr. Franz Thoms, East German supreme court justice, says it will go still higher.

Why?

Because the emancipated woman often feels she does not need a husband. And, because many men have developed inferiority complexes as their wives' earning power surpasses their own.

Thoms, in a study of divorces, concludes that "the vast majority of those suing... are women."

EAST GERMANY leaders probably did not realize how emancipated their women were until they brought out a new soap flakes called "Spee". The soap box has a picture of a woman — an attractive young woman — on it.

The manufacturers, newspapers and government agencies were deluged with letters. Some samples:

Gerlinde Bigesse, of Potsdam, wrote, "Such a relapse in the past to accompany a new product. The woman belongs at the wash tub and the precious man is to be waited on hand and foot... the smiling girl on the Spee box is nothing more than a justification of this outmoded theory."

Inge Lorenz, of Leipzig, wrote, "The new soap flakes seem to be good. But doesn't the box cling to the old conception that only women have an interest in soap flakes?"

Expert Explains Narcotics Use

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Dale C. Cameron, chief medical officer of the Drug Dependence Unit of the World Health Association (WHO), reports that five important motives probably figure in drug use. As he lists them in WHO's journel, "World Health," they are:

—To escape from something; to have a new, pleasurable or thrilling experience; to achieve improved understanding or insight; to achieve a sense of belonging; to express independence and sometimes hostility.

PATIENTS BENEFIT

Nurse Finds Acting Helps

Mary Ellen McCurdy spends her weekends rehearsing for the role of Pegeen, the female lead in this year's Mountain Play production, "Playboy of the Western World."

Her weekdays are spent working in the isolation ward of Marin General Hospital.

"As a nurse I try to help people," says the Mill Valley woman, "and acting has been a great love since college. The two together give me as much of a well rounded life as possible."

Her dramatic training has augmented the medical and technical she has received to make her a better licensed vocational nurse, since, "a nurse should also be a bit of an actress in order to give her patients extra cheer or understanding."

In addition to the cheer, she says, her acting has produced some unusual hospital happenings.

"Patients have recognized me from stage work and asked me to recreate a scene they remember," she says.

Nursing has helped her acting also. Patients with foreign accents have helped her develop accents she needed for various roles.

"Acting is a great outlet," she says. "It is a way to relax, to extend your life into new areas and even experiment with your personality. The great acting coaches are almost like the great psychologists."

Mrs. McCurdy appeared in Sausalito Little Theatre productions of "Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Children's Hour." After an illness stopped her acting for three years, she decided to go into nursing and returned to school to study for an LVN degree.

She is also a student of kundalini yoga, which she describes as physical movement, concentration in trying to block off areas of the body to keep energy inside and allow total meditation.

Although she is not new to the role of Pegeen, having appeared in the Jack Aranson production of "Playboy of the Western World" in Sausalito several years ago, rehearsals have been numerous.

"Audiences can be assured there is an actress on the stage that will be doing her best to offer entertainment and enjoyment," she says. "When I see just a moment's cheer, either in the patients or with an audience, then I know I've done something, just a little something for someone else, and that is a truly magnificient feeling."

The 54th annual Mountain Play will be performed May 23 and 30 at 2 p.m. at the outdoor amphitheater on Mt. Tamalpais.

Bjornskov, Ellsberg Plan Vows

Nuptials are planned June 11 by Mary Dawn Ellsberg of San Rafael and Andre Thompsen Bjornskov Jr. of Greenbrae.

Mary is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alan William Ellsberg of Terra Linda and the sister of Patrick, Robert and Suzanne Ellsberg, all of San Rafael. Mrs. C. O. Glestad of Menlo Park is her grandmother.

A graduate of Terra Linda High School, she attends the College of Marin and is employed with the Princess Beauty Shop in Terra Linda.

Andre is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Thompson Bjornskov of Greenbrae and the brother of Elizabeth and Diana Bjornskov. Pieter A. de Vries of San Francisco is his grandfather.

Andre is a Redwood High School graduate and is attending the College of Marin. He is employed with the Marin Jewish Community Center.

Robert Parnow Will Marry Trisha Clifford

Mrs. Eugene S. Clifford is announcing the engagement of her daughter Trisha to Robert Parnow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Parnow, all of San Rafael.

Trisha is the sister of Mrs. Walter Mollison of Mill Valley, Mrs. Richard Gilardi and Sars Clifford of San Francisco and Mike, Rick, Margaret, Shirley, John and David Clifford of San Rafael. Mrs. James R. Kelly of Pacific Grove is her grandmother. She was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin. She will be graduated from Bauder Fashion College in Sacramento in June.

Robert is the brother of Tappy, Pat, Katie, Pete, Tim, Mark, CiCi, Trish, Mary and Noel Parnow, all of San Rafael. He is the grandson of Mrs. Thelma Buchignani of San Anselmo and Mrs. Francis Parnow of San Rafael. He was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin. He is a contractor in San Rafael.

The couple plans to be married at St. Raphael's church on June 13.

Changes Noted On Food Buying Habits

A recent survey by an advertising agency shows that the head of household has changed food buying habits. He or she is more concerned with cost and quality than convenience and brands since faced with higher prices.

In addition they watch the sales, they substitute less expensive foods and plan menus in advance and do more food preparation in the home kitchen.

Raw Meat

Wash hands with soap and water after handling raw meat and poultry and before touching other foods.

MILK PUNCH

Sure. Milk Punch. It's quick and easy, and a fresh new way to serve a fresh, cool favorite: Foremost Vitamin D Milk. Just mix these things all together and pretend it's New Year's Eve:

Milk Punch
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup honey
1½ qts. Foremost milk
1 cup fresh strawberries sliced (or fruit of your choice)

Add cinnamon, nutmeg, salt and honey to milk. Beat to blend thoroughly. Add fresh fruit and chill at least ½ hour. Makes 12 punch cup servings.

Foremost. The Freshmost.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

'The Conquering' Hero Should Be Tossed Out Flat On His Posterior

DEAR HELEN:

Hail the eternal Romeo! May his many conquests fill his handsome head with bursting pride.

May he never stop to think of the warm, earthy female he belittles and badgers at home when he is on the trail of a new filly. May he never be concerned with her human needs as he is busy hoarding all his ammunition for the new affair. Can't put out two fires at once, you know, but never must his deprived (and still sexy) wife run around on him, or she is promptly labeled a slut and a trollop. (She doesn't.)

May this Don Juan's children never notice the gross neglect of their mother, and his indifference to them, but keep on thinking of him as their "idol." May they shrug off his chasing of young, middleaged and even older dames as "Well, that's Pop for you," or "Can we help it if they fall all over him?" May he never run out of sex drive, for he has nothing else.

Let me, the wife, be the first to shout, "Hail, the conquering hero! — CHASER'S MATE

P.S. MAY HE DROP DEAD!

DEAR C.M.:

Why haven't you shouted long ago: "To Hell with the 'Conquesting' zero!"

P.S. Someday he may, but don't waste your life waiting. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My mistakes started early. I am 23, have three children, ages seven, five and three. Now I'm trying to straighten out my life. I'm off welfare and work every day, and I want to marry the man I'm living with, but there are complications.

He had been separated eight years, but not divorced. Last year his wife was killed in an accident. Since then he has been sending money to support her five children who live with an aunt. But Helen, only two of them are his!

If we marry, that will mean eight kids we have to support, and I can't see taking responsibility for three that don't belong to him. Their aunt is bringing them up to call him "Dad," and it isn't honest, besides being very expensive.

I want a real father for my children, but I don't want to be the "mother" of eight at only 23! Should I move out before I make another mistake? — TOO MANY PROBLEMS

DEAR TMP:

Your letter never once mentioned love — which seems doubly important with all that motherhood. Don't turn this temporary arrangement into marriage unless you are sure you can handle all the little problems. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My wife and I have been married seven years. My mother-in-law never fails to give me a birthday and Christmas present. Very thoughtful, BUT — a sewing machine, a rug shampooer, a set of baking dishes? Once she gave me a ski sweater, but it was size 36. I wear a 42, so my wife got it.

Is she trying to tell me something? — BILL

DEAR BILL:

Yes: Like, she would not love you half so well, loved she not her daughter more. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Consume All Meat That Is Produced

The people in the United States consume all of the beef, veal, pork and lamb the nation's livestock industry can produce. This is more than any other country in the world.

But individually, we don't eat as much red meat as they do in New Zealand where per capita red meat consumption is 222 pounds, nor Argentina and Australia, at 211 pounds, reports the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

U. S. Affluence

The United States, with only 6 per cent of the world's population, consumes 40 per cent of the world's raw materials, excluding foodstuffs, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

SMART SHOPPER

Students Gain In Full Food Labeling

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Would you approve of growing children drinking all the coffee they want during the day?

Most people would answer with a resounding "no." Almost everyone knows that coffee contains caffeine, a powerful stimulant that can be harmful in a number of ways, especially for children.

Yet few parents realize that children consume substantial amounts of caffeine when they drink quantities of cola drinks.

Caffeine is present to some degree in all cola drinks. In fact, the law requires any cola drink to have caffeine in it. Otherwise, it cannot be labeled as cola.

BUT, HAPPILY for the manufacturers, the law does not require labels to disclose the presence of caffeine except in "diet" drinks. Nor does the law require labeling of some 80 other optional ingredients that can be added to cola to help promote fizzing, preserve chemical stability or for other purposes. Among these other goodies are:

Brominated vegetable oils, carob bean gum, glycerol ester of wood resin, gual gum, gum acacia, gum trag acanth, hydoxylated lecithin, methylcellulose, mono- and diglycerides of fat-forming fatty acids, pectin, polyglycerol esters of fatty acids, propylene glycol alginate and sodium alginate.

Federal law also does not require the labeling of monosodium glutamate or coconut oil in mayonnaise.

IF YOU don't think that such ingredients should be kept secret from buyers of these products, then you have something in common with LABEL, the acronym for Law Students' Association for Buyers' Education and Labeling.

The group was formed at George Washington University in connection with a course conducted by Prof. John Banzhaf, the man whose law suit led to the banning of cigarette advertisements on radio and television.

Known as "Banzhaf's Bandits," the students have formally petitioned the Food and Drug Administration to order the labeling of all ingredients in food products. And the agency has accepted the petition and decided to seek comments from the public.

Their petition notes the fact that products with accepted "standards of identity" are not required to list all ingredients on the label, while products without such standards are required to do so and put them in descending order of their importance in the product.

THE RESULT, say the students, is confusion in the minds of buyers.

The students quote from an FDA publication in 1968 proclaiming that "food products are labeled with required information to guide and protect the consumer."

Not in all cases, say the students, adding:

"The fact that major ingredients, such as caffeine, MSG, milk and eggs, are not listed on labels of standardized products conflicts with the policy and Congressional mandate of promoting honest and fair dealing in the interest of the consumer."

BUT THE students say they need letters of support from the public addressed to the FDA Hearing Clerk, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20852. They urge that copies to sent to LABEL, Inc., Room 226, 2020 F Street N.W., Washington, D.C.

Chocolate Tips

All types of chocolate can be refrigerated. But be sure to seal them tightly so they don't take on odors or moisture from other foods. Chocolate becomes hard and brittle when refrigerated. It should be returned to room temperature before eating, to protect the teeth.

Candidate For Queen

Sheri James of White Pines, formerly of Mill Valley, is a candidate for the title of Miss Calaveras in conjunction with the county fair and frog-jumping jubilee at Angel's Camp tomorrow.

She attended Tamalpais High School, and now is a junior at Calaveras High School.

She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Tom H. James of White Pines, formerly of Mill Valley.

Perishable Item

Handle ground beef as you would perishables. Plan to use ground beef one or two days after purchase. To store for a longer period, shape into patties, place on waxed paper on a tray and freeze until firm. Then remove the beef patties from tray and package in plastic moistureproof bags for the freezer.

Hotpants, Knickers Top Fashions

Everything's coming up spring this time of year — new, fresh, and different after a long winter's nap.

Whether you've spent your winter bundled in woolen underwear, or basking in abikini, you're probably ready for a change in your look — and outlook.

PANTS ARE the hot fashion item, particularly HotPants. If you're over twenty-five, you called them "short shorts" back in the 1950s. Today, they're designed by couturiers and worn with patterned hose and boots, or topped by tunics and long, slit skirts. And the fashion pace-setters who choose HotPants will want sizzling new chromes and metal sunglasses to complete the look. "Chromatics" are available in both gold and silver finishes, with pierced metal racing temples and a wide range of lens tints.

Another pant look for spring is knickers. Available in fabrics from velvet to denim, knickers are kicks for daytime or night. For a high-flying fashion accent, wear them with popular metal "aviators". Choose either the "Amelia E's" or the latest "Eye-Flyers," a set of four interchangeable aviator and oval lenses in the new darker tints of demi-amber, brown, grey, and blue.

If you're the "elusive" type who prefers to suggest rather than reveal, wear the pants with slits.

Rite To Be In August

Karen Joyce Pohoriles and Richard Stewart Arrow, both of San Francisco, are planning an Aug. 15 wedding at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Announcement of the engagement was made by the future bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Pohoriles of San Anselmo.

The future bride is the sister of Bruce Pohoriles of Greenbrae and the granddaughter of Mrs. Dora Block of San Francisco. She was graduated from Redwood High School and College of Marin. Following graduation she worked on a kibbutz in Israel. She is employed in the University of the Pacific endodontic laboratory in San Francisco.

Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Arrow of Terra Linda and the brother of Michael Arrow and Mrs. Jay Trenchard. A graduate of Terra Linda High school, he attends San Francisco State College.

League Of Women Voters Pick Slate

Mrs. David Rose, newly elected president of the League of Women Voters of Southern Marin for 1971-73, says, "I believe the League of Women Voters is one of the most effective of political organizations. Its prime purpose is to promote an informed and active electorate and in keeping with this purpose it has maintained a nonartisan policy."

A member of the league five years, the new president has served as chairman of voters service, membership and program. She says among her goals for her term in office will be continuation and expansion of voter education projects and the informal coffees open to the community in which prominent persons have the opportunity to express their views, and the audience has the opportunity to question them.

Kay Rose was born in Minnesota, and grew up in Minnesota and Iowa. She received B.S. and M.A. degrees in dance and related arts from Texas Women's Univeristy. She taught dance four years at Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga., in addition to conducting various dance seminars at colleges and universities and serving as state dance chairman for Georgia.

Kay lives with her husband, David, and American Airlines pilot, in Mill Valley. In addition to the league her interests include drama, dance and playing various musical instruments.

Other newly elected officers are Mmes. Roger J. Fleischmann, first vice president; Florine Miller, second vice president; Frederica Leach, secretary, and Phillip Pease, treasurer. New board of directors members are Mmes. Jules Becker, John Eiler, Roy D. Knapp, William McDougal, Thomas Rogers, R. C. Shaughnessy and Dale Williamson.

Tips On Steaks

When shopping for a steak consider these tips. The beef steak should have fine, firm texture, bright color and be moist. Thin lines of fat marbling running through the beef is another point to check.

Lagunitas P-TA Picks Officers

Mrs. Ted Van Midde of Woodacre has been re-elected president of the Lagunitas School Parent-Teacher Association for the year.

A 16-year resident of Marin and a 16-year member of the P-TA, Mrs. Van Midde has served the group as president, vice president, secretary and membership chairman. She is also active with the San Geronimo Valley Presbyterian Church and the Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Van Midde and her husband, who is assistant manager of Shamrock Materials in San Rafael, are parents of Mrs. Richard Abbott of Farifax and Renee, 11; Teddy, 9, and Mark, 7.

Also serving as P-TA officers for the year are Mmes. William C. White, vice president; Robert Wick, treasurer; Robert Gustafson, corresponding secretary; Allem Kircham, recording secretary; Harry Simon, auditor; and Roger Machin, historian.

Coat More Than Just A Coat

The coat that's just a coat, the skirt-and-jacket suit — where are they this spring? More often than not, they've abandoned their traditional roles to become part of a costume.

A coat adds skirt and top or dress, and probably, pants too, while even the most basic and classic suit is likely to show up with its own ready-coordinated blouse or shirt.

When it appears, the separate coat is usually more than just a coat. It goes the any-weather way, adding to fashion the extra dimension of protection against spring showers.

Separately, as rain-shine companions or as costume components, the season's coats present a new approach to the classics. Reefers, trenches, boy coats shape up smartly for spring.

Wrap coats provide soft coverage.

Budget Strides For Sausalito

A $262,513 public works budget received tentative approval last night from the Sausalito City Council which met with its finance committee in a continuing series of budget study sessions.

The proposed public works spending program for 1971-72 is approximately 27 per cent higher than last year's $190,956 budget. It includes the following expenditures: administration and engineering, $39,099; street improvement, $13,300; street and subdrain maintenance, $113,416; street trees, $28,969; street construction, $22,582 and street lighting and traffic, $33,482.

City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr said the largest public works increases are in street and subdrain maintenance (up from $89,544); street construction (up from $2,367), and street improvements (up from $2,781). He explained the cost rise by saying the city has "been putting off some needed work for years and it must be done."

The council asked Norman Wohlschlaeger, director of public works, to list his department's 20 proposed street improvement projects in order of priority and present the list at its next budget session May 25 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

The council also gave a tentative nod to a $42,758 park budget, down from this year's $74,402 figure because the city plans fewer capital improvements and a $62,673 library budget.

Also approved was a $12,782 recreation budget which includes a new $1,000 expenditure for a recreation program for Sausalito's older residents. St. Cyr said the city will obtain matching funds from the county to set up the program.

Tentative Shoreline Budget Is Adopted

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night approved a tentative budget of $1,196,240 for fiscal 1971-72. It is not expected to change the tax rate.

Trustees also granted teachers and administrators a 4 per cent pay raise, estimated to cost $22,000, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

Although the tentative budget is about $30,000 higher than last year's budget, the tax rate is expected to remain at $3.675 per $100 assessed valuation, according to McCully, because there has been an increase in assessed valuation, due to reassessment from 23 to 25 per cent of market value.

The tentative budget includes establishing a home economics program at Tomales High School and changing the high school counselor from half-time to full-time.

The salary schedule for teachers will range from $7,001 to $13,466; principals will receive $15,912, and Asst. Supt. Anthony Matulich will receive $18,160.

The teachers had been seeking a 10 per cent pay hike, McCully reported.

The Shoreline School Board Also:

ARCHITECT — Hired architects Barnum, Mau and Folsom of Sacramento to plan a new Tomales elementary school, at a fee of 8 per cent if the job is undertaken and $1,500 if it is abandoned.

GRADUATION—Set graduation dates for June 11 at Tomales High School, and June 10 at Tomales and West Marin elementary schools.

CALENDAR—Approved the next school year's calendar of 178 school days, opening Sept. 13 and closing June 16.

NEXT MEETING—Adjourned until 8 p.m. May 20 at the district office in Tomales.

Grand Jury In Three Indictments

A San Francisco man charged with sex perversion and two San Quentin inmates were indicted yesterday by the Marin County Grand Jury.

Carl Leonard Collins, 25, was indicted in connection with a March 27 incident in which a San Francisco man told Tiburon sheriff's deputies that collins had molested his five-year-old son in a public restroom at Paradise park.

Inmate Charges E. Lennon, 28, was indicted on a charge of escape.

Prison officials said Lennon, a convicted rapist-kidnapper from Los Angeles County, fled over the roofs of prison buildings Feb. 28, using a homemade grappling hook and a long rope. He was captured near the Sears Service Center on Highway 101 shortly after getting out of the prison grounds.

Morris Ervin, 24, was charged with possessing a sharp instrument at the prison March 9.

Ervin is serving three sentences, ranging from six months to life imprisonment, for his conviction in San Francisco last year of assault with a deadly weapon, assault with a deadly weapon on a peace officer and first degree robbery.

All three men were ordered to appear Monday in Marin Superior Court for arraignment.

Vet Auditorium Name Change On Radio Panel

The possibility of renaming Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Marin County Civic Center will be discussed at 9 a.m. Thursday on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

The panel will consist of Thomas F. Campanella, assistant county administrator; W. P. "Doc Duhamel, former director of Veteran's Services in Marin County; Arthur E. Wedemeyer Jr., head of the United Veteran's Organization and a fourth panelist to be announced.

Kitty Oppenheimer, moderator, will accept questions during the live broadcast to be heard again at 10:05 a.m. Sunday by tape recording.

Heart Patient Says 'I'm Fine'

CAPE TOWN (UPI)—Dirk Van Zyl, the world's latest heart transplant recipient, was well enough today to eat a light meal, Groote Schuur Hospital said in a medical bulletin.

The bulletin said Van Zyl, 44, was in "excellent" condition, two days after his seven-hour operation.

The South African felt well enough Tuesday night to pass a note through a hospital staff member to his wife and two children. The note read, simply, "I'm fine."

2,300 Sign Air Pollution Initiative

Approximately 2,300 signatures were filed in Marin by Monday's final deadline to qualify a tough air pollution control initiative for a statewide vote.

A similar measure failed to qualify for the 1970 ballot, but then got several thousand more signatures than gathered in Marin in this year's petition campaign.

To get on the ballot this year, 317,000 valid signatures of registered voters will be needed statewide. County elections offices have until May 20 to report their final counts to the secretary of state.

Of 473 signatures filed by the preliminary deadline in March, almost 90 per cent, were verified as matching voter records, reported assistant elections officer Anthony Gullotta. More than one-third of the 1970 signatures were disqualified.

The initiative, pushed by the Los Angeles-based People's Lobby, would phase out leaded gasoline by 1976, set new standards on other gasoline contaminants, shut down polluters until they installed standby control equipment, sharply limit variances, ban new coastal drilling, ban persistent chlorinated hydrocarbons and increase fines.

Girl 5, Hurt In Car Collision

Vickie Ann Kent, 5, of 50 San Benito Way, Novato, suffered a head bump yesterday when she collided with a car while crossing San Ramon Way near San Ramon School.

Novato police reported she was walking eastward when she collided with the right rear of a southbound car driven by Mary Roxann Gray, 34, of 12 Viejo Way, Novato, which had slowed to park. The accident occurred at 11:37 a.m.

Vickie was held at Marin General Hospital for observation and discharged today.

A New Concept In Education Advanced

The Mill Valley School District board has approved in principle an experimental education program for next year but asked the administration for more details on how the system would work.

The concept of the program, called experience in cooperative education, was explained to the board Monday and then referred to district staff for further study.

Supt. James A. Collins said the new program gives students and parents an opportunity to plan educational programs to be applied in the school and to participate in the day-to-day operation of the school.

Collins said about 50 to 60 students would participate next year and that the program could be expanded if successful.

Collins said a parent advisory council would be formed to "increase the involvement of parents and students."

Trustees generally approved of the program, Collins said, provided it does not cost any more than the district ordinarily spends to educate an equal number of students.

If details can be worked out, he said, the program will be housed away from district schools for the first year but ultimately moved back to district facilities.

The Mill Valley School Board Also:

SUMMER SCHOOL — Heard that the Sausalito School District has invited Mill Valley students to take part in Sausalito's summer school program. Mill Valley will hold no summer school this year.

KING — Approved a district holiday on the anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday Jan. 15.

EASTWOOD PROPERTY — Agreed to sell 5.13 acres of land at Eastwood Way and Glenwood Avenue in Tamalpais Valley to the Tamalpais Community Services District for $66,500.

LEAVES — Approved one-year leaves for teachers Richard Ponzio of Strawberry Point School, Janet Visick of Edna Maguire School and Judith Williams of Marin Terrace School.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Katharine Ryan, teacher coordinator at Edna Maguire.

DISMISSALS — Notified seven part-time teachers they would not be rehired next year for budgetary reasons. They are Janet Butcher, Fern Rynechi, Ruth Ragle, Laura Messer, Michael Schoob, Carmelita Crane and Marilyn Carroll.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired two math-science teachers for Edna Maguire: Patrick Harris, who will receive $8,718 per year and Gerald Nuijen, $8,496.

PROMOTION — Named Patrick McDonough, coordinator at Edna Maguire, to be vice principal at Homestead School.

Variety Show Set May 21

An original variety show called "The Second Greatest Show" will be presented at 8 p.m. May. 21 at Sleepy Hollow School by seventh and eighth grade students at Hidden Valley School.

The students will present a chorus, oriental dance, pantomine skits on school rallies, according to publicity chairman Marie Whitermore.

Proceeds from the show will be used for special school projects, extracurricular activities or landscaping the school grounds, Mrs. Whitermore said. Refreshments will be served.

Teen-Agers In Burglary Arrest

Two San Francisco teenagers were booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of burglary after they were arrested in Sausalito by police who had received a report of a burglary in progress.

Barbara Lynn Stephens, 18, and Randy Turner, 19, were apprehended about 1:24 p.m. at the Philip J. Bailey home, 61 Crecienta Drive. Police, acting on a tip, arrived at the house and said they saw Turner coming out the front door and found Miss Stephens inside.

Officers reported a front window had been smashed and said a quantity of stereo equipment was discovered piled by the door of the house.

Miss Stephens was being held in lieu of $1,875 bail to appear today in Marin Muncipal Court and Turner was freed on $1,875 bail to appear tomorrow in court.

E. Petaluma Attack On Billboards

East Petaluma Civic Association directors last night found fault with billboards and fences in Petaluma.

President Marvin Hale said the directors approved a resolution seeking an appeal of a sign variance granted last month by the Sonoma County Planning Commission.

The commission approved the request of Ryan Sign Co. for a billboard to advertise the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery products on Highway 101 at the south edge of Petaluma. Hale said the association would appeal the variance to the county board of supervisors.

Hale said the association also approved a letter to the Petaluma City Council objecting to fences exceeding the six-foot height limitation being constructed in the Boise Cascade subdivision. He said some backyard fences are as high as eight feet and constitute eyesores.

The association directors also agreed to schedule a meeting next week with representatives of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce to discuss current and future Chamber plans.

Freight Trains Hit On Curve, Kill Four

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (UPI) — Two Burlington-Northern freight trains collided head-on on a curve six miles north of here about midnight, killing four men and injuring two others, one critically.

A spokesman for B-N at the Montana division headquarters in Billings said the cause of the accident was not yet known nor was the extent of damage.

'Miss Vickie' Has A Girl

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Tiny Tims have a tiny one.

A six-pound, 10-ounce girl was born Monday at Doctor's Hospital to "Miss Vickie," the wife of entertainer Tiny Tim.

A spokesman said both mother and daughter were doing well. A name has not been chosen for the child.

It was the first child for Tiny Tim, falsetto- voiced singer whose real name is Herbert Khoury. He is 38.

The couple was wed on a national television show in December, 1969.

PREMIER BALLET — Soloists Jane Thelen and David White present a picture of grace in movement dancing "Turangalila," an original modern ballet created for Marin Civic Ballet by Norbert Visak. Visak came to Marin in January after seeing Marin dancers during the summer session of the Banff School of Fine Arts in Canada.

Showcase Of Ballets Due May 27

A showcase of six ballets will be presented at 8 p.m. May 27 by the Marin Civic Ballet at the College of Marin Theater.

Included in the program are "Turangalila," "Pas de Quatre," "Pas de Deux," "Trois Gymnopedies," "Q.E.D." and "Golden Moments of Ballet."

"Turangalila" is a modern ballet created exclusively for the Marin company by Norbert Visak, choreographer from Vancouver, Canada. It will have its first performance at the Pacific Regional Ballet Festival on May 16 in Pasadena. Jane Thelen of San Rafael and David White of Corte Madera are soloists in the ballet.

The classic ballet "Pas de Quatre", was originally choreographed in 1845 by Perrot. It is a competition among four ballerinas. Martha Feitz of Corte Madera, Carol Brannan and Jane Thelen of San Rafael and Kathi McCormick of Terra Linda will star in it.

"Pas de Deux" from "Gizelle by Burgmuller will be performed by Jane Thelen and David White.

Ron Guidi's "Trois Gymnopedies" will be danced by Cynthia Harvey of Novato, Kathi McCormick and Charles Perrier of Fairfax.

"Q.E.D." was choreographed by Charles Perrier. It is a modern ballet built on geometric lines, set to music by Vivaldi.

This ballet features the company: Kathi McCormick, Jody Marvin, Laura Przetak, Martha Feitz, Carol Brannan, Cynthia Harvey, Doreen Singer, Lori Crichton, Debbie Farb and Nancy Jones.

"Golden Moments of Ballet" is a humorous take-off on ballet of the twenties. It was choreographed by Director Leona Norman. It was presented at the Pacific Regional Ballet Festival last year in Fresno. After that presentation, the Marin Civic Ballet was named an honor company of National Regional Ballet.

Bundestag In Attack On Brandt Over Dollar

BONN (UPI) —The dollar crisis eased today, but side-effects for a number of European nations lingered on.

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, who decided over the weekend to "float" the mark and let it find its own parity against the U.S. dollar by means of supply and demand, came under fierce attack in a currency debate in the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament.

Opposition speakers charged the government with "unbelievable rashness" with their action and said it threatened to produce "a crisis of instability" in West Germany.

In Brussels, the six-nation Common Market faced the quandry of what to do in light of France's refusal to take part in negotiations for a much-vaunted European currency union until Germany quits "floating" the mark. And the Common Market agricultural ministers were trying to sort out the mess of rejiggering exchange rates within the community since their price system is pegged to the Eurodollar.

The Eurodollar is a huge supply of dollars in Europe over which the United States has no control.

The Dutch and Belgian governments were at loggerheads because Belgium refused to "float" its currency in conformity with the German mark, as its Dutch neighbors did.

With two days of trading out of the way, it was apparent that money marks in the key European capitals all were watching the German market at Frankfurt for a cue to what will happen.

But in Frankfurt, the accent was on caution, with both brokers and dealers acting as if they were on thin ice. The dollar dropped Monday but not so sharply as had been expected. And on Tuesday it bounced back a bit.

Another 'Save The Cable Cars' Drive Shapes Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Another "Save the Cable Cars" campaign is shaping up in San Francisco.

Petitions opposing city plans to reduce service on one of the three cable cars lines were passed out Tuesday to passengers.

"Everybody is signing them," said a gripman. The sponsoring citizens committee said they expected to collect "thousands" of signatures for presentation to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

The Public Utilities Commission, which operates the cable cars, recently recommended reduction of the California Street line to daytime service Monday through Friday, eliminating night and weekend runs, as an economy measure. The cable cars would be replaced by buses.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Lawyers for 27 Death Row inmates have asked the Supreme Court to ward off a possible sudden wave of electrocutions and gassings by agreeing to examine more issues dealing with capital punishment.

In a special brief filed Tuesday, 42 attorneys cited several undecided issues — including the ultimate question of whether the death sentence constitutes the "cruel and unusual punishment" forbidden by the constitution.

On May 3 the Supreme Court ruled a jury may decide both guilt and punishment in death penalty cases in a single sitting. It also refused to set down guidelines for a jury to use in determining whether to impose the death penalty. The decision was interpreted as evidence the court was moving toward upholding capital punishment.

The lawyers who filed the brief Tuesday represent 27 of about 150 condemned men and women whose cases are now in the high courts. They are among the 624 persons now confined to the death row cells in the 41 states which have capital punishment.

"One constitutional question presented in the pending petitions ... is whether the states must appoint counsel for such men," the brief said. "We respectfully suggest that that issue, and the other substantial issues ... should be heard ... before the United States — which has not conducted a legal execution since June of 1967 — resumes killing these men, and in unprecedented numbers."

Eighteen of the 27 cases raised the "cruel and unusual punishment" issue.

MUSIC REVIEW

Superstar Falls Flat In Light Opera Opener

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — According to program notes the "San Francisco Civic Light Opera Association is a civic nonprofit corporation underwritten against loss by 489 public-spirited citizens and business organizations of this community."

The goose egg that was laid last night at the Curran Theater was not golden and just might make the guarantors reevaluate those pledges.

What took place was a travesty of musical theater and another one of CLO director Edwin Lester's big sells with a super-star drawing card. Who wouldn't want to see Burt Lancaster, one of filmland's most respected veterans — but who wants to see him fall on his face or, in this instance, on his peg leg?

Oh yes, the event in question was the company's opening production of the season — the 1938 musical, "Knickerbocker Holiday," from the pen of the late stalwarts, Maxwell Anderson and Kurt Weill.

Everything started out kind of pretty. The dressy first night crowd settled back in record time, the house lights dimmed, the maestro struck up the pit orchestra, the curtain raised properly and David Holliday as Washington Irving, the storyteller set the scene for the story of Pieter Stuyvesant, the arrogant governor-general of New Amsterdam.

But what followed was one of the sloppiest attempts at musical theater that I have seen. There was more merit in even CLO's stinker of several seasons ago — Meredith Willson's "1491."

What then possesses an actor of Lancaster's stature to let himself be carried away in such a miserable offering? Perhaps Lancaster forgot that there is no cutting room on a live stage.

I felt sorry for Lancaster as he tried to cavort around the stage with one leg hidden by bellowing pantaloons, maintain some kind of arrogance and oh, yes, attempt to talk-sing in the proper microphoned spots on the stage so as to carry over the orchestra. According to pre-show publicity, Lancaster was coached extensively by Frank Sinatra. No wonder Sinatra went into retirement.

The audience managed to half-way contain itself, but when Lancaster missed a few cues and missed the mikes in that beautiful melody, "September Song," there were gasps and outright giggles which continued into Act One's finale in which Lancaster tried vainly to do a few gigs with the dance ensemble.

Intermission found patrons shaking their heads and one well-dressed gentleman remarking to his wife, "It's something different!"

The second act started out no better and when Lancaster — in the jail scene — was swung back and forth on poles and then stepped down to do a little kick or two tango-style, it was time to exit on a disgruntled ticketholder's "whoopee!"

There wasn't even any saving grace from the supporting cast, except Holliday who also took the role of Brom Broeck and Jack Collins as Mayor Tiehoven. Anita Gillette as Tina Tiehoven seemed to suffer Lancaster's plight.

And I have seen better choreography from high school students.

The only notable plus was the settings, if you are a scene watcher.

"Knickerbocker" will be around for seven weeks, then to Los Angeles. It has been reported that Lancaster had dreams of returning to Broadway after an absence of 25 years in this vehicle. What?

Guilty Plea To Drug Misdemeanor Count

A felony charge of possessing dangerous drugs was reduced to a misdemeanor against Stanley Allen Johnson, 22, of Petaluma, yesterday in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Johnson pleaded guilty to the reduced charge and was set for sentencing on June 1 at 1:30 p.m. He was arrested April 27 when Petaluma police said they found benzedrine in his possession.

RAP SESSION

Young, Old Must Act To Erase Bitterness, Educator Declares

By PAT ANGLE

(15th in a series of 24 raps)

Both the young and the old must take responsibility for the barriers and hostility which divides the two age groups, Sausalito educator James T. Toliver believes.

The bitter struggle between generations begins, he said, when the young see hypocrisy and corruption and demand sweeping changes and the old cling tenaciously to the status quo.

"Many older persons refuse to agree that we live in a society which is hypocritical and sick, a system which mouths very humanistic spiritual and political philosophies, but does not act on what it purports to believe," he said. "And this angers the young people who are aware of the problems."

But the 37-year-old Toliver feels the views of older persons crystalize and they resist even needed change because of "a real insecurity" which the youth-oriented culture creates.

While in some countries, old people are treated as "persons of great value because they have lived so long and possess a wealth of experience and knowledge," Toliver said the situation is tragically different in America.

"Look what we do to older people here," he said. "We make them feel they are in the way; we toss them into old folks' homes. As a person grows older, he realizes that things are changing down below and that he's not included in what's happening, that young people don't want him included."

The youth who fail to treat their elders compassionately, as human beings, are to blame for much of the bitterness which the old feel and which is reflected in their political and social views which the young, in turn, deplore, according to Toliver.

Also to blame, he feels is the mass media which "for marketing reasons" has influenced American thought "with its constant emphasis on youth."

"This new attitude, this hatred and fear of age and the insistence that everyone must strive to remain young and beautiful is frightening; it messes up people's heads," Toliver said. And the young, he feels, pick up the condescending attitue and use it in their dealings with the old and so the chasm between the two groups continues to widen.

Toliver, whose duties as special assistant for the Sausalito School District include handling displinary problems, feels a genuine affinity for young people. "I really dig the youth or I wouldn't be where I am," he said "I respect their very strong sense of conscience, their great foresight and the hope they have that we can someday live in a better world."

Although he feels violence is no solution to most of the problems facing the country, Toliver can understand why many young people "relate to violence."

"Their violence comes out of a heavy frustration," he said. "They feel they are not getting anywhere; the obstacles are so great. They feel they can't go to the master and tell him they want their freedom. People who have control of others don't give it up easily once they have it and get used to it."

The black educator shares some of youth's frustrations when he looks at this country. People in America, he feels, don't have enough respect for diverse ethnic groups and cultures or for each other. "Our way of life has isolated us from one another, made us less humanistic," he said. "We shut ourselves up in our houses and use things like television to replace real human relationships."

Toliver sees America as "a cold place where we work ourselves to death like mechanized machines. Sometimes," he said, "I feel as though the environment is a huge clock, always ticking . . . ticking . . ."

There are too many inequities, in the country, "too wide a gap between the people who have money and those who don't," he said. "People can say 'This is the American way; this is what made us great.' " But he added: "It's just not right to leave your brother down there, when you've got plenty and he's got none."

Hefinds hope in "the common people the ones we don't always see on the front page," those, both old and young, "who are concerned about what's happening and doing work in their own communities to make things better.

"There's a lot of darkness, but there are a few people walking around with torches; some have great big ones which light up the whole area and many have small torches. These are the people who come up to you and say: 'Let me light your way, where do you want to go?'"

Ex-Mill Valley Schools Chief In Alameda Job

Dr. George Robert McConnell, superintendent of the Mill Valley School District from 1957 to 1966, has been appointed superintendent of the Alameda Unified School District at $30,000 per year.

He was assistant superintendent at Aurora, Colo. before taking the superintendent's position at Alameda.

McConnell, who graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1937, took his bachelor and doctor degrees from the University of California at Berkeley and his master's from San Francisco State College.

He taught in the Mill Valley schools for four years prior to becoming superintendent. He resigned as superintendent in 1966 and worked as administrative intern in the Marin County school superintendent's office.

Rome Begins Big Cleanup Of Trash

ROME (UPI) —The Eternal City today began cleaning the garbage off its streets, burying its dead and taking care of its backlog of paperwork. But officials said it would take several days to undo the smelly mess piled up after six days of a strike by municipal employes.

The 23,850 striking city employes went back to work today with a promise from the government of higher pay and reform of the promotion system.

$847 Million Plan To Clean Up Bay Is Attacked From All Sides

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

OAKLAND — An $847 million plan to clean up San Francisco Bay in five years must have won an unpopularity award yesterday.

Dozens of spokesmen for sewerage agencies, industry and the Sierra Club criticized the plan before the Regional Water Quality Control Board, scheduled to adopt the plan drafted by its staff.

Of the total price tag, some $600 million would be for piping treated sewage to deep bay waters. The sewage now is discharged in shallow water generally close to shoreline areas where it cannot get needed dilution and removal to the ocean.

Critics centered attacks on these pipes, arguing taxpayers would get more for their dollar by building facilities to reuse wastewater. The plan calls for only 81 million for such reclamation facilities in the next five years, but stresses that large scale reclamation must be the long-range goal.

The board's staff said last week that the deep water pipes and new treatment facilities (about $166 million) would be needed, regardless of future reclamation, to handle wet weather overflows and sewage too poisonous to reclaim.

Director Ercole Caroselli of San Francisco, defending the piping system, said it could be reversible to handle reclaimed water in the future.

The Sierra Club, while it disputed the efficiency of piping sewage instead of upgrading its treatment locally, strongly backed the need for a regional sewerage agency with power to sell bonds. Legislation to create such an agency is pending in Sacramento.

The Association of Bay Area Governments' planning director, Rudolph R. Platzek, said the plan ignored the problems of storm water, which can increase the flow in sewers up to 130 times the dry weather flow.

He also said that unless the plan were backed by regulations on land use it "must remain essentially short-range and corrective."

(The plan, required by the federal government to maintain local sewerage agencies' eligibility for grants, will be followed within two years by a more detailed version which is to consider additional problems such as land use controls.)

Spokesmen for San Francisco objected that financing the plan could "cripple other worthy programs," such as welfare, medical, anti-crime, school, transportation and urban development programs. San Francisco faces a $300 million project to treat its wet weather flows, a project that still would fall short of the regional board standards, they said.

The Bay Area League of Industrial Associations, representing some 2,500 individual businesses, charged that the deep water pipe system was "premature and potentially wasteful of the taxpayers' dollars in that it would tend to eliminate a number of available options and restrict the Bay Area to a master drain line that could prove unnecessary or possibly even illegal."

The league said that "further improvements, particularly in the treatment technology for industrial wastes, are anticipated."

The only uncritical comments came from the Bay Conservation and Development Commission and state Public Health Department.

The only Marin discharger to testify was the Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary District. Its chairman, Cyril Hansen, objected to the plan for including the district in a new ocean outfall via Tennessee Valley.

He said that the district was unique among Marin dischargers because its outfall already was in deep water. He said connecting to the proposed ocean outfall, to serve all agencies in Marin and Southern Sonoma, would cost the district up to $2 million.

The other Marin and Sonoma dischargers, as reported yesterday by the Independent-Journal, argued in written statements for reclamation instead of facilities proposed in the plan, which estimated their five years' costs at $87 million.

Hansen, however, said there was "no significant need for reclaimed water in Southern Marin."

Yesterday's all-day hearing in the Kaiser Center Auditorium completed testimony on the plan, so a previously scheduled hearing tomorrow in Hayward was canceled. Also canceled was a special board meeting to consider adoption of the plan, previously announced for May 21.

Instead, the board probably will consider its adoption at the regular monthly meeting on May 27 at the Alameda County Public Works Auditorium in Hayward. That meeting originally was set at 1:30 p.m., but will be at 9:30 a.m. if adoption of the plan is set that day.

The plan then must be adopted by the state Water Resources Control Board to meet the federal filing deadline of July 1.

State Awards Road Contract

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state has awarded one contract and called for bids on another highway job in Marin County.

A $27,775 contract was awarded Monday to Rayalco, Inc. of Danville, lowest of five bidders, for putting plain and reflective raised pavement markers along Highway 37 from Atherton Avenue east of Novato to the junction of Highway 121 in Sonoma County. The state Department of Public Works in awarding the contract set 40 working days to complete the project.

The Division of Highways called for bids to repair the Lucas Valley Road from about 4.7 miles to six miles west of Highway 101 near Marinwood. The state had $69,000 available for the Federal Aid project. Bids will be opened June 9 in Sacramento.

The Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina estimates the typical 10-year-old cyclist rides his bike about 300 miles a year.

Sheriff's Group Defends Circus

The Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association yesterday defended as a worthwhile charitable venture their fourth annual circus which has been refused endorsement by San Rafael merchants.

The Downtown San Rafael Merchants Committee had issued a circular advising merchants not to support the Miller and Johnson Circus scheduled for June 12 and 13 at Marin Catholic High School.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Richmond, chairman of the circus, said that more than $24,000 has been given to Marin charities during the last three years from proceeds of the circus.

The merchants' committee had reported a Better Business Bureau finding that only 25 per cent of the total receipts go to the sponsoring organization, a volunteer organization of working deputies, and that it was unknown how much of that money actually went to charity.

Richmond said yesterday that Walter Zurcher, chairman of the merchants committee, sent out the circular before he could provide Zurcher with figures that had been requested.

Richmond said that money has been given by the association to such charities as the Marin Aid to Retarded Children, Mentally Retarded Workshop, Cerebral Palsy Association, Big Brothers, Candlelighters and the Southern and Northern Marin Boys Clubs.

He added that about $3,000 from circus proceeds is still in the bank account earmarked "Youth of Marin," which will be used for such projects as sponsoring Boy Scout troops.

He also said that an audit of the books showed that the association received 25.5 per cent of the circus's gross receipts last year with 41.5 per cent going for such overhead expenses as permits and ticket sales and the remaining 33 per cent to the circus.

As to complaints of a "hard sell" technique by telephone callers asking Marin residents to buy tickets, Richmond said that all the callers, who are local high school and college students, are given a written spiel to read over the phone.

The callers are monitored by two wives of deputies, he said. The callers are told to represent themselves as calling for the association but not members, he said.

(The Independent-Journal last week received a call from a Marin resident, who said, "Last night, a man called. He told me he was a deputy sheriff. He said the sheriff would like me to donate $5 to a charity. I don't know. I think, 'the sheriff,' so I say okay.")

He also said that no calls have been made within the San Rafael city limits for the past two weeks since the association was informed it needed a permit from the police department to solicit ticket sales.

Richmond said, further, no calls will be made within San Rafael until a permit is obtained.

The circus is scheduled for performances at 11 a.m. and 2 and 8 p.m. on June 12 and at 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. on June 13, Richmond said.

Marin City Boys' Club Seeks Funds

In an effort to raise the $34,000 needed to maintain the Marin City Boys' Club for the coming year, club president Henry Rosso said that May has been named "Be a Good Neighbor" month.

Rosso said that the club, which serves 350 boys, is entirely financed by contributions since "we receive no support from the United Bay Area Crusade. The club also has no government grants, he said.

Started in 1966 in a modest manner, the club's facilities now include game rooms, study rooms, a library, arts and crafts area, photo laboratory and an auto mechanics shop, Rosso said.

He said that contributions may be sent to the Marin City Boys' Club, 640 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Arraignment Set In Checks Case

Robert Gaillard Harrington, 32, of San Rafael, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of passing a bad check.

He is to be arraigned in superior court June 9.

Harrington is accused of giving a worthless $500 check to Bianco Cadillac of Corte Madera in February.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Good Mask In Game Of Bridge Is The Poker Face

Most people know that it's necessary to wear a poker face when you play poker — to prevent the other players from guessing what you're up to. Even if your game is bridge and even if you think that poker is not quite respectable, you still need a poker face. You must occasionally deceive an opponent, even at bridge, and you can't hope to do so unless you can look prim and proper just when you're most devious and devilish.

LOW DIAMOND

When today's hand was played some years ago, Philadelphia expert Skippy Becker led the six of diamonds from the West hand. Dummy's queen won the first trick, and Becker managed to refrain from wincing.

It was a routine hand at most tables of the tournament. Declarer led the ten of hearts for a finesse, losing to the queen. West might then lead anything he liked: declarer could lead a trump to his hand if the lead put him in dummy. South could then draw the last trump and run his tricks safely.

The hand didn't go that way at Becker's table. Declarer led the ten of hearts from dummy at the second trick, but Becker did not play the queen of hearts from the West hand. Instead, he played the three of hearts, casually and in normal tempo. He was following suit, not refusing the trick.

SUSPICIOUS LOOK

South hadn't been born the day before, so he gave Becker a suspicious look when the ten of hearts won the second trick. Becker looked placid, and South relaxed. After all, finesses have been known to succeed.

So South led the other trump from dummy and repeated the finesse by playing the jack from his own hand. From South's point of view, it was possible that East had started with four trumps; and then the second finesse would be necessary.

DEUCE OF SPADES

Becker took the queen of hearts, still placid, and returned the deuce of spades to dummy's king. South looked for the safest way of getting to his hand to draw the last trump and overlooked the absolutely safe spade ruff. Instead he led a club to the king. Becker ruffed this silly trick, defeating the slam.

This is when a bridge player needs his poker face most — to avoid laughing at an opponent who has made an unbelievably silly play.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two diamonds.

Bid your own suit and raise hearts later to show a hand too strong for an immediate raise but not strong enough for a jump raise.

Canadian Strikes

OTTAWA (UPI) — There were more work stoppages but fewer man-days lost in February, 1971, than in January, reports the Canada Department of Labor. During February, 29 strikes began and 21 ended. Total stoppages numbered 61.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, May 12, the 132nd day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars, Mercury and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

British nurse Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, was born May 12, 1820.

On this day in history:

In 1922 the magazine "Radio Broadcast" commented, "The rate of increase in the number who spend at least part of an evening listening to radio is almost incomprehensible."

In 1937 George VI was crowned king of England, succeeding his brother Edward, who abdicated to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson.

In 1949 Soviet authorities in Berlin announced the end of a blockade of that divided German city, 328 days after it began.

In 1963 President John F. Kennedy ordered federal troops into Birmingham, Ala., after an outbreak of civil rights riots.

A thought for today: Scottish essayist Thomas Carlyle said, "Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man. But for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred who will stand adversity."

'Woody Guthrie Day' Sought By Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., has asked Congress to declare July 14 "Woody Guthrie Day" to honor the balladeer and songwriter who was born on that date.

Guthrie wrote hundreds of songs including some such as "This Land Is Your Land" which have become part of the American tradition. He died in 1967.

CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL
No. 542 May 12, 1971

ORDINANCE NO. 1017
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL ADDING TITLE 17 WATERS AND WATERWAYS TO THE MUNICIPAL CODE

THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

DIVISION 1: Title 17 is hereby added to the City of San Rafael Municipal Code to read as follows:

Title 17
WATERS AND WATERWAYS
Chapter 17.10
DUMPING, DREDGING AND CONSTRUCTION WITHIN TIDAL WATERWAYS

Sections:
17.10.01 Purposes
17.10.02 Applicability and Exceptions
17.10.03 Prohibitions
17.10.04 Procedure
17.10.05 Guarantees
17.10.06 Noncompliance
17.10.07 Appeals

17.10.01 PURPOSES. San Rafael tidelands, shorelines, waterways, canals, beaches, or salt marshes are vital natural resources which can provide great benefits to present and future human generations. They offer scenic views, open space, recreational activities such as fishing, swimming, boating, walking, wildlife habitats, opportunities for water transportation and sites for homes and for water-oriented resorts and industries. They fulfill an indispensable role in preserving the climate and air purity of the city.

These benefits could be destroyed or seriously diminished by uncontrolled filling, excavation or construction. Therefore, it is the purpose of this Title to encourage the fullest development of these potential benefits with a minimum of physical disturbance and to set forth the standards and procedures by which filling, excavation and construction in tideland areas will be controlled.

17.10.02 APPLICABILITY AND EXCEPTIONS. This Title shall apply to all portions of San Pablo Bay and San Rafael Bay, tidelands, shorelines, waterways, canals, beaches or salt marshes within the City of San Rafael which are below an elevation of 7.5 feet Mean Lower Low Water Datum and to contiguous land between that elevation line, and, either, a point 100 feet inland or the nearest publicly maintained road, whichever is closer. The following items shall not be subject to this Title:

1. Any structure, fill or excavation which is not within and which does not enroach on the tidelands and waterways as defined herein.

2. Any emergency work necessary to prevent or to minimize imminent damage to land or improvements from flood waters. Such emergency work shall be reported in writing within ten (10) days after the start of such work to the Department of Public Works.

3. Any structure, fill or excavation which the San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee finds to be minor or incidental.

4. Any structure, fill or excavation which has been approved prior to the adoption of this ordinance as part of any application, action or permit by the Planning Commission or the Planning Director, except that such structure, fill or excavation shall not be deemed to have been approved for a building permit. Where a development is subject to other provisions of the San Rafael Municipal Code, approval of any fill, excavation, or structure within the scope of this Title, which is contained in the development, shall be subject to the findings of Section 17.10.04 (4) of this Title.

5. Any structure, fill or excavation which is behind secure dikes, which existed prior to the effective date of this Title and which is normally not subject to tidal action by virtue of the dike, or which is only temporarily under tidal action due to defective tide gates.

6. Within creeks, estuaries and rivers the applicability of this Title shall extend downstream from certain defined points as follows:

a. San Rafael Canal:
The bridge at the northbound offramp of Highway 101 eastward (Irwin Street).

b. The North Fork of Las Gallinas Creek: Highway 101 eastward.

c. Any other navigable waters annexed by the City of San Rafael.

17.10.10 PROHIBITIONS. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other ordinance of the City of San Rafael, it is hereby declared unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or public agency to permit, cause to permit, do or cause to do any of the following:

a. Dump, deposit or construct within or fill with materials, dirt, earth, mud, garbage, refuse or any material whatsoever on any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.04.

b. Excavate, dredge or remove any dirt, earth, mud, sand, gravel or any other material from any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.14.

c. Construct, or place any pier, wall, bulkhead, breakwater or other structure on any of the tidelands designated in Section 17.10.02, except in compliance with Section 17.10.04.

17.10.04 PROCEDURE.

1. Filing and Content of Application for a Tidelands Permit. Application for fill, excavation or structures within tidelands as defined in Section 17.10.02 shall be made to the Department of Public Works in the form of a tidelands permit. The application shall include information showing existing and proposed grades, extent and amount of proposed fill or excavation, location of all existing and proposed structures, a tentative plan for the future development of the area, and sufficient detail to allow a determination of the impact of the proposal on the navigability, appearance and safety of the waterways.

2. Action by San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee. If the application includes only a structure and/or if the proposed fill or excavation covers less than one acre, the San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee, consisting of the Director of Public Works, Chief Building Inspector, Director of Parks and and Recreation, and the Planning Director, shall approve, conditionally approve or deny the application within 45 days after the filing date of the application, unless a later date is agreed to by the applicant. The Fill Committee shall consider, in arriving at its decision applicable regional and state plans for tidal waterways and the criteria, standards, and policies developed by agencies administering such regional and state plans. The San Rafael Tideland Fill Committee shall take the above action in meetings open to the public. Interested parties shall have opportunity to present their views and such views shall be evaluated along with data gathered from other sources. Failure of the Fill Committee to act within the prescribed time shall constitute approval of the application.

3. Action by Planning Commission. If the proposed fill or excavation covers one acre or more, the Fill Committee shall report to the Planning Commission its recommendations. The Planning Commission shall approve, conditionally approve or deny the application within 60 days of the filing date, unless a later date is agreed to by the applicant. The Planning Commission shall consider, in arriving at its decision, applicable regional and state plans for tidal waterways and the criteria, standards, and policies developed by agencies administering such regional and state plans. The Planning Commission shall take the above action in meetings open to the public. Interested parties shall have opportunity to present their views and such views shall be evaluated along with data gathered from other sources. Failure of the Planning Commission to act within the prescribed time shall constitute approval of the application.

4. Findings. The San Rafael Tidelands Fill Committee or the Planning Commission shall approve or conditionally approve applications where it is found that:

a. The encroachment of the tidelands is the minimum necessary to achieve the purpose of the proposed work,

b. the proposed fill, excavation or construction will not unduly and unnecessarily:

(1) Inhibit navigation, or access to publicly owned tidelands;

(2) Cause, or increase the likelihood of, water pollution;

(3) Cause, or increase the likelihood of, flooding of adjoining lands;

(4) Destroy, or accelerate the destruction of habitats essential to species of fish, shellfish and other wildlife of substantial public benefit;

(5) Diminish the scenic beauty of the shoreline in a manner which will impede future construction of parks, boat harbors and recreation facilities;

(6) Create a safety hazard in connection with settlement of fill or earthquakes; or

(7) Diminish natural waterways by siltation, sedimentation or bank erosion.

c. The proposal is in substantial harmony with any adopted City General Plan or Specific Plan.

d. Public benefits will be created to offset some of the detriments which may be caused by the nature of the proposal.

However, this finding is not required:

(1) Where the application covers lands wholly above elevation 7.5 feet Mean Lower Low Water Datum, or

(2) Where the size or potential uses of the parcel are so limited that creation of a public benefit would be unfeasible and where the amount and effect of fill, excavating or structures are minimal.

(3) If the water frontage of any presently existing parcel is less than 250 feet or its area is less than 2-½ acres, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it shall be presumed that there will be no detriments which are required to be offset by public benefits.

These public benefits may be realized, through; development of new recreational opportunities; or provision of new public access to the water; or enhancement of shoreline appearance; or establishment of water transportation; or facilities for land or air transportation where all other alternatives have been exhausted; or construction of water-oriented industry or development of marine food supplies or other benefits considered by the Planning Commission to be of comparable importance.

5. Filing Date. The filing date shall be deemed the date on which the Department of Public Works receives the last submission required as part of the application unless the Director of Public Works or his authorized representative agree in writing to an earlier filing date.

6. Notices. Not later than ten (10) working days prior to an application appearing before the body to which it is initially submitted, notice of the time and place where the matter will be considered and a brief description of the proposal shall be mailed to the owners of record of abutting properties on the adjoining and opposite shoreline within 300 feet of the proposed work, as shown on the latest county tax roll. Failure to mail notice shall not invalidate any proceedings under this Title.

7. Expiration and Extension of Tidelands Permits. A tidelands permit shall expire one year from the effective date of the approval, unless a different expiration date is stipulated at the time of approval. Prior to the expiration of such a permit, the applicant may apply to the Department of Public Works for an extension. The Fill Committee may make minor modifications of the permit at the time of extension if it finds that there had been a substantial change in the circumstances surrounding the original approval. Extensions may be granted for a period of no more than one year from the time of expiration of the original permit. If a building permit or excavation permit was issued during the effective life of a tidelands permit the expiration date of the tidelands permit shall be automatically extended to concur with the expiration date of the building permit or excavation permit.

17.10.05 GUARANTEES. Guarantees, sureties or other evidence of compliance may be required in connection with the approval of a tidelands permit.

17.10.06 NONCOMPLIANCE. Failure to comply in any respect with an approved permit shall constitute grounds for the immediate stoppage of work involved in said noncompliance.

17.10.07 APPEALS. Chapter 14.84 "Appeals" of the San Rafael Municipal Code shall apply to all appeals regarding actions taken under this Title. Appeals from the Fill Committee shall follow the procedure set forth in Section 14.84.020.

DIVISION 2: Constitutionality. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The Council hereby declared that it would have adopted the Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

DIVISION 3: This Ordinance shall be published once in full before its final passage, in the INDEPENDENT JOURNAL, a newspaper of general circulation, printed, published and circulated in the City of San Rafael, and shall be in full force and effect thirty (30) days after its final passage.

WATER DUMPING BOMBER

A CI-215 "water bomber", on loan from the Province of Quebec, takes off (top picture) to show its ability to scoop up water and then maneuvers in the air to dump it. The demonstration was held yesterday on the Anacostia River near Washington D.C. by General Dynamics for congressmen and other government officials. The plane has been used in recent months in Oklahoma, Alabama, Tennessee and Florida with excellent results in combating forest fires.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

New Rubella Vaccine Is Tricky But Epidemic Shows Its Need

Our new German measles vaccine is welcome. Rubella is not serious unless it occurs to expectant mothers especially during the first three months of pregnancy. The causative virus may lead to congenital defects of the heart, eyes, brain, or ears. The vaccine can also have a bad effect upon the fetus. There it is given only when the woman is not and does not plan to become pregnant during the ensuing few months.

THIS IS THE tricky aspect of the vaccine. One attack of German measles usually confers lifelong immunity but reinfection may occur and all too often without the usual symptoms. It is for this reason that a woman who has had rubella may need the vaccine despite the fact that 85 per cent of young adults are definitely immune.

Following an attack of German measles, protective antibodies appear in the blood. (Reexposure does the same.) Tests show that similar antibodies develop in those receiving the vaccine, except that they are not so numerous. There are enough antibodies, however, to protect most people. New evidence shows that antibody levels begin to wane after 4 years and a booster injection may be necessary. Some doctors recommend revaccination after each pregnancy.

ONLY ONE INJECTION of the vaccine is needed. Some persons develop mild fever or local soreness at the site of the injection. Now and then the joints ache. Since the viruses used in making the vaccine are grown in duck eggs and neomycin, those sensitive to neomycin, duck or chicken should not receive the product. The manufacturers also suggest that the vaccine be withheld from anyone receiving cortisone like products or X-ray therapy. Immunization is not recommended for infants under a year old.

We need the vaccine. During the rubella epidemic of 1964, an estimated 20,000 babies with serious defects were born to women who had been infected. The shots can be given to children between 1 year of age and puberty.

PARTY PHOBIA

Miss T. R. writes: How can I overcome my fear of social gatherings?

REPLY

Develop more poise by forcing yourself to attend these functions assuming, of course, that you feel you must go. Many people are ill at ease at large gatherings and the cocktail probably was invented to make the shy person relax. See a psychiatrist if your fear is so acute that you cannot attend parties. The alternative is obvious.

DROOPING LIDS

E. T. writes: Is there any type of exercise that will help drooping lids?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. Neostigmine may help if the drooping is due to myasthenia gravis but it will have no effect on other types. Mechanical props are used occasionally to hold up the lids. In some instances, surgery is recommended.

FIRST DIAGNOSE, THEN TREAT

A. P. writes: Can a diagnostician cure an illness?

REPLY

Yes. All physicians must be diagnosticians before they can treat a disease.

ACROBATIC NAVEL

A reader writes: What causes my navel to move up and down when I breathe?

REPLY

This is not a unique accomplishment.

Vacancies For Two Youths On Juvenile Panel

Two openings exist for youth to serve on the Marin Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission, according to chairman James C. Upshaw who announced today that youths interested should contact L. Charles Smith, youth coordinator, in Room 163 of the Marin Hall of Justice.

The two vacancies were created with the resignations of Douglas W. Scott and Terrence Keenan.

Applicants will be interviewed at the next regular meeting of the commission at 4 p.m. May 27 in Room 332 of the Hall of Justice.

The commission is the group that made an extensive study of delinquency in the county last summer and is now trying to help Santa Venetia set up a community center.

Reagan, Demo Chieftains Hold Summit On Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan and Democrats, agreeing the Legislature probably won't approve an income tax withholding bill unless it's part of a major "reform" package, inched uneasily toward a second honeymoon today.

Republican and Democratic leaders met privately with the governor in a two-and-a-halfhour "summit conference" Tuesday but emerged still split over welfare reform, taxes and balancing Reagan's proposed $6.7 billion state budget.

Reagan termed the meeting "fruitful" while Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti called it an "important first step" but said "nothing major was accomplished."

They decided to meet again—probably next week—when Democrats would return with a specific position on Reagan's welfare reform plan. Democrats outnumber Republicans in both houses.

Reagan and Democrats started the year vowing to work together and communicate with each other. But the honeymoon collapsed over Reagan's budget and his welfare overhaul proposals.

Moretti said he quit meeting with the governor because he felt he didn't receive a "fair" hearing.

Strangely, it is withholding the state income tax through payroll checks that has reversed the roles of Reagan and the Democrats from last year.

Reagan, who until 1970 adamantly fought withholding, now insists it must be approved and shouldn't be attached to a tax reform package. Democrats contend withholding and "reform" must remain inseparable.

Reagan's unsuccessful tax program last year called for withholding. No withholding only bill has ever cleared both houses.

The major Democratic tax program of the current session includes withholding as a key provision. Also pending is a bill supported by Reagan to impose withholding only.

Withholding would assure an even flow of cash into state coffers year around and produce a one-time windfall during its first year totaling what Reagan estimates would be $400 million to $500 million.

Sen. John Harmer, Senate Republican caucus chairman who attended the conference in Reagan's office, told newsmen later that "out of this meeting emerged the realization that there will not be a separate withholding bill."

Democratic chairman Randolph Collier of the Senate Finance Committee left the meeting after only 45 minutes and told reporters he was returning to his budget-writing tasks.

"The Legislature should go ahead and do what it thinks is needed," Collier said. "The governor has the constitutional prerogative to do what he thinks is right."

He said he made clear to Reagan that withholding should be part of an overall tax program, adding "I'm tired of coming here every year and having a fiscal crisis."

Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., Democratic chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, told reporters that "the most hopeful sign was that there was a meeting. Beyond that I'm not sure there's anything to be unusually optimistic about."

Witnesses Endorse Span Transit Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Golden Gate Bridge and Transportation District's development plans for a mass transit system to alleviate traffic congestion were endorsed by witnesses Tuesday at an Assembly transportation subcommittee hearing.

A long list of witnesses urged that the district be retained to carry out its interim and long-range plans and that ferry and bus service be expanded between San Francisco and counties north of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Now the subcommittee, chaired by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, will weigh the testimony it has accumulated in three hearings and make recommendations to the Legislature.

Bridge authorities submitted to the Legislature in April plans for development of the Golden Gate Transportation Corridor up until 1980 at a cost of $331.5 million.

The district came in for both praise and criticism during the lengthy hearing.

Much of the testimony dealt with the growing problem of traffic congestion along the Golden Gate corridor and complaints by Marin County residents their "rural atmosphere" and environment were being threatened.

"During the peak traffic hours many Marin County residents can't get out of their driveways," complained William Train, president of the Marina Home and Property Owners Association.

The subcommittee received from Bridge District Chairman Lowell Edington a long list of governmental and civic organizations supporting the transportation development plans.

A proposed cable ferry system for the bay has not been ruled out and its proponents will be given a "full hearing" before a final decision is made, Edington added.

As explained by its developers, the cable ferry system consists of fiberglass vessels designed to be towed across a navigable channel by an underwater cable riding on fixed sheaves 50 feet below the surface of the water.

Dymally Hits Reagan's Income Tax Peek Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Part of Gov. Ronald Reagan's welfare revision program would give the administration "the right to inspect the income tax return of any California citizen," Senate Democratic leader Mervyn M. Dymally said today.

Calling it "bad enough that this bill would permit officials in every county the right to poke into welfare recipients' income tax returns," he added it was worded to allow access to "the income tax return of any individual.'"

"This makes a mockery of the governor's great show of concern about invasion of privacy and his claim that tax records should be private," the Watts lawmaker said.

It was revealed last week that Reagan paid no state income taxes. The governor has said he considers questions about his tax status an "invasion of privacy."

The Franchise Tax Board is opposed to the bill sponsored in the Legislature by Sen. Clair Burgener, R-San Diego, Dymally said.

The bill says the Franchise Tax Board may permit the State Director of .ocial Welfare, or a representative named by the director, "to inspect the income tax return of any individual or individuals designated by the director."

The director can delegate the same authority to county welfare officials, Dymally said.

"It smacks of 1984," he stated, calling it "not difficult to imagine" officials of "any administration" using the power to "peek into the income tax records of citizens ... for a wide range of questionable purposes."

Professor Asks Salary Freeze

STANFORD (UPI) — A professor is suggesting a five-year freeze on faculty salaries and graduate tuitions based on parents' income as a means to help Stanford University avoid developing its lands for revenue.

Richard J. Almond, assistant psychiatry professor, made the recommendation today in a campus radio discussion, doubting that many faculty members would leave because of a pay freeze.

The university owns land on the San Francisco Peninsula and in the past has developed part of it for financial reasons.

Closed Session

The Tamalpais High School District board will meet in closed session tomorrow at 7:45 p.m. at the district office to discuss teacher evaluations, the hiring of an assistant superintendent at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo and to confer with its negotiating team.

SUMMONS (MARRIAGE)
Case Number 59228

Superior Court of California, County of Marin
In re the marriage of Petitioner: BARBARA P. SHIPE and
Respondent: EDWIN E. SHIPE
To the Respondent: EDWIN E. SHIPE

The petitioner has filed a petition concerning your marriage. You may file a written response within thirty days of the date that this summons is served on you. If you fail to file a written response within such time, your default may be entered and the court may enter a judgment containing injunctive or other orders concerning division of property, spousal support, child custody, child support, attorneys' fees, costs, and such other relief as may be granted by the court.

If you wish to seek the advice of an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your written response, if any, may be filed on time.

'Black English' Class Attacked

NEW YORK (UPI) — An NAACP magazine Tuesday asked Negro parents to protest a Ford Foundation-sponsored course teaching vernacular "black English" to black students as their native language.

The current issue of the magazine Crisis carried an editorial criticizing the black English course taught by Prof. Carol Reed of Brooklyn College under a $65,000 grant from the foundation.

"What our children need, and other disadvantaged American children as well —Indian, Spanish-speaking, Asian, Appalachian and immigrant Caucasians —is training in basic English which today is as near an international language as any in the world," the editorial said. "To attempt to lock them into a provincial patio is to limit their opportunities in the world at large."

Mariner Launch Delayed 2 Days

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The launch of the second and last Mariner camera craft toward Mars has been delayed two days and maybe more because the precise reason for the first launch failure is still unknown.

The new target date is May 20, but officials emphasized Tuesday that is only a planning date and a firm schedule for the second $77 million mission will not be set until the current investigation is complete.

The 2,200-pound Mariner spacecraft, identical to the one dropped in the sea last Saturday, was mounted on an Atlas-Centaur rocket Tuesday. It must be launched by June 16 or the space agency will have to wait until 1976 before getting another chance to explore the red plantet.

Atty. Gen. Younger Calls For More Police Spies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger said yesterday he would not hestitate to assign police intelligence agents to pose as newsmen or even ministers in certain cases.

"If I thought somebody was going to blow up the State Building, I'd put an agent in a house of prostitution as a piano player if it would help," he said.

Asked at a news conference if reporters were justified in exposing a police spy posing as one of their number to protect their own credibility, Younger said:

"More power to you. If our agent is that easily exposed, he's not doing a very good job anyway."

Present intelligence, he said, is so inadequate bombings can occur in three counties at the same time and police are helpless in efforts to make an arrest.

Younger, addressing the State Police Officers Association, said the need to expand currently inadequate intelligence operations is so obvious "it is not a negotiable point. It's not even arguable."

However, Younger said his State Department of Justice, which has 300 investigators, is largely limited by its funds in efforts to beef up intelligence to the training of local law enforcement officers.

His remarks were made during a discussion of his "remodeling" of the Department of Justice to attain "more law enforcement for a buck."

Hawaii has imported just about everything from the Caribbean, including such familiar symbols as grass skirts.

A Strong Objection To Units

A Mill Valley School District official has voiced strong objection before the Corte Madera Planning Commission to a proposed 624-unit residential development south of the Koch Luggage plant.

Commission secretary Elizabeth Long, said the group was warned Monday night that Mill Valley schools could not accept the increase of students expected from the proposed project.

She said Carroll D. Killingsworth, director of business services for the school district, said he doubted that the Reed or Larkspur school districts could accepted the increase either.

The development, to be called Madera Del Presidio, will be built on 73 acres now undergoing annexation to the town. The land is now in the Mill Valley School District, which has complained in the past it was not informed by the developers, E.C. Harter and Odenthal Investment Co., of the proposal.

Killingsworth said his understanding of state law required developers of over 400 units to provide a school site near the development, Mrs. Long said.

The commission, which was to consider the development's master plan, continued the public hearing to May 14, so legal opinions and further study of the site could be made.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission also:

REZONING — Approved an application from Donald A. Beacock of the real estate firm of Earle and Solvason of Corte Madera for rezoning from residential to business and professional office zoning a parcel at 626 Tamalpais Drive. The firm is planning to build at that location.

NORTHRIDGE — Continued to May 14 discussion of proposed acquisition of properties along the North Ridge between Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur.

COMMERCIAL ZONING — Continued to May 14 discussion of amending the zoning code to make all uses in commercial zones subject to use permit proceedings.

MEXICAN FOOD — Denied an application from Pierre Josephs of 125 Locust Avenue, Larkspur, to remodel his Rik's Village Inn at 60 Corte Madera Avenue to an "Enchilada Joe's" take-out food establishment.

FOSTER HOME — Referred to the town attorney, Albert Bianchi,p7a request from Ann C. Baney to increase the number of mentally retarded children living at her home from two to three. A town ordinance says a home with more than gwo foster children requires a use permit. However, the ordinance may be preempted by a state law which says six or less such children must be considered as a family.

Hearing Set On Channel

A 14-member committee to study plans for improving Mill Valley's Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio will hold its first meeting today at 7:30 p.m. at Mill Valley City Hall.

The committee will examine goals and objectives for use by the Army Corps of Engineers in planning the channel improvements, according to committee chairman and Jerome C. Hauke, city councilman.

Hauke said he expects the committee, after several more work sessions, to suggest a number of possible plans to the corps, which will conduct its own studies and work with the committee to select a final plan.

Committee members include representatives of various neighborhood groups, businessmen, club and church groups, city staff and city commissions and committees.

Also attending will be representatives of the corps of engineers and flood control staff in the Marin County Public Works Department. The meeting is open to the public.

POW Coordinator Sets Novato Talk

Julie Butler of San Rafael, Northern California coordinator for .the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, will speak Tuesday to the Novato Republican Women's Club.

Mrs. Butler will speak after a luncheon at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. William Miller, 1 Brassie Court.

Panel Agrees — Draining Best Cascade Solution

The Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission has agreed with an ad hoc committee that the city's controversial Cascade Reservoir should be drained and the dam preserved until a permanent park plan for the park area can be formulated.

Parks and Recreation Director Don L. Dimitratos said commissioners voted Monday to accept a portion of a report by the group, the citizens committee for Cascade Reservoir, that the dam not be demolished until alternate plans can be studied.

The commission decided that the long-range goal of the committee, to develop the reservoir into a safe swimming hole, is beyond the capacity of the city at present.

Dimitratos said commissioners also felt use of the reservoir and surrounding park, now off-limits to the public, should continue to be restricted.

Controversy — fed by drownings, fire dangers, illegal camping, nude bathing, drug use and noise and litter — has surrounded the small mountain lake for years.

In other business, the commission voted to take down Little League scoreboards at Boyle Part after each baseball game instead of leaving them up for the season. Dimitratos said the scoreboards have been the targets of vandalism.

In medieval Europe folklore, a gnome was a deformed dwarf that supposedly lived in the earth and protected hidden treasures.

Pleads Innocent To Credit Card Forgery

Stephen Robert Carrino, 23, of San Rafael has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to a charge of credit card forgery. A jury trial was set for the week of July 26.

Carrino was arrested March 13 after security agents at Disco department store in San Rafael discovered him attempting to use an allegedly stolen credit card, according to police.

It's Time To Start Flexing Your Wrist

Robert Birkie of San Rafael has been billed as "The World's Strongest Attorney" in relation to his entry in this weekend's 10th annual World's Championship Wristwrestling Tournament at Petaluma.

"But now," he said yesterday, "I'm afraid I'll have to confine my title to the world's strongest attorney — on Fifth Avenue."

Mr. Birkie thinks he may have to withdraw from the popular tournament because, "I've got tennis elbow."

TENNIS ELBOW!!! On a strongman?? "Well," the 37-year-old, 225-pound Birkie explained quickly, "actually I hurt the arm weightlifting while getting into condition for the tournament. Tennis elbow is just a name for it. I'll check with my physician to see if I can compete."

If he can't make it there should be several other local muscles competing.

My favorite entry happens to be a living doll. Um-hm, I refer to Lynda Iverson of Boyes Hot Springs, who won the title last year as the world's champion female wristwrestler. You should have heard the ooh's and ahhh's from the male segment of the crowd when Mrs. Iverson ankled up to the stage and proceeded to mow down all opposition. Her title gained Mrs. Iverson considerable publicity, including an appearance on a Hollywood television show.

How can anyone so pretty and curvy be so strong? Well, Mrs. Iverson operates a beauty parlor in Boyes Springs and I imagine she developed her strength working on some knuckleheads.

Meanwhile, Petaluma already is buzzing with excitement over this tournament which in recent years has gained worldwide notoriety, including appearance on the American Broadcasting Co.'s "Wide World of Sports" and considerable mention in cartoonist Charles Shulz's "Peanuts" strip. "Snoopy," Shulz' Beagle character, entered the tournament last year but got lost looking for Petaluma. And besides, who ever heard of a Beagle with a wrist?

Started a decade ago by Petaluma columnist Bill Soberanes, barkeep Mike Gilardi and former major league trainer Jack Homel, this unique tournament has grown from the backroom of Gilardi's bar to the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Auditorium. It will be packed again this Friday and Saturday evenings.

Entries include lumberjacks, sumo giants, farmers, truck drivers and anyone with muscles on their muscles. Yes, even including tennis elbowed attorneys and beautiful beauticians.

Included as favorites this year are Homer Keanu, a 350-pounder from Hawaii; Ed White, lineman for the Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League; Mervin Lentz, champion of Oregon; Will Parker, selected after eliminations aboard a cruise ship off Tahiti; three entries from Grand Bahama Island; Western Airlines executive Ed Beuerman; and various ladies in an obvious move by the Women's Lib.

And to think, Petaluma once was noted for its chickens and eggs and a green house, not necessarily in that order; now it's the wrist capital of the world.

Strong wrists, that is.

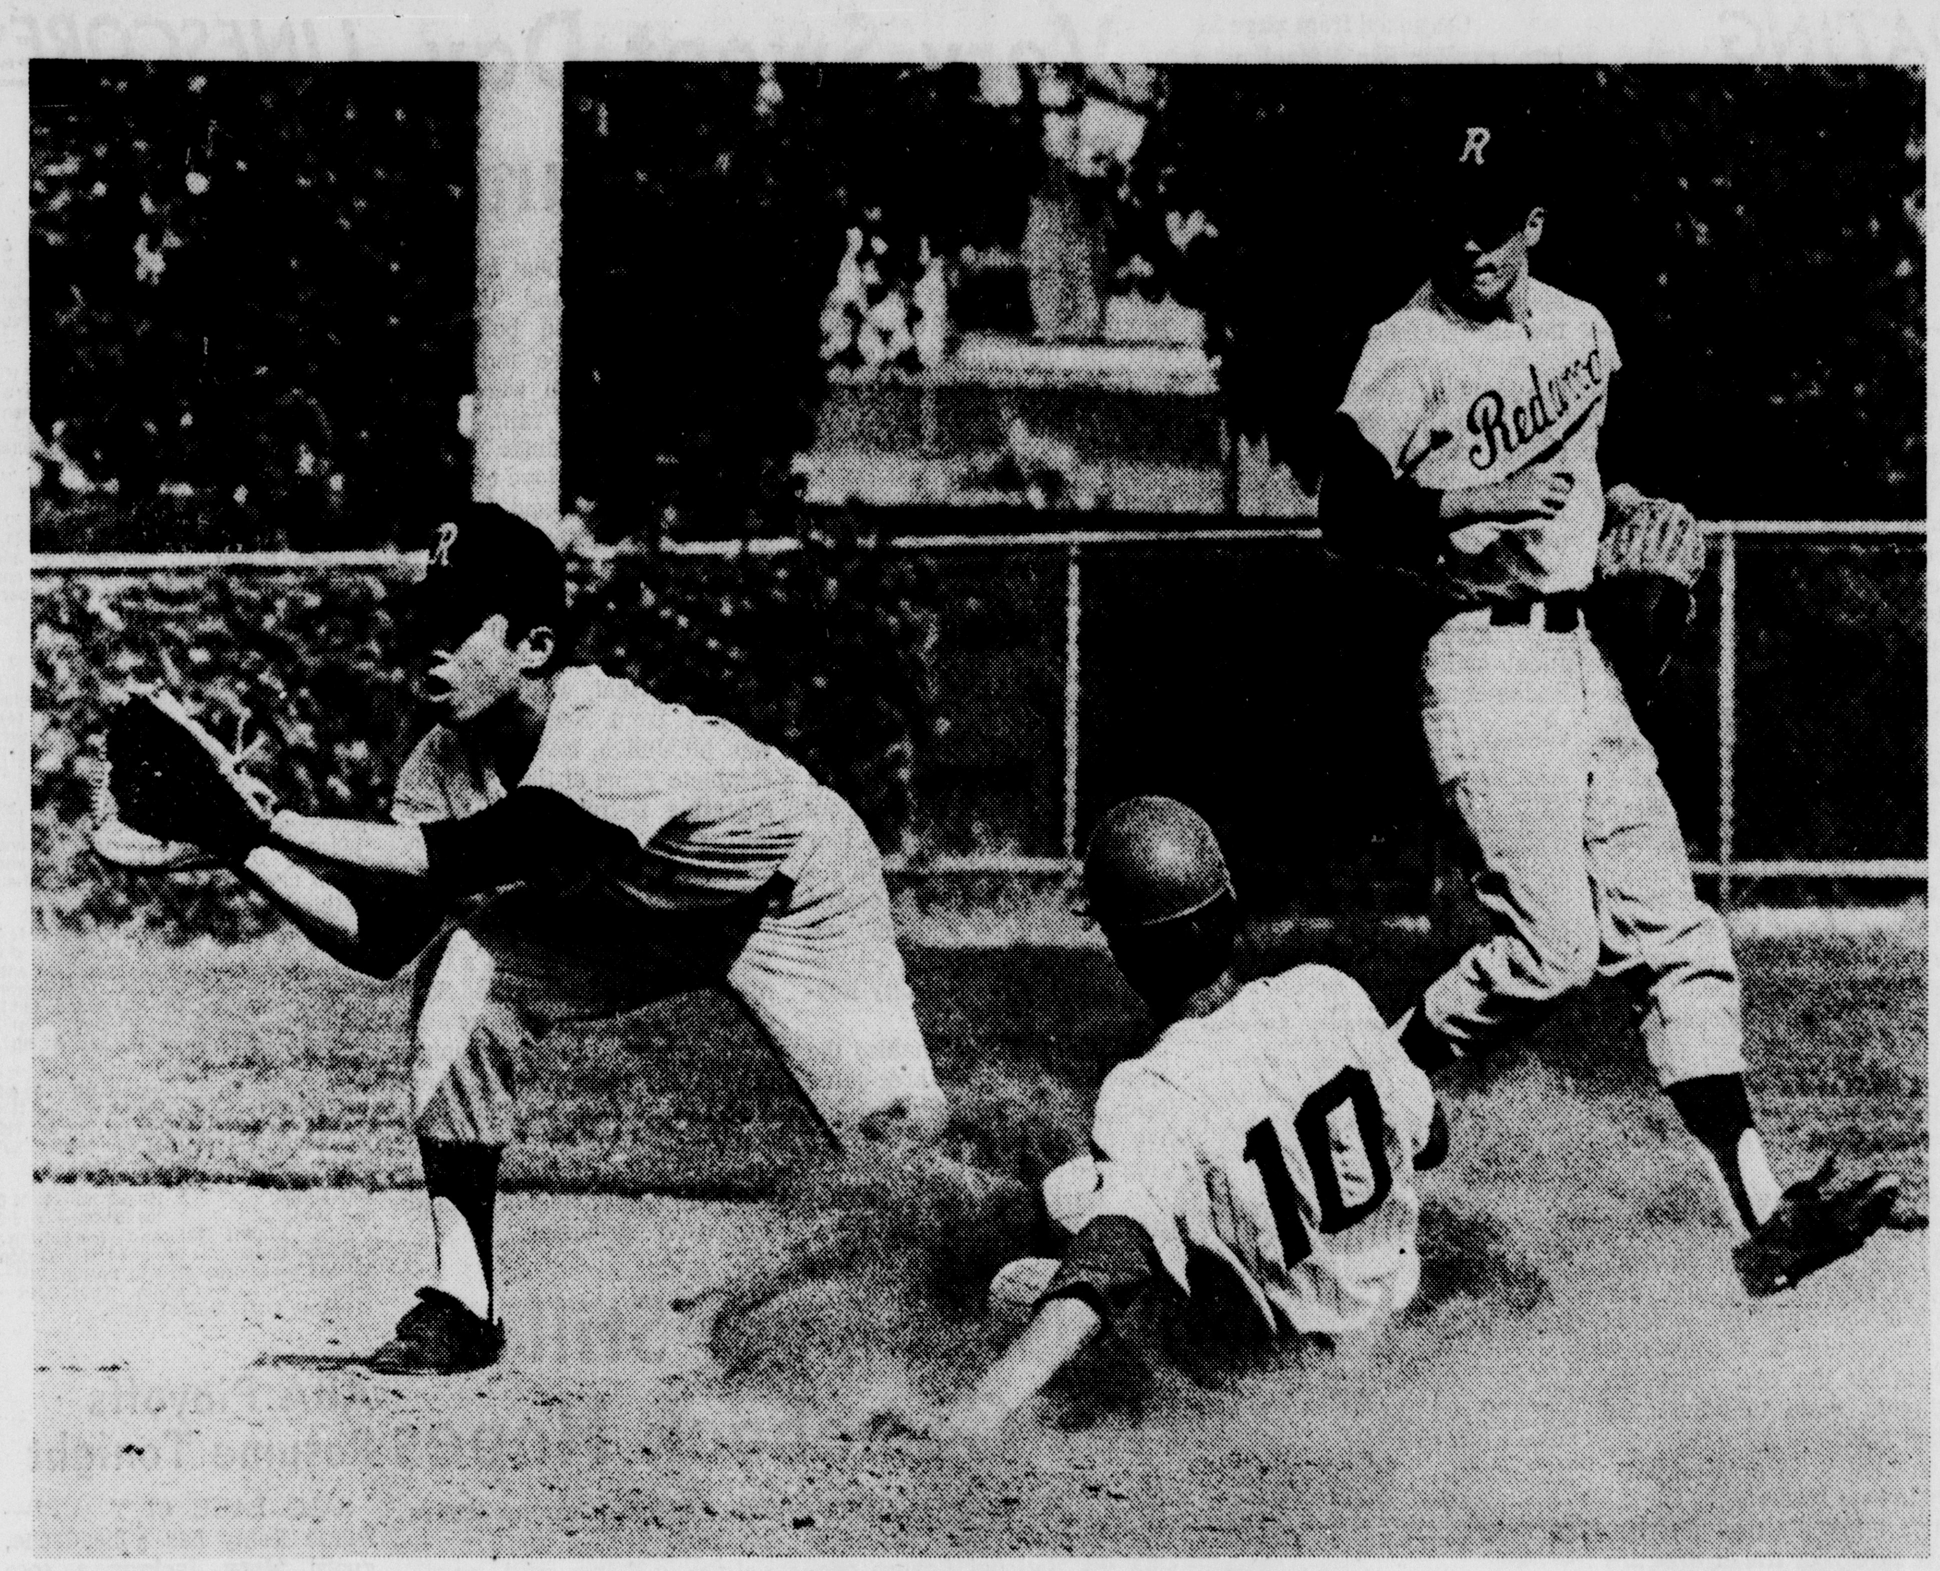
Leach, Hawkin To Help BYU In Defense Of Title

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Former Marin County high school stars Ray Leach and Don Hawkin, who helped Brigham Young win the Western Athletic Conference golf title last year, are back to help in defense at the 1971 WAC meet which begins tomorrow at the Tucson Country Club.

Also back for the Cougars is the player who won individual honors at last year's meet, Chip Garriss. He, along with Novato's Leach, who took second last year, and Hawkin, formerly of San Rafael, who tied for third, make the Provo Utah team the favorite to repeat as champions.

The odds on BYU came down last week, however, when Arizona State, which finished in second place last year at the WAC meet, edged the Cougars by eight strokes in the Arizona Invitational tournament, also in Tucson.

San Marin Pitcher Hurls A No-Hit Game



A CLEAN STEAL — San Rafael High School's Pete Treanor slid safely into second with a stolen base yesterday in the first inning against Redwood, as Giants' second baseman Daryle Edralin awaited the throw and shortstop Scott Barrie backed him up. The Bulldogs scored three times in the first, and went on to win, 6-5.

Terra Linda Turns Back Novato, 4-1

Pitching is the name of the game, and Rick Jensen is the name of the pitcher who yesterday fired the first no-hit, no-run game of the Marin County Athletic League baseball season. The senior righthander faced only three batters over the minimum as he brought the San Marin High School Mustangs a 2-0 victory over Tamalpais High in Novato.

On the other side of Novato, in a game less artful but more important to the league standings, the Terra Linda Trojans revitalized their pennant hopes by knocking off league-leading Novato, 4-1. And in San Anselmo, the Marin Catholic Wildcats took new hope also as they downed Drake, 2-0 to stay tied for second place with Terra Linda.

The other MCAL contest yesterday saw San Rafael score a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat fourth place Redwood, 6-5 at Albert Park.

Jensen, in running his 1971 record to 3-0, needed only 87 pitches to dispose of the Indians of Mill Valley. Mixing a well-controlled fastball with an off speed curve, he kept the ball low constantly, so that only one ball was hit to the outfield off him. Clifford Hall lined to Jim Thompson in the first inning, and it was easy sailing the rest of the way.

Only three walks and an error came between Jensen and perfection, and one base on balls was erased on a double play.

The game's only two runs came in the first inning. Thompson led off with a triple, and after Greg Mazeres walked, scored when Mazeres stole and Indian catcher Bill Rudolph threw the ball into centerfield, Mazeres came home on a single by Rich Burden.

Scott Seefeldt, Terra Linda's ace righthander who lost to Novato the first time he faced them this year, got his revenge in five-hit fashion and in the process boosted the Trojans and indirectly Marin Catholic to within a game and a half of the Hornets. The bulky senior displayed magnificent control, walking only one man, and he blanked the powerful home team over the last six innings.

The victory was especially satisfying since it came at the expense of Mike Lamb, Novato's lefthander who was 5-0 going into the game. It looked as though he might be on the way to No. 6 for five innings, during which he didn't allow a hit. But in the sixth, Terra Linda came up with three runs to sew up the win for Seefeldt. Larry Kerr and Bill Sherbert provided run-producing singles, and Hornet third baseman Randy Jackson committed an error to allow the other run to score.

Olson collared Drake on four hits, and shortstop Steve Sherry knocked in one run and scored the other as Marin Catholic won its seventh game of the campaign. Olson ran his record to 4-1 with the masterful effort, which saw him pitch his way out of a bases-loaded, nobody out jam in the bottom of the sixth.

Sherry was perfect with three hits, including a triple, in three trips to the plate, and Wildcat catcher Paul Riccardi continued his hot hitting with two for two.

Gary Burns walked and moved around to score the win-

REDS CAN DO NO RIGHT

Giants Can Do No Wrong

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

It seems as if the San Francisco Giants can do no wrong and the Cincinnati Reds can do no right.

The Giants continued to rule supreme and the Reds continued to flounder Tuesday night as Willie McCovey, Bobby Bonds and Dick Dietz smashed home runs and Gaylord Perry pitched a six-hitter to lead San Francisco to a 6-1 victory over Cincinnati.

The triumph left the surging Giants eight games ahead of second-place Los Angeles and Atlanta in the National League West. The Reds, who were in the Giants' position last season as they romped virtually uncontested through the NL West, are mired in fifth place, 11 1-2 games behind.

The Giants, now 24-9, have the best mark in baseball despite the fact that slugger McCovey has been bothered by injury and Perry had not won since April 17 after winning 23 games last season.

San Francisco ripped Jim Merritt for six runs within the first three innings. Bonds and Dietz hit bases empty homers in the first and the Giants added two more runs in the inning on singles by rookie Chris Speier, McCovey and Ken Henderson and Buddy Bradford's throwing error. McCovey followed a walk to Willie Mays in the third with his eighth home run.

Merritt, who won 20 games last season, has not won since last Aug. 26 when he injured his left elbow. He is 0-4 this season.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York trounced Houston 8-1, Chicago stopped Philadelphia 62, St. Louis ripped Montreal 104, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 6-1 and Pittsburgh whipped San Diego 10-4.

Two former Giants had key roles in the New York and Chicago victories.

Dave Marshall smashed the second grand slam homer of his career during a five-run sixth inning as the Mets stunned Houston. Nolan Ryan pitched a three-hitter for the Mets to run his record to 4-0 and Larry Dierker absorbed his first defeat of the season after five straight triumphs.

New York led 3-1 in the sixth

Pro Cagers Decide On All-Star Game

NEW YORK (UPI) —The National Basketball Association has agreed to mix with the American Basketball Association —but only on the court and not in one.

The players of both professional leagues Tuesday retaliated against their club owners by announcing they will promote and stage a "Super Game" in the Houston Astrodome on Friday night, May 28. The game, which was initiated without the knowledge of either league commissioner, will mark the first meeting ever of teams from the two rival leagues and will be televised nationally by TVS Television Network,, beginning at 8:30 pm (EDT).

However, Oscar Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks, president of the NBA Players' Association, made it clear that this game in no way was to be interpreted as an effort by the two leagues as a steppingstone toward a peaceful merger.

"We intend to show the public that the ultimate basketball event can be presented within the competitive structure of our free enterprise system," said Robertson. "The Super Game, promoted entirely by the players ,p:will show that the gwc professional leagues can play against each other at the highest competitive level without an illegal merger."

Only last Friday the owners of the two leagues agreed in principle to end their costly four-year feud and to begin seeking Congressional legislation enabling the formation of a single league.

Robertson said it was the intention of the players to show that games between teams of the two leagues were possible without the necessity of a merger. He said the idea for the all-star game was conceived a long time ago and that it was only coincidental that the announcement of the game occurred so soon after the two leagues agreed to seek peace.

"The owners refused to present any game $etween the two leagues without such a merger," said Robertson. "By such refusal, the owners' sole motivation becomes clear — money. What should be of interest is the fan and the quality of product he sees. The players have that interest and because of it they will meet the public's desire for a Super Game."

The game will present 10 leading players from the NBA against 10 from the ABA.

Those players representing the NBA are Robertson and Lew Alcindor of the Milwaukee Bucks, Dave DeBusschere and Walt Frazier of the New York Knickerbockers, Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics, Elvin Hayes of the San Diego Rockets, Nate Thurmond of the San Francisco Warriors, Earl Monroe of the Baltimore Bullets and Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons.

Representing the ABA will be Rick Barry and Bill Melchionni of the New York Nets, Roger Brown and Mel Daniels of the Indiana Pacers, Willie Wise and Zelmo Beaty of the Utah Stars, Dan Issel of the Kentucky Colonels, Charlie Scott of the Virginia Squires, Larry Jones of the Floridians and Jimmy Jones of the Memphis Pros.

"I think this game is necessary o show the public the best ballplayers in both leagues," said Monroe. "A lot of players aren't really show, like those in the ABA where they get little television exposure. This is a chance for them to prove their ability. Players from the NBA will benefit from the game because some of the money goes into the player pool and we're helping out underprivileged kids."

The proceeds of the game will go primarily to charity.

Epstein In Swing Of Things

CLEVELAND (UPI) —Mike Epstein is getting in the swing of things with the Oakland A's but Steve Dunning's swing carried much more weight.

Epstein collected four singles in five at-bats Tuesday night for his first hits since coming to Oakland from Washington in a weekend trade. However,D unning, a former Stanford University pitcher, cracked a grand slam homer off Diego Segui to help Cleveland beat the Athletics 7-5 in the opener of a two-game series.

In tonight's game, Chuck Dobson makes his first start for the A's in nearly a month. He has been bothered by a sore elbow and is without a decision so far this season.

Opposing Dobson will be fastballing lefthander Sam McDowell (1-4) whom the A's covet. But the deal has been hung up because Cleveland wants either Reggie Jackson or Rick Monday included in the trade.

Dunning, who beat the A's 2-1 two weeks ago, wasn't around at the end. He helped stake himself to a 5-0 lead with his first homer in the major leagues but walked across the first Oakland run in the third inning and then was lifted when he couldn't get anybody out in the fifth as the A's erupted for four runs to tie the score.

Big blow for Oakland in the fifth was Monday's three-run homer that sent Dunning to the showers.

Reliever Phil Hennigan took over for Dunning and retired the side in Order. The righthander faced only 14 batters over the final four innings to notch his first decision of 1971.

Also making his initial appearance for Oakland was lefthanded reliever Darold Knowles, obtained with Epstein from the Senators. Knowles

A 'Homer' Series For Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (UPI) —The National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals between Montreal and the Chicago Black Hawks is turning out to be a homer series but Canadiens' coach Al MacNeil intends to change that.

Montreal defeated Chicago 5-2 in the fourth game Tuesday night to square the series at two games apiece. Montreal also won the third game on its own ice but Chicago took the first two contests in the Windy City where the series resumes Thursday night.

"We forechecked them right from the start," said MacNiel. "But they do have the advantage of playing two more games in their own rink. That is if the series goes the full seven games. But I know we can bring this style of hockey back to Chicago with us."

The rookie coach added, "I will admit we played wide open in spots but we have a skating team and we tired them out."

The game was delayed several minutes in the final period when a brawl broke out and eventually seven players were ejected from the contest.

Pete Mahovlich, who opened the scoring for Montreal after only one minute of play said, "They tried to intimidate us but this team doesn't back down from anybody. I know when I get hit I play better."

Montreal also got a two goal effort in the second period from Yvan Cournoyer and single goals by 18-year veteran Jean Beliveau and rookie defenseman Guy LaPointe.

Both teams had 32 shots on goal but Canadiens' rookie goalie Ken Dryden was sensational in the middle session as he kicked aside 16 drives. He gave up a power play goal to Stan Mikita in the first period and Dennis Hull beat him with a slap shot in the second period.

"I was a lot busier tonight than in the third game," said Dryden. "But I'm not tired out yet and I don't think their goalie (Tony Esposito) is either."

Canadiens left winger John Ferguson reinjured his hip, which was originally hurt in the semi-final series against ghe Minnesota North Stars, and was forced to miss most of the game. "I'll be back in there on Thursday night, said Ferguson.

Chicago Coach Billy Reay, who was annoyed at the officiating in the third game which Montreal won 4-2, had no complaints about the calls Tuesday night. "I give the Canadiens full credit for the win, they deserved to win."

BOATING

Tips About Hazards Of Trailering Boats

I had stopped at a traffic light one day last summer while I was towing my empty boat trailer. It's one of those long, low, skeleton type things.

There was a bump on my rear end and I looked in the rear-view mirror and saw that a car had run into the trailer. The trailer wasn't scratched but damage to the other car's chrome was about $40. The driver later admitted that he hadn't seen the trailer.

Since then I've been very conscious of just how difficult it is to notice an empty boat trailer, when you are driving along. A particularly dangerous situation is when one is trying to move out in heavy traffic on to a fast highway from an approach road where incoming cars can merge without stopping.

It's common to come up to speed with the traffic then slip in behind a car in the main stream. If he's towing a trailer that you haven't noticed — disaster!

I now decorate my empty trailer with a couple of "flag poles" made from one inch by two inch lumber. They are fastened by small, inexpensive clamps to the frame and supported by lengths of string run forward from the tops of the poles to the winch stand. I have a couple of flags, burgees and pennants strung along the string.

Anybody who can't see that trailer has to be blind, and it hasn't been hit since last year.

There's a lot of hazard in trailering a boat as many of the questions we are asked indicate.

Q. My trailer and boat start to sway every time a big truck goes by. Some time I have to go half a mile before it stops wiggling from side to side. Can I stop it?

A. The problem called "fishtailing," is usually caused by poor distribution of weight . . . usually too far to the rear. Or it could be due to soft tires on the car. First, bring more weight forward on the trailer tongue.

Q. I tow a 2,800 pound boat — over a bad road. Sometimes the boat pitches so badly the car is hard to steer. Is there a better way?

A. Get the kind of trailer hitch used on travel trailers or heavy camper trailers. It's called a "load equalizer" hitch, and it limits the downward motion of the connection between the car and trailer. Equalizer hitches are a must for boat and trailer combinations over 1,800 pounds.

Q. The pump jockey at my local filling station under-inflated my trailer tires and I had one blow out. Is there any way to educate service station attendants?

A. In this problem you are on your own. Never depend on service station personnel. Check the tires yourself. Many service station employees, unfamiliar with trailers, still do not realize that trailer tires require much greater pressures than car tires . . . some as high as 90 pounds.

Q. How much weight should be on the hitch ball?

A. Adjust the weight distribution in your boat so that one-tenth of the entire trailer load, or a minimum of 50 pounds, is resting on the car. I use the bathroom scale to adjust my trailer load.

Q. What is the greatest hazard in boat trailering?

A. I think it's tire inflation. Make sure your trailer tires are correctly inflated. If they aren't they will become hot, the heat will melt the lubricant in the wheel bearings and the bearings will run dry. After that, it's a toss up which goes first, the tire or the bearing. Either way a serious accident could be the result.

Q. Why such tiny wheels on a boat trailer?

A. This is to allow the boat to overhang the wheels, so as not to exceed maximum vehicle width, yet still keep it low for easy launching.

Q. Any trailering safety checks?

A. Yes — after I get out of the city I stop and check the safety chains, the tension on the boat tie-downs, and the cover, then I feel the tires and wheel hubs. If they are hot I stop at the next service station to see why they are hot. It could be poor inflation or lack of wheel bearing lubricant.

when Ken Boswell and Jerry Grote singled and Bud Harrelson and Tim Foli walked to force in a run. George Culver relieved Dierker and Marshall greeted him with his first homer of the season.

Bill Hands, backed by three early home runs, scattered five hits as the Cubs beat Philadelphia. John Callison hit a tworun homer, his first of the season, in the second and Billy Williams added a two-run shot in the third. Santo added another two-run homer later in the inning to put the game out of reach.

Joe Torre's two-run homer in the fifth inning broke a tie game and sparked St. Louis past Montreal. Torre's homer, his fifth, followed Lou Brock's single and gave the Cardinals a 5-3 lead. They scored four runs in the ninth on Dick Schofield's two-run blast and Torre's second homer of the night.

Gene Clines' two-run triple highlighted a four-run fifth inning that lifted Pittsburgh past the Padres. San Diego led 2-1 in the fifth when the Pirates parlayed four hits and a pair of errors by catcher Bob Barton into four runs.

Roberto Clemente drove in three runs for Pittsburgh and Manny Sanguillen contributed a double and three singles.

Bill Buckner hit a three-run homer and Willie Davis slashed four hits as the Dodgers beat Atlanta. Buckner's homer came after Bill Russell tripled in ghe fourth and winning pitcher Claude Osteen, now 5-2, walked.

ning run for San Rafael on a ground rule double by Dave Urquhart and Jim Thorne's single to left. Both hits came after two were out in the bottom of the sixth. Urquhart, the league's leading hitter, had gone hitless in three trips before smashing his double, which bounced over the left field fence.

The win went to John Klingler, and he sweated to earn it. The tall righthander threw enough pitches for two games, and failed to get Redwood out in order in any inning. In the top of the seventh he was in trouble as usual, but a rifle throw from rightfielder Pete Treanor after a single by Ray Judah nailed pinch runner Kirk Radke at the plate.

Portland Signs Seven-Footer

PORTLAND (UPI) —Seven-foot Bill Smith of Syracuse has signed a multi-year contract to play with the Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketbal Association.

Smith's 1,451 points and 903 rebounds were the second highest total in Syracuse history. He set a single season rebound record of 378 and averaged 22.7 points as the Orangemen compiled a 19-7 record.

Smith's signing gives Portland four of its first five draft choices under contract. The others are top choice Sidney Wicks of UCLA, Charles Yelverton of Fordham and Larry Steele of Kentucky.

Blanda Gets Award As Raiders' MVP

RENO, Nev. (UPI) —Quarterback George Blanda was honored Tuesday night as the Oakland Raiders' most valuable player in 1971 according to a vote of his teammates.

He received the Third Down Award, co-sponsored by the Newspaper Enterprise Association and the Seamless Sports Equipment Co.

Very Sweet Day For Rettenmund

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Earl Weaver has kept his promise to Merv Rettenmund, and now the Baltimore Orioles' outfielder is beginning to repay his manager's confidence.

Weaver promised Rettenmund at the end of last season that the 27-year-old outfielder would get to play a lot this year after the youngster hit .322 with 18 home runs in only 106 games in 1970.

This year, Weaver has used Rettenmund quite regularly, but Merv has not really lived up to last season's performance. However, Tuesday night he showed signs of breaking out of his spring slump with four hits in five at bats, including a 10th inning single which scored Brooks Robinson with the run that gave the Orioles a 5-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Rettenmund's hit enabled the Orioles to snap a three-game losing streak and his four-for-five night raised his average from .196 to .245.

In other American League games, California blanked Detroit, 5-0; Boston beat Minnesota, 5-4; Cleveland defeated Oakland, 7-5; and both New York at Milwaukee and Washington at Chicago were postponed because of rain.

Rettenmund's single in the 10th was off the glove of shortstop Fred Patek and followed walks to Robinson and Dave Johnson. The Royals had tied the score at 4-4 in the ninth on a double by Joe Keough and a triple by Amos Otis.

Clyde Wright, with home run support from Ken Berry and Ken McMullen, tossed his first complete game of the season in defeating Detroit. The Angels' lefthander, who won 22 games last season, scattered eight hits in boosting his record to 3-3.

Duane Josephson and Carl Yastrzemski each belted a two-run homer to pace the Red Sox' victory. The Red Sox scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning when Rico Petrocelli singled, advanced to third on two infield outs and scored when third baseman Rick Renick booted Josephson's grounder.

Reds' Skipper Still Has Comeback Hopes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds ran away with the National League pennant last year. But that was last year.

This season, the Reds are 11-12 games out of first place after losing 6-1 Tuesday night to the West Division leading San Francisco Giants.

Haunted by ineffective starting pitching, Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson holds onto the stubborn hope that his club can make a comeback without making personnel changes.

"You know me, I don't act too quickly," Anderson said in the clubhouse after watching his club's won-lost record fall to 11-19.

Anderson's 20-game winner of last season, Jim Merritt, allowed eight hits and ?ix runs in six innings of work against San Francisco to absorb his fourth loss without a victory. Merritt has not won a game since getting win no. 20. last Aug. 26. He's had elbow trouble.

"I'm not that discouraged with Merritt," Anderson said. "He'll be all right once he gets his control. He just hasn't had enough work to be sharp. The guy that worries me is Simpson."

Anderson was referring to Wayne Simpson, the rookie sensation of last season who has pitched poorly this year after hurting his shoulder in 1970. Simpson is 1-1 with a 5.12 earned run average.

"In his last outing he was 50 per cent or more away from his normal fastball," Anderson said. "I wouldn't mind him being wild if he threw smoke, but he's been throwing lollipops."

The decline of Simpson and Merritt this year underscores their importance to the Reds. Cincinnati has gotten only one complete game out of its starting staff, thereby shifting an overdose of work to the bullpen.

"Our bullpen is shot," Anderson lamented. "and it's only May."

The Giants teed off on Merritt for four runs in the first inning and two in the third to back the six-hit pitching of Gaylord Perry. The victory was Gaylord's fourth this season and his first since April 17.

Bobby Bonds and Dick Dietz hit bases empty homers in the opening inning and Willie McCovey added a two-run shot in the third.

McCovey went 3-for-4, raising his average to .311 after batting .172 only 17 games ago. His resurgence has helped the Giants open an eight-game division lead. San Francisco leads the majors in victories with 24.

McCovey's homer, his seventh of 1971, was a tremendously high blast which barely cleared the rightfield fence as it finally came down.

Teammate Rich Robertson joked about the tall homer, telling McCovey: "That's the first time I've seen an infield fly go for a homer."

ABA Playoffs Resume Tonight

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Zelmo Beaty has a headache, guard Merv Jackson a sore knee and Red Robbins the flu, but the Utah Stars are ready tonight for the Kentucky Colonels in their fifth game of the final American Basketball Association playoffs.

So far, each team has won both its games on its home floor to deadlock the best-of-seven series at 2-2.

Utah will wind up with the home-court advantage in the final game if the series is strung to the limit. Game No. 6 will be played Saturday at Louisville.

Veteran Bowlers Draw PBA Fines

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Dick Weber and Nelson Burton Jr. were fined and reprimanded by the Professional Bowlers Association Tuesday for "unusual deliveries" in last month's $100,000 Tournament of Champions here.

The PBA said the two top-ranked pros, who between them have won 29 championships, "rolled the entire game in a manner contrary to their normal delivery." The amount of their fines was not disclosed.

The PBA Tournament Committee said Weber "tossed his game with a 'backup ball,' arcing from left to right." Burton "shot the same way, interspersing an occasional lefthanded shot."

The PBA said neither bowler protested the ruling and "admitted their unusual deliveries in that match game were prompted by a desire to try to emulate the lefthanders who dominated the play, as well as show a mild protest at what they believed to be inequitable lane conditions."

Basketball

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (UPI) —Russia's National Basketball Team opened its tour of the United States Tuesday night with an 83-82 victory over the U.S. All Stars.

Modestas Paulauskis, a 6-foot-5 guard, scored 22 points and 7-2 center Sergei Kovalenko added 18 to lead the Soviet team. Darnell Hillman, a top draft choice of both the San Francisco Warriors and Indiana Pacers who will play with the American Basketball Association Pacers next season, led the U.S. team with 19 points.

Football

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kicker Tom Dempsey, who gained fame in the National Football League although he was born with only half a right foot and a stub of a right arm, will be honored as the "most courageous player" by the professional football writers of America, it was announced Tuesday.

Dempsey set a league record by booting a 63-yard field goal against Detroit last year that gave the New Orleans Saints a last-second 19-17 victory over the lions. In two full seasons with the Saints, Dempsey has kicked four field goals of more than 50 yards.

Baseball

KANSAS CITY (UPI) —Ted Savage, a utility outfielder with the Milwaukee Brewers, was acquired by the Kansas City Royals Tuesday in exchange for minor league infielder Tommy Matchick.

DETROIT (UPI) —The Milwaukee Brewers announced Tuesday the trade of pitcher John Gelnar and utility man Jose Herrera to the Detroit Tigers in return for pitcher Jim Hannan.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —The San Diego Padres announced Tuesday the signing of veteran relief pitcher Bob Miller as a Free agent. Miller was released by the Chicago Cubs earlier this month.

General

OAKLAND (UPI) — Frank Sanchez has resigned as public relations director of the California Golden Seals hockey team to become promotions director of the Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association, it was announced Tuesday.

Sanchez, 28, will join Alex Hannum, newly named coach, president and general manager of the Rockets, on June 1.

Perry Thrives On Hard Work

Gaylord Perry got off to a flying start this season. The rangy righthander of the Giants won his first three games, completing all of them, one with a tidy three-hit shutout. The 1971 baseball season was just 10 days into its six months schedule when Perry notched No. 3 on April 17.

On April 21 Perry lost a pitching duel to Bob Gibson of the Cardinals. Since then Perry pitched the equivalent of three complete games but wound up with three no-decisions. The three games turned into extra inning affairs, all won by Perry's bullpen teammates.

NATURALLY, Perry is happy the Giants won the ball games but at the same time he also, naturally, was wondering how long the no-decision stuff was going to continue.

"Don't misunderstand me," said Perry, "what's good for the team is good for me, too. But I hate explaining no-decisions. It's much easier to point to wins. You never have to explain a victory."

Perry is a forthright fellow in discussing such matters and is the first to admit that his no-decision game last Friday, instead of his fourth victory, was his own fault. He got a little carelesswith a 1-1 pitch with two out in the ninth and a 3-2 lead turned into a 3-3 tie when Earl Williams of the Braves belted it for a homer.

SUCH HAPPENINGS are trying moments for hard-working pitchers intent on another 20-victory season. However, Perry, having survived many frustrating experiences early in his major league career, knows how to deal with problems, including the present no-decision one.

"There's no secret in how to handle it," said Perry. "All it will take is a string of complete games, finishing what I start."

Perry does usually finish what he starts. Last season he won 23 and completed 23. Yet, last year he got off to a slow start, encountering one early season frustration after another.

IN HIS FIRST seven games a year ago, Perry pitched a total of 58 innings but his record was 3-4 because he was allowing an average of five runs a game.

In his first seven games this year, Perry pitched a total of 59 innings but his record is 3-1 because his earned run average is 3.05.

Thus, his no-decision disappointments this season are minor matters compared to last year's early season headaches.

PERRY ALWASY gets stronger as the season progresses. Hard work agrees with him, makes him tougher. He's always in top physical shape because of the disciplined way he trains. For the past two seasons Perry has led the National League in innings pitched, 325 in 1969, 329 last year.

Literally, he was stronger at the end of last season than when it opened. He streaked through the stretch, winning six-in-a-row, including four consecutive shutouts which tied a Giant club record set in 1950 by Sal Maglie.

Three Shutouts In Marin Prep Tennis Matches

Drake High School's tennis team romped past Marin Catholic 4-1 yesterday, to virtually insure a second place tie for the Pirates in the Marin County Athletic League net race.

Redwood High, off a tough 3-2 win last week, eased by Tamalpais, Terra Linda whipped Novato, and San Rafael smashed San Marin, all by 5-0 shutout scores.

The Drake Pirates got two tough wins from Jerry Suyderhoud and Jim Horen. Suyderhoud defeated archrival Bill Kinser, 6-4, 6-4, and Horen upset John Beritzhoff in three sets.

Once again, the Redwood Giants of Larkspur were led by Gary Walter, who routed Mark Robinson 6-0, 6-1.

Other top performances were from Mark Yuan of Terra Linda, and Dave Bacon of San Rafael.

Moments Of Truth For Jim Ryun

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI)—The moments of truth are at hand for world mile record holder Jim Ryun—or are they?

On May 16 at Philadelphia Ryun runs in the Martin Luther King Freedom Games against the man who put him into retirement two years ago with two defeats—Marty Liquori.

On June 6 Ryun goes up against sensational Oregon sophomore Steve Prefontaine in a local meet.

Later in June the National AAU meet will be held here.

Ryun is aiming for next year's Olympics—and it so happens the U.S. Olympic trials next year algo will be held here.

All of which helps explain why the slim 24-year-old University of Kansas graduate picked Oregon to launch his "comeback."

"I like the climate very well," he said. "It's much milder than the midwest. The rain doesn't trouble me this much.

Ryun, who formerly worked as a photographer for a Topeka newspaper, now is doing the same kind of job for a major lumber company (Bohemia) here.

"I take pictures for the company magazine and do whatever other photo assignments that come up for the company," he said.

He also runs 15 miles a day in two daily workouts. He said he gets his coaching "by correspondence" from Bob Timmons, his coach at Kansas. Ryun runs with University of Oregon coach Bill Bowerman's team in practice when the time factor works out.

"I'm very satisfied with my progress so far," he said.

He should be.

On Feb. 15 in San Diego he matched the indoor mile record of 3:56.4. That was his second race in 20 months. In his first "comeback" race he had run 4:04.4.

Later, in the Kansas Relays, he ran the second fastest mile ever by an American—3:55.8—which also is the fastest in the world so far this year.

His world record of 3:51.1 was set at Bakersfield, Calif., on June 23, 1967—when he was 20 years old.

And Ryun will tell you that distance runners "mature" later on.

Asked about the forthcoming race against Prefontaine, who turned 20 in January, he said of the Oregon sophomore: "I think his best races are ahead of him. It takes time to mature physically and mentally."

Prefontaine has said he hopes, in effect, to run Ryun into the ground by going 2:54 in the first three-quarters of a mile.

Asked about that, Ryun said, "That's fine."

Prefontaine twice has gone under four minutes, once when he finished third last year and this year against UCLA when he ran far ahead of the field in 3:59.1.

About the 1972 Olympics, Ryun repeated earlier statements — "It's too far off to be able to talk about. I'm not even sure that I will be running next year. I have to qualify first of all."

The race against Liquori is being built up as a "mile of the century." But Ryun and his wife, Anne, do not look at it that way. Anne, who accompanies her husband along with their 10-month-old daughter, Heather, on his racing trips, said: "Jim and I put each race in perspective, and he runs one at a time."

If Ryun, who has delayed post graduate work to concentrate on training, loses to Liquori, there's still Prefontaine. And then there's still the AAU.

If he should lose out on all three, there's a chance, as he says, that he might not be running next year. But Ryun has matured—and is at the age when distance runners are at their peak. If he loses he will know whether he is really not good enough—or simply whether it was a bad day.

He finished second in the Olympic 1500 meters in Mexico City's high altitude in 1968, but he also holds the world's 1500 meter record—3:33.1—set at Los Angeles June 8, 1967.

Gymnastics Night At Terra Linda High

The combined boys and girls gymnastics teams at Terra Linda High School will give a demonstration of the sport tomorrow night from 7 o'clock to 9 in the school's gym.

The program will feature various individual and team events on rings, parallel bars, vault, beam high bar and side horse.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Proceeds will go to purchase equipment for the gymnastics teams.

Rancho Cotate Nine Whips Healdsburg, 6-1

The Rancho Cotate High School Cougars continued their relentless drive for the championship of North Bay League II by climbing over the Healdsburg Greyhounds 6-1 yesterday.

Winning pitcher for the Cougars was Dave Christenson who went all the way, allowing only 4 hits while striking out 3.

Different generations. But very much alike when it comes to their craft. They live for it. And work for it. And love it.

The Beams, too, have a craft—the distilling of Bourbon. And for six generations now, son has followed father at that craft. Living for it. Working for it. Loving it.

It's a proud record.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

P. R. Cement Firm In Profits Pinch

Q. I bought shares of Puerto Rican Cement in 1965. I received a smaller dividend this year. Is the company in financial trouble? What is its future? — J.P.

A. In January 1971, Puerto Rican Cement directors reduced the quarterly divident to 15 cents from 27½ cents. Company, although financially sound, is experiencing operating problems at present, having reported a 4 cent a-share deficit (versus earnings of $1.46 in 1969) on a 0.4 per cent decline in sales.

The profit squeeze is largely attributable to reduced home building, lower shipments to other Caribbean areas, a 45-day strike by Puerto Rican independent materials carriers and higher costs. Until the company can turn profits around, shares may remain at or near current quotes.

Q. We recently inherited 550 shares of Wometco Enterproses about which we know nothing. We are retired and interested in income. What is your opinion of this as to income and potential? — C.T.

A. Wometco Enterprises is a diversified concern, serving primarily the leisure-time market. Stock currently yields 2 per cent - not a suitable return for investors seeking income. Company's 10-year record of sales and earnings growth was interrupted in the initial quarter of 1971 as sales slipped 1 per cent and per share profits fell 29 per cent to 17 cents. Television and movie operations reportedly were off for the period.

Since November, 1970, shares have appreciated nearly 60 per cent and are quoted about 11 per cent below the all-time high. Retain 200 shares for participation in growth expected for the leisure-time sector with the balance to be invested for income.

Firm Pace On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were firm in moderately active trading through the second hour today on the New York Sock Exchange.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index showed a gain of 0.16 at 102.78, while advances topped declines, 671 to 472.

Prices were steady in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 976 issues on the tape, 361 pointed higher, while 329 retreated.

Among the most active Amex issues were Arkansas Louisiana Gas up a point on over 50,000 shares, United Brands warrants down slightly on a volume of 49,000, and Cinerama fractionally higher on 30,000 shares.

On the Big Board, Bausch & Lomb was ahead by more than 6, while stocks up a point or so were IBM, Control Data, Polaroid, and Walt Disney.

Steels and chemicals generally tacked on fractions, while motors, and oils traded in narrowly mixed fashion.

Rails, airlines, and aircrafts also were mixed.

Bicycle Rental-Repair Service, Seashore Bicycles, Open In Olema

Olema is not especially a site for many new business ventures, but Mrs. Barbara Gunn of Inverness has started one on the Olema Ranch Campground.

This is Seashore Bicycles, a bicycle rental and repair service. She has acquired a fleet of new Schwinns, mostly adult three-speed models, but with several sizes for youngsters. She also carries several accessories and a limited assortment of parts.

There are many scenic bicycle trips to be made in the Point Reyes National Seashore area and Mrs. Gunn is working up package deals with restaurants and developing student group rates for clubs, schools and special interest groups. Hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends and holidays, and every day after June 15 through Labor Day. Hours may also be extended later to 6 p.m. and overnight rentals arranged if there is sufficient demand.

MARIN SURPLUS STORE, San Rafael (also known as the Army and Navy Surplus Store) will hold its third annual Camping and Back-Packing Show next Saturday.

The show was previously held in the parking lot, but this year with the addition of 12,000 square feet in the newly expanded store it will be held inside. Representatives from national firms will be on hand again to display specialty items newest propane and gasoline appliances, backpacking equipment, tents, sleeping bags, coolers and jugs and other gear for the outdoorsman.

Oregon Freeze-Dried Food Co. is introducing a new freeze-dried fresh egg, and other freeze-dried products will be prepared and demonstrated. There will be free gifts for the youngsters.

MARIN MAZDA at 575 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael has received a number of the new Mazda cars and these will be available for delivery after Friday.

Roland A. Bacci, president of the company, reports that there has already been a terrific turnout to inspect the RX-2 coupes and the R-100 sport coupe, all powered by the new rotary engine. Several sales have been made, with without even a test drive.

DE WITT READING CLINIC, INC., San Rafal has opened clinics in Napa and Santa Rosa. The organization for the past 15 years has been engaged in assisting children to overcome their learning problems.

This summer, in addition to individual remedial programs, study skills programs including vocabulary, comprehension development, spelling and college preparation will be offered. Full details on summer activities will be announced early in June.

FRANK'S AUTO BODY has moved from Bolinas Road in Fairfax to 1542 Fourth Street in San Rafael, where R and R Automatic Transmissions Repair is located.

Owner Frank Whiting of Forest Knolls has been in automobile body work more than 25 years.

CHARLES T. RUSSELL of Novato has been elected a vice president of National BankAmericard Corp. He is responsible for operations and security, operating regulations, interchange procedures and nationwide programs to control fraudulent use of credit cards. More Revenue Passenger Miles

CHICAGO (BW) — United Air Lines flew an estimated 1,873,784,000 revenue passenger miles during April — an increase of 4.5 per cent over the corresponding month a year ago.

Comapny officials attributed the gain to Easter falling in April this year, rather than March as in 1970, and to the dampening effect the air traffic controllers' slowdown had on April traffic last year.

The passenger load factor averaged 49 per cent, compared with 50.6 per cent in April 1970. Available seat miles increased from 3,545,277,000 to 3,817,540,000, up 7.7 per cent.

Session On Parks Saturday

A day-long discussion on park needs in Marin and elsewhere in California will be presented starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at Olney Hall, College of Marin, sponsored by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission.

Alfred Heller, president of California Tomorrow, will be featured speaker at 10:30 a.m., according to James R. Van de Weg, county park coordinator.

A slide show of parks as they are now and as they are planned will be presented by Lewis Stuart, public relations representative of Pacific Gas and Electric Co. The slides will show mainly Marin County parks but development ideas for other park areas also will be featured, Van deWeg said.

Following a lunch break, four panel discussions will be held. They are: "Recycling People's Awareness," moderated by John Hart, writer for the Pacific Sun; "Regional Park Districts," moderated by George Barnwell, publisher of the Novato Advance; "Who Needs Recreation?" moderated by George Draper of the San Francisco Chronicle; "What Do We Need Now?" moderated by Dean Meyer former mayor of Mill Valley, and "Ciscussion of Needs," moderated by Albert Boro, chairman of county parks and recreation commission.

County Counsel Douglas Maloney then will lead a discussion on ideas presented during the panel discussions.

Registration starts at 9:30 a.m. The symposium is scheduled to end at 4 p.m.

Two $1,000 Scholarships Presented

Two $1,000 scholarships have been awarded to two Marin County high school seniors by the San Rafael Council, Knights of Columbus.

The winners are Vickie Eaglebarger, of Tamalpais High School, and Mary Bullock of Terra Linda High School.

The awards will be made formally at a buffet supper at 8:15 p.m. May 26 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 167 Tunstead Avenue, San Anselmo.

Miss Eaglebarger, 18, is the daughter of Mrs. Carl Goodman of 416 Pine Street, Mill Valley. She plans to attend Sonoma State College to study psychology and sociology.

Miss Bullock, 17, is the daughter of Mrs. Helen M. Bullock of 380 Hickory Lane, San Rafael. She plans to attend the University of California to obtain a teaching credential in psychology.

Nixon Lunches With Top House Leadership

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon attended the annual "seafood gumbo" luncheon given at the Capitol Tuesday by Chairman William M. Colmer, D-Miss., of the House Rules Committee.

Former House Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts also attended the luncheon Colmer gave for members of his committee and the House leadership. It was McCormack's first visit to the Capitol since his retirement last January.

The menu included seafood gumbo, shrimp cocktail and red snapper almondine, flown in from the gulf coast.

Guilty Plea To Misdemeanor

Maurice Loveman, 30, of Mill Valley, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of possessing hashish.

He previously had been accused of a felony count of the same charge.

Loveman, who is to be sentenced June 4, was arrested March 15 when Corte Madera police stopped his truck for faulty brake lights. He was being booked at Marin County Jail on outstanding traffic warrants when police found hashish in his pocket.

Furniture Store Plan Will Get More Study

A plan to convert a deserted furniture store in Mill Valley into 15 small shops has run into a delay before the city planning commission.

After discussing a variance Monday to allow W. W. Kirsch to build the shops inside Brown's Furniture Store at 38 Miller Avenue, commissioners continued the matter to May 24 to permit more study.

Kirsch wants to supply 30 off-street parking spaces. The city code requires 118.

Planning Director Tom W. Newton said the delay will enable the commission's parking committee to study parking problems in the downtown area and whether approval of the store would increase demand for spaces greatly.

The postponement also gives Kirsch time to supply further information on what kind of stores would be constructed in the old building. Different types of businesses generate different amounts of traffic, said Newton.

The city council last year rejected plans for a 400-seat restaurant-bar for the old furniture store. Many residents argued the restaurant would increase competition for already scarce parking in the downtown area.

In other business, commissioners voted 4-3 to approve a variance to allow an existing carport at 35 Locke Lane to remain standing.

Humphrey O'Driscoll built the carport to the side property line (a five-foot setback is required) and then applied for a variance when the city building inspector discovered the carport.

Oldest Building

GREENSBURG, Ky. (UPI)—The Green County Courthouse here is the oldest public building in Kentucky still standing. The native stone structure was completed in 1799 and now houses the county library.

Sophia Removes Word 'Jewelry'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sophia Loren has removed the word "jewelry" from her dictionary.

Miss Loren, in this country for the filming of her new picture "Mortadella," lost a half million dollars in jewelry in October in a burglary at her Manhattan apartment.

"Jewelry," Miss Loren told newsmen at Kennedy Airport Monday night, "I canceled it from the dictionary."

She now is wearing fake gems, "Bought at the Dior boutique."

"They look very real," she said.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Prison Helps Inflate Your County Tax Bill

The Marin County administrator and auditor-controller have estimated that the county tax rate for next fiscal year may climb 65.5 cents to $3.23 per $100 assessed valuation.

This tax rate increase is forecast despite an increase in county revenues of at least 8.6 per cent without changing the tax rate, because of the change of assessment ratio mandated by the state this year.

It therefore means that your county taxes for next fiscal year will be about 34 per cent higher than they were for this year — more than if your property has been reappraised.

BIGGEST SHARE of the increase, according to the auditor-controller's projections, will come from the rapid rise in the cost of welfare and Medi-Cal. These are estimated to add 33.7 cents to the county rate.

There are bills in the California Legislature and in the United States Congress which may — if they pass, and pass in time — reduce this somewhat.

Next highest increase results from costs which result principally from the presence in Marin County of a state prison. These include 5.6 cents for higher insurance cost on county buildings, 7.8 cents for the county's share of the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee court proceedings, and 3.9 cents for additional security measures at the Civic Center.

NOTHING HAS BEEN DONE, as yet, about legislation to put these costs where they belong: on the people of the State of California rather than those of Marin County.

Under a 1961 law, the state pays the cost of expensive murder trials beyond what can be raised by 10 cents on the tax rate of the county where the trial is held. Since 10 cents raises more than the direct cost of the Davis-Magee trial is expected to run, this means nothing to Marin.

A bill (AB 26) by Assemblyman Pauline Davis, D-Portola (who introduced the 1961 law) would have the state pick up the tab when the cost of such a trial exceeds 5 cents on the tax rate. This bill, which already has passed the Assembly, would save Marin 2.8 cents of the estimated tax increase to cover the Davis-Magee trial.

These measures, however, are simply for financial aid to counties saddled with expensive court costs. They have nothing to do with the presence of a prison in the county.

THERE IS NO REASON why additional court, security and other costs attendant on the presence of a prison should be born by the taxpayers of the county where the prison is located. The prison is a state institution. Its inmates are sent to it from throughout the state. The costs connected with it should be borne by the state as a whole. And those costs include additional security measures, court expenses, insurance and anything else that results from the prison's presence.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has not asked our two legislators, state Sen. Peter H. Behr and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, to introduce legislation requiring the state to bear all costs attendant to location of the prison. It is time the board did so.

For that matter, it is time the legislators introduced such measures without being asked. Although the deadline for introducing bills has passed, we're sure Behr and Bagley can find a few "spot bills" around which can be amended for the purpose. We suggest they get busy.

CAPITOL REPORT

State School Control Setup Backwards — Doesn't Work

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Every four years the voters of California elect a state superintendent of public instruction.

Most voters think they are electing the man who will steer the state's public school system. They're not, according to law. The state Board of Education does that. The superintendent answers to it.

The state law makes it clear: The state superintendent of public instruction gets most of his marching orders from the board. The board must approve his programs and must approve the individuals he appoints as his deputies. The superintendent acts as the board's secretary and executive officer. He is supposed to carry out its wishes.

That is the way it is supposed to work, but it doesn't and there's little the board can do about it.

The state board of education is not elected by the people of California. Its 10 members are appointed to four-year terms by the governor — with the advice and consent of at least two-thirds of the members of the state Senate.

It's all upside down. It's backwards.

The 10 members of the state Board of Education should be elected — by the voters, by district, the way the members of the state Board of Equalization are elected now.

The board, in turn, should appoint the superintendent.

If the members do not like the way the superintendent keeps the school house, they can fire him and get a new man, or woman. And, if the citizens don't like the way the board is doing its job, they can turn its members out at election time.

The way it is now is not only backward, and upside down, it doesn't work.

For one thing, the board is usually at odds with the superintendent; any honeymoons are strictly short-lived affairs. It was that way with Max Rafferty and the Brown-appointed board, and it is shaping up that way now with Wilson Riles and the Reagan-appointed board.

It's not necessarily a question of who's right and who's wrong. It's more a matter of an engine not hitting on all cylinders. There are stalemates and foot-dragging.

Furthermore, with politics as the road to the superintendency, the person in that office is usually running for election — sometimes to higher office. Max Rafferty got the fever in 1968. There are those who think that Riles' temperature is already rising; that the Democrats may have an unexpected candidate in the 1974 gubernatorial primary.

But, without getting all riled up, it's time to change the laws. The board of education should be elected, and the superintendent should be appointed by the Board.

Assemblyman James Dent, R-Concord, a past president of the California Association of School Administrators, has introduced a constitutional amendment to do just that.

The Dent amendment proposes that "a superintendent of public instruction shall be appointed by the state board of education and shall serve at the pleasure of the board."

"The state Board of Education shall consist of 10 members and each such member shall be elected from a district composed of four state senatorial districts of contiguous territory, to be established by the Legislature."

Under Dent's proposal, the office of board member would be nonpartisan and would have a four-year term so that half the board membership would be elected every two years, members from the odd-numbered districts would be elected to short (two-year) terms the first time around.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Poor Must Make Up Reagan's Tax Saving

Add this letter to the outraged reactions you have probably gotten as the result of the news that Gov. Ronald Reagan did not pay any state income taxes and as would logically follow, probably did not pay federal income taxes either.

Even though his actions may have been legally permissible; they are not morally acceptable in view of the fact that thousands of people who are economically classified as "poor" paid income taxes. What they and we did pay included a share of what Governor Reagan did not pay. What is the reason that legal responsibility cannot be brought more in line with the moral responsibility of all of us paying our share of the cost of government? We find Governor Reagan's statement that taxes should hurt, while paying none himself, to be the most reprehensible and disgusting kind of hypocrisy.

Granted, it is easy to be the voice of gloom and doom; however, we suggest that here is one more cloud in the gathering storm of rebellion and opposition because of the flagrant and injudicious actions of some of our so-called leaders.

The greater loss is not the money to the state treasury; but the further erosion of confidence in government.

Marin Transit Systems Try Hard

As a frequent MTS bus rider I must write in response to your editorial about the bus systems in Marin County.

I personally have never found a group of people who try harder than Marin Transit Systems, Inc. They "care about people" and this is one of the reasons they may be a few minutes late occasionally. I personally have seen them stop and wait for a passenger who is waving and running across a parking lot and help a woman lift up a stroller and help her to a seat. They also wait until passengers are seated, instead of driving on just to make up for a minute lost.

I agree that the service is incomplete and not as frequent as some of us might like, but this is a factor placed upon the bus company by the Marin Transit District Board, which rejected Marin Transit Systems' 1969 proposal to start an integrated county-wide bus system . . .

Also, the bus is a tremendous bridge in the "Generation Gap," for this is a means by which epople, young and old, can get together.

I hope everyone who reads this will make it a point to ride the bus as often as possible, it really is a great experience.

Teacher Is Credit To School System

Before my daughter, Sherry, graduates from San Rafael High School, I would like to take time to write this letter in recognition of a teacher who is a credit to the San Rafael school system.

Mrs. Sue Joy, a teacher at San Rafael High School, has helped so many students do better than expected and achieve higher scholastics.

When my daughter was an average eighth grade student at Davidson Junior High School, she was enrolled in one of Mrs. Joy's math classes, where she could see Sherry's willingness to work hard to learn. Many hours were spent by Mrs. Joy, after school on her own time, to help Sherry.

During Sherry's high school days Mrs. Joy transferred to San Rafael High School and continued helping Sherry achieve her goals . . .

Mrs. Joy is an outstanding credit to the teaching profession and a credit to the San Rafael school system.

'Post-Natal Abortion' For Mental Health?

In reading Rus Walton's column of May 6 on the abortion law in California I was struck with a thought. If "mental health" can be used by a would-be mother to abort her child I think that it would be much simpler for this type of law to apply to both parents. Therefore, may I propose that a bill be enacted to give a father the right to perform a "post-natal" abortion on his offspring up to the age of 21.

My "mental health" has been affected many times by the behavior of my sons and there were times in the past that such a law would have been welcomed by me.

'Yesterday We Served Our Country'

Yesterday (May 5) my wife and I took part in the peace demonstration at the Selective Service office here in San Rafael. May I also mention that I was one of the veterans on hand. We who have served the government are hardly "communists" as some would like to believe. Now we are discharged. We are engaging in civil disobedience in hope that our fellow Americans will reexamine their hearts and consciences. Are we living up to our flag by permitting the systematic devastation of a foreign land and people? Twenty-six years of American involvement in insanity and blood is enough.

We Marin Vets for Peace once served the government. Yesterday on D Street we served our country.

Campaign Promise On Signs Ignored

A recent candidate for mayor, Rick Raznikov, made a lot of rash promises. We will never find out whether or not he intended to keep them.

One promise he made was that after the election, all of his signs would be taken down immediately. It is bad enough to see them plastered all over the telephone poles of our fair city during election time, but to see them withering on the poles several weeks after the election is truly visual pollution. One can only conclude that the rest of his eloquent promises would have been broken as quickly as this one.

If you care at all, Rick Raznikov, take your signs down.

Speech Enlightening On Vietnam Situation

On the assumption that you were not at the Commonwealth Club luncheon last Friday, I am writing to state that never before, in the many years I have been a club member, have I heard such a brilliantly illuminating address as that of Dolf M. Droge, Vietnam specialist of the National Security Council on "Vietnam and the Vietnamese"; and I do not believe I am drawing the long bow in saying that if even a quarter of our adult citizenry had the information Mr. Droge gave us concerning the Vietnamese situation and what this country has done and is doing to help the Vietnamese people help themselves, things would not be as they are in America today.

Consequently, I am wondering if it may not be possible for the I-J to help diffuse Mr. Droge's truly enlightening and important message by obtaining the text of his address from the Commonwealth Club and publishing it.

Must Good News Be Boring? Aquarian Times Proves Otherwise

WASHINGTON — The success of the Aquarian Times, a rising weekly which fairly describes itself as the only "good news" newspaper in the world, reveals something of the public revulsion against the steady diet of violence and doom which dominates so much of the media today.

It is still an amateur effort, written and edited by a small staff of inexperienced volunteers, but the fact that in its first six months this newspaper has won more than 15,000 subscribers in 356 cities in all 50 states and eight foreign countries shows that people are yearning for something they aren't getting.

Publisher Bill T. Bailey, a youngish, former advertising man, has already received over 6,000 letters from his readers and it is evident that he has tapped a public need he believes will make the Aquarian Times the widest read weekly anywhere.

OBVIOUSLY THE Aquarian Times is a distorted newspaper. It boasts of being just that and its circulation is climbing. It prints only "the news that's fun to read." It accentuates the positive, ignores the negative — no war news, no crime, no violence.

"My field of vision," explains Bailey, "is limited to good news and I never have any trouble finding it. We promote the positive side of life. You can't do anything about your liabilities if you don't know something about your assets."

I doubt very much that its subscribers are turning to the Aquarian Times so they can live in a dream world. Most of the media are so vastly overplaying gloom and so persistently neglecting what's going well in the world that these readers must go elsewhere to redress the balance.

WHY IS SO MUCH of the media, particularly television, giving the public such an overbalanced agenda of bad news? One answer comes from Dr. George Gallup in a speech to the American Newspaper Publishers Association:

"TV cameras can present better than words the traumatic happenings of the day — fighting on the battlefields or in the streets, fires, floods, accidents, riots; in fact, almost any kind of news that involves violence.

"But television's greatest strength is, at the same time, its greatest weakness. Where there isn't controversy or action or violence — television is likely to be flat and boring. It isn't possible to photograph an idea or to deal effectively with most of the major interests of the public."

There are dismaying examples of this. I know a student leader at Duke University who organized a mass rally to present students' demands upon the college administration. She set out to show that a nonviolent protest could produce results and she asked one of the networks to cover it. It replied that since there was going to be no violence it wouldn't be worthwhile.

ANOTHER INHERENT weakness of the big nightly news shows is that they can't provide perspectives by subordinating news. It's all front-page, and lesser news gets nearly equal voice with what is most important.

Derick Daniels of the Detroit Free Press does not exempt printed journalism from all responsibility for overplaying the traumatic. He says:

"We operate with outmoded rules, sterile formulas, and definitions of news that don't begin to respond to the wants and needs of individual human beings."

It would be foolish and fatal for the press to minimize crisis and controversy. But one of the definitions which Gallup and Daniels feel may be seriously outmoded is that bad news is preeminently exciting and good news is preeminently boring.

Perhaps the response to the Aquarian Times will be a push in the right direction.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

No Blacks On May Day; They're Too Busy Voting

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — It is possible to bring up the abortive spring antiwar offensive this last time without apology, but only because of something that sticks in the memory: Here in the blackest big city in our country, the blacks observed a nearly total boycott of the marching and disrupting. It was one of those rare news events in American history when most of the black men present were not being arrested but instead were in police uniforms, doing the busting.

This is not merely a negative observation. It ties in directly with the great, good sense these same Washingtonians showed in the last previous mass political action here, less than two months ago, and with what was going on down Interstate 95 in North Carolina while the attempt to shut down Washington was in progress.

People were voting.

BLACK PEOPLE were voting and winning elections, disdaining the "politics of protest" for the politics of reality. Thus they were displaying far more political maturity than the overwhelmingly white demonstrators, and in turn proving anew that political maturity is not necessarily an outgrowth of traditional social caste or formal education.

Yes, there were a few blacks spotted here and there in the demonstrations. After all, one of the principal efforts of the offensive's organizers was to bring in "Third World" groups. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Martin Luther King's old organization, enlisted — but mainly at the top.

Hosea Williams, one of its leaders, got himself arrested when the SCLC mule wagon arrived at HEW. There was gospel-style speechmaking again before the march on Justice. Rep. Donald Dellums of California managed to get into an exchange of unpleasantries with the police outside the Capitol. But the rank-and-file black man was scarce.

IN THE BIGGEST demonstration of the season, the April 24 march, there was only the tiniest sprinkling of black faces. There was a higher percentage among the Vietnam veterans who came — but that still means perhaps one in 20, at the most. By last week when the May Day crowd started the rough stuff, the blacks were having none of it. When the police corralled demonstraters by the thousands at Kennedy Stadium, the crowd was as lily-white as a wedding reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

was as lily-white as a wedding reception at the Chevy Chase Club.

But there was no scarcity of black faces when the polls opened here seven weeks ago for the people to choose their first representative to Congress in 100 years. In an orderly culmination to a spirited but peaceful elimination contest, they picked the Rev. Walter Fauntroy, one of their own.

Nor was there any such scarcity in North Carolina's municipal elections last week. Blacks won city council places in towns like Fayetteville, Roxboro, Laurinburg, Columbia, Dunn, New Bern, Plymouth, Smithfield, Burgaw, Greenville, Tarboro and Cofield — few of them familiar to the outsider because they are not the metropolises of the progressive Piedmont but mostly small towns in rural areas where blacks have been politically impotent until recent years.

IT IS ELECTORAL results in communities like those, made possible by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which underlie a report recently issued by the Joint Center for Political Studies. It surprises even those who have followed black political progress most closely.

Consider, for example, the fact that George Wallace's Alabama has more black elected officials (105) than any other state in the South — more than any states anywhere except Michigan (155) and New York (142). Next in the South comes James Eastland's Mississippi (95); among the border states, Maryland has 44. California has 95; and is the only state where the total went down instead of up in the past year. Nationwide, the total increased 26.6 per cent in that one election year.

In haste, it must be added that Frank D. Reeves, who made this statistical study, reports that black officeholders still represent only three-tenths of one per cent of all the 522,000 elected officials in the country.

That speaks to the size of the remaining need and the opportunity. The election results and the annual leap in the number of black officials testify how susceptible this long-standing unfairness now is to hard work and organization. Together, these facts should make black voter registration and election campaigning a natural outlet for the social consciousness of young Americans devoted to justice.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

High School Principal Lays It On The Line

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Adolphus McGee is principal of Sacramento High School. He is "with it", a mod dresser who goes in for fancy shirts and flowing ties. He wears long sideburns, and closely trimmed beard and mustache grow together around his full lips. And Adolphus McGee is a black man.

Sacramento High School has had its share of discipline troubles. A third or more of its students are Negroes and Mexicans, so racial tensions add to the school's problems. Last month there was a series of campus brawls, and one assault on a teacher.

In these things, Sacramento High is no different from many other high schools in California. Campus brawls have become common place in recent years. At many schools they have escalated much farther than at Sacramento High, resulting in major property damage and injury to many people. Even attacks on teachers are much more common than is generally known.

IT IS IN WHAT followed the series of incidents that Sacramento High School differs.

After a week of unrest that included the assault on the teacher, Principal McGee called a convocation of all students, faculty members, and other employees. He invited the press. He wanted everybody to know what he had to say.

He joked with his audience and bragged of good things the school has done, to establish rapport. And then he laid it on the line.

Not more than 150 students, the principal told the gathering, were responsible for the school's troubles.

"WHAT AM I supposed to do about the other 1,600?" he demanded. "They want an education. But they never get my attention because I am on the corner talking to the 40 or 50 or 80 or 150."

He challenged the dissidents:

"When you have a problem, take it to where it can be solved. Don't take it to the hallway. Don't take it to the corner. Don't take it to your parents . . . Come to see me. But if you do, you had better ask yourself first, 'What have I done to solve the problem?' Because that is what I am going to ask you."

AT SACRAMENTO High, as at many other schools, much of the trouble has been caused by people from off campus. Principal McGee didn't ignore that; neither did he pretend that it absolved students of blame.

"Do you know there are professional revolutionaries who will tell you things to do?" he asked. "They say, 'Get the nigger.' Or, 'Get the honkey.' . . You don't even think, you rush onto campus to do it."

Then he looked around at his audience — at the students, at the teachers, at the other employees, so that all would know that what he said was meant for them. And he let them have it:

"ONCE I HAVE identified those who don't want to work, those who don't want to go to school here, I'm going to give you a vacation — permanently."

Nobody — students, faculty, other employees, or the reporters who had been invited especially to relay his words to the community — failed to get the message.

And the students applauded. They had heard a man talking.

California high schools could use a lot more principals like Adolphus McGee.

Black Gives Himself Up At Stanford

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The former co-chairman of Stanford's Black Student Union surrendered Tuesday on charges of beating a woman employe of the University Medical Center.

Leo Bazile, 27, was immediately freed on $12,500 bail raised by Stanford President Richard Lyman, Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, Board Chairman Edward Ginzton of Varian Associations and other local notables.

Bazile and Christopher Laury, 21, were charged with beating Mary Jane Schmidt, 41, a white medical center employe, at her East Palo Alto apartment last week. Her assailants slugged, kicked and burned her, allegedly for crossing a picket line protesting the firing of a black janitor and other allegedly racist acts.

Laury pleaded innocent Monday and was freed on $6,250 bail.

Before surrendering on the beating charge, Bazile appeared in Palo Alto Municipal Court to plead innocent to a charge of failure to disperse at an April 9 Medical Center sit-in that resulted in $100,000 damage.

Lyman said he helped raise $1,250 so a bondsman would post Bazile's bail because, "From what I know of Leo, it seems extremely unlikely he would be involved in such a thing."

Irate Dump Truckers Stage Protests Throughout State

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Two days of statewide protest demonstrations by several thousand independent dump truck owner-operators officially ended yesterday afternoon..

Spokesman for California's "for hire" dump truck industry termed the demonstrations "highly effective" in focusing attention on the threat to the survival of independent owner-operators posed by proposed changes in construction industry master labor contracts.

The demonstrations, held in more than two dozen cities form Eureka to San Diego, were called to show the unified opposition of the 6,500 state licensed dump truck operators to provisions in agreements between the Teamsters Union and contractor association groups covering employment terms of owner-operator truckers.

In addition to picketing of Teamsters Union locals throughout the state, the demonstrations involved truck and foot pickets at contractor association offices in San Diego, Los Angeles, Sacramento and in the San Francisco area. The protests also involved dump truck caravans circling key construction sites and governmental centers in major cities.

As the demonstrations ended, a spokesman for the statewide coordinating committee announced progress in legal actions undertaken to protect the rights of the independent owner-operators.

E. O. Blackman, general manager of the California Dump Truck Owners Assn., one of two industry associations coordinating the statewide demonstration, announced the National Labor Relations Board's Washington headquarters and authroized its Los Angeles Region 21 office to proceed with action on a decertification petition filed last February.

The petition, filed by two owner operators of trucking equipment in the building and construction industry, requested a secret ballot election to determine whether the Teamsters Union should continue to represent truckers and similar workers in the Southern California construction industry. Blackman said the National Labor Relations Board regional officials indicated a formal hearing date would be set soon on the petition, with the expected outcome that an election date would be set.

Demonstration points included the state Capitol Mall in Sacramento and civic centers in San Francisco, Fresno and Los Angeles. In Los Angeles, the two-day protest wound up with a noon-hour demonstration on the city hall steps with long caravans of dump trucks passing by.

Ralph Grago, business manager of the Associated Independent Owner Operators Inc., the other industry group involved, called the demonstrations "highly effective" throughout the state. He said the demonstrations showed the unified determination of owner-operators to protect their rights as independent self-employed businessmen.

Abigail Adams, wife of the second President, was the daughter of William Smith, a New England minister.

Another Idea For U.S. Technology

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A prominent educator and engineer said yesterday the United States should not redeploy military technology into environmental concerns, but into international trade.

Dr. Donald E. Marlowe, vice president of Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., said technology in international trade could avoid another world war.

Marlowe spoke before a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' First National Congress on Pressures Vessels and Piping.

"In economics, I am a disciple of Mike Boretsky who argues with great persuasiveness that the U.S.A. is rapidly losing its position in international trade as a result of losing its pre-eminence in high technology items of trade," Marlow said.

"The great need is not for redeployment of military technology into environmental concerns, but into international trade."

Asks To Defend Himself In Novatan Slaying Case

BERKELEY (UPI) —Christopher Cowsar, 21, said yesterday he wants to act as his own attorney in fighting murder charges filed against him in the stabbing death of an Air Force recruiting sergeant from Novato.

Cowsar, appearing before Municipal Judge George Brunn, said if the court appointed a lawyer for him "the prosecution has appointed my defense."

The judge did not rule on the matter but noted that he wanted the defendant to be represented by an attorney at all the proceedings because "this is a capital offense."

Another hearing was set for next Monday.

Cowsar complained to the judge that he could not make the three calls which Brunn had told him he could have in seeking legal advice. Cowsar said he was allowed to make only one call.

Air Force Sgt. Rogers Mobley, 32, of Novato, was attacked in the Berkeley recruiting office April 30. He suffered fatal stab wounds, and Cowsar was seized with a knife in his hand by several persons in the building.

105 Streptococcus Infections Reported

One hundred and eight cases of streptococcus infection were reported in Marin County last week, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, has reported.

Also reported were 45 cases of gonorrhea, 18 cases of rubella, 10 cases of infectious hepatitis and one case of salmonella.
